BANKS MAY MAKE LOANS

$701,697,692 IS NEEDED

War Finance Corporation Prepared to Come to Assistance of Roads in Special Cases.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Railroad executives and Government representatives today laid the foundation for the machinery through which loans of banks and the War Finance Corporation will be available to railroads during the next few months in lieu of the funds which Congress failed to provide.

After conferences between a number of leading railroad corporation officials and officials of the War Finance Corporation and Railroad Administration, a special Finance Committee of Seven, headed by Howard Elliott, President of the Northern Pacific, was created by the railroad executives to co-operate with Government agencies as a clearing house for financial arrangements.

An important feature of these arrangements may be the issuance by the Railroad Administration of Government warrants to railroads for the amount due them on settlements of last year's accounts and other debts. These warrants, virtually certificates of indebtedness, would not be cashed until Congress appropriated funds at the next session, but would serve as collateral for loans to be arranged by each railroad company individually with its bankers, or in special cases with the War Finance Corporation.

Although no bankers participated directly in the conferences today, they will be consulted informally by the executives and Railroad Administration officials. A number of prominent bankers were here during the day to confer privately with railroad heads.

It appears probable that the War Finance Corporation will try to limit its loans to railroad corporations with ample credit, without reference to the Government warrants as collateral, and every effort will be made by the Government agencies to encourage bankers to take up most of the loans required. At the same time the Railroad Administration will try to establish a large degree of uniformity in interest rates. This will be facilitated by the potential resources of the War Finance Corporation.

Secretary Glass at a conference tomorrow with Railroad Administration and War Finance Corporation officials is expected to emphasize the desire of the Treasury to keep railroad securities off the market until after the Victory Liberty Loan, which probably will close May 10. This can be done through negotiating short-term bank loans.

Details of Financial Needs.

Bringing forward the problem before the conference, Director General Hines outlined as follows the needs of the railroads up to June 30 next:

For interest and other corporate requirements of the railroad corporations, $166,066,762.

To meet amounts due equipment companies by the Railroad Administration, $183,681,965.

To pay for indispensable additions and betterments, including equipment ordered by railroad companies, $110,000,000.

To meet excess of cash requirements to pay current vouchers over the probable receipts up to March 31, 1919, $101,000,000.

To bring cash balances in hands of Federal Treasurers up to $800,000,000, which is the normal requirement for one month, $40,000,000.

Total, $701,697,692.

Tonight Mr. Hines made a brief statement relative to the work of the conference. "It was made clear," said Mr. Hines, "that to a large extent it will be necessary for the railroad corporations to meet their requirements by obtaining loans from bankers, the resources of the War Finance Corporation to be reserved to protect special cases.

"The Director General, and the conference generally, proceeded on the view that it was highly desirable to devise ways to provide for payment of bills and have the situation met through financing rather than by a general suspension of work, which would have a deterrent effect upon business generally.

"The Director General told the conference that he was considering the advisability of having the Railroad Administration issue, under reasonable conditions and limitations, warrants for amounts due railroad corporations, such warrants to be in a form which would serve as collateral for railroad corporations desiring to make loans through banks, and such warrants to be taken up by the Railroad Administration when the Congress makes the appropriation needed to meet the situation.

"Mr. Eugene Meyer, Jr., Manager Director of the War Finance Corporation, assured the Director General and the conference that the corporation was de-

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, March 10.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is authorized to state that the Army Commission under Colonel Sewell has decided to use Antwerp for the evacuation of American troops from the occupied territory. Colonel Sewell, who has just returned to Rotterdam from Antwerp, whither he went on a final tour of investigation, said:

"After thorough investigation of both ports we found it would be more convenient to send troops through Antwerp, although both places will be used by us. Some supplies will also be shipped via Antwerp for the Third Army, and some supplies will continue to be shipped via Rotterdam. We are still in the midst of preparations, but we began very preliminary work yesterday at Antwerp."

Union Sets 4 A. M. for Walkout of 4,500 Men on Public Service Lines.

12 COUNTIES ARE AFFECTED

A strike on all the trolley lines operated by the Public Service Railway Company in Northern New Jersey was ordered yesterday, following twelve hours' discussion of the matter by the car men, according to an announcement by William Wepner, Chairman of the Joint Conference Board of the New Jersey locals of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America. The strike was set to commence at 4 o'clock this morning, and involves 4,500 men.

The Public Service Company operates nearly 900 miles of tracks, taking in 141 municipalities, among them being Newark, the Oranges, Jersey City, Hoboken, Paterson, Passaic, Hackensack, Englewood, Plainfield, Morristown, Elizabeth, Perth Amboy, South Amboy, and New Brunswick. Some of the lines in Trenton will be affected. It is estimated that 1,000,000 passengers travel on the cars every day.

The cause of the strike order was the failure of the company to accede to the demands of the men that their union should be recognized and that ten hours' pay be given for nine hours' work. The company outlined a plan in an effort to treat with the men wherein it called for collective bargaining and equal representation on committee of workers and company officials. This plan also proposed a co-operative league where the men could obtain sick and other benefits.

This proposition was taken by the men as an attempt to weaken their union, and it was rejected. Later the men made an offer to submit their demand for the pay to Government arbitration, but they asserted that the union must be recognized. The company refused to treat with them on this point.

Conference of No Avail.

A conference was held late last night between President McCarter of the company and eight officers of the union. M. R. Bird, a Federal mediator attached to the United States Department of Labor, who came to Newark after the strike had been called, was present. This conference failed to alter the situation.

The committee of the union issued the following statement afterward:

"The Joint Conference Committee had a conference with President McCarter tonight in a last attempt to settle amicably the differences of the men and the company and in justice to the traveling public. President McCarter reiterated his former stand in the matter and said he would refuse to receive the Joint Conference Committee as a union, notwithstanding the fact that some of its members have been employes of the company for the last seventeen years.

"President McCarter told the members of the committee: 'We will use ex-soldiers and pay them well to run the cars, even if it takes a thousand years.'

"His position is hard to understand in view of the tribute of President Wilson to labor during the war.

"The committee stands ready to meet and confer with any committee representing the interests of the community in any effort to end this unfortunate situation."

President McCarter of the company gave the following version of the conference:

"In a final effort to avert a strike I had a conference this evening with employes of the Public Service Railways Company, who were officials in the local of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America. I offered first to withdraw and abandon forthwith the welfare and collective bargaining plan promulgated by the company which did not meet with the approval of the men. Second, I offered to sumbit to arbitration with the National War Labor Board, or the Public Utilities Commission of the State any and all differences that might lie between us.

"The representatives of the union, however, declined all our offers and declared that the strike must go on unless the company immediately sign a contract recognizing the union, the headquarters of which are in Detroit, Mich.,

SAVAGE CRUELTY RAGES UNCHECKED IN BERLIN STRIFE

REBELS STRONG IN SUBURBS

LONDON, March 11, (Associated Press.)—German Government troops, greatly reinforced, have resumed the fighting in the Berlin suburb of Lichtenberg, says a German wireless dispatch received here tonight.

The dispatch adds that the Spartacides have already been obliged to evacuate the Police Headquarters and the Post Office in Lichtenberg.

Fighting is still going on in Berlin with great fury, according to undated reports received in Copenhagen from the German capital and forwarded by the Exchange Telegraph Company.

Witnesses of the fighting in the last few days say that both the Spartacides and the Government soldiers acted like wild beasts. Hostilities continue in the northern and northeastern sections of Berlin, and the Government troops are killing all prisoners who fall into their hands.

Women, the reports add, participated in the cruelties with as much desperation as the men.

The reports estimate the loss in Berlin from pillage alone at 50,000,000 marks. Frankfurterstrasse, a well-known Jewish section, suffered heavily.

The German Government poured more than 20,000 troops into Berlin at the end of last week, but the work of driving the Spartacides from their strongholds is proving a severe task.

Many Tortured and Killed.

BERLIN, March 10, (Associated Press.)—Government troops were busy today in driving Spartacide bands from various sections of Berlin and in preparing for a determined effort against the rebel stronghold of Lichtenberg, a suburb to the east of the city.

The Spartacides are reported to have large depots of weapons and ammunition in Lichtenberg. Government troops sent there on Sunday to protect the Post Office and police station were annihilated.

All the soldiers and police officials who were not killed during the fighting for the Post Office and police station or who did not escape from the buildings were murdered by the Spartacides. Many were tortured and killed in the streets. At least one woman was among the victims.

The police archives in Lichtenberg were burned, and 80,000 marks was stolen from the Post Office.

No attempt has been made to ascertain the number of persons killed in the present uprising, but it is believed to exceed 150.

Reports of Spartacide atrocities continue to pour in and resulted today in the issuance of the order by Herr Noske, the Minister of Defense, that all found opposing the Government troops with weapons would be shot immediately.

Armed civilians stopped a Red Cross ambulance today and killed and wounded all those in it. Another band of Spartacides clubbed two soldiers to death with the butts of their guns and killed a householder who attempted to interfere.

The Independent Socialist newspapers Die Freiheit and Die Republik have been forbidden to appear. Although the Independent Socialist leaders protest that they are not connected with the insurrection, the independent organs have been attacking the Government with bitter invectives and endeavoring to stir up the people against the Government and the troops.

The leaders of the Independents also continue to make attempts to embarrass the Government and to play into the hands of the Spartacides by demands that the volunteer troops be withdrawn from Berlin. Many Independents are known to be fighting in the Spartacide ranks.

There is reason to believe that Minister Noske has a free hand to put down the revolt, and the Government's preparations indicate that force will be used to the utmost.

Troops Take No Prisoners.

The Government military commander expect that it will take at least two days of steady fighting to break the Spartacide resistance in the eastern part of Berlin and to capture Lichtenberg and the suburbs of Köpenick, Weissensee, and Rumelsburg, all on the eastern outskirts. The Communists, with help from the criminal and hooligan elements, continue to offer stout opposition there, and the Government troops naturally are making slow progress in the street fighting. They are taking no prisoners.

The Government forces have the task of crushing not only the main Spartacide strongholds, but also of combating the guerrilla tactics of the insurgents who, realizing that they eventually will be outmatched by the troops in straight fighting, are separating into small bands and terrorizing districts which had been unmolested up to this time.

Allied Troops, Outnumbered, Fight Off Fierce Red Attacks

ARCHANGEL, March 11, (Associated Press.)—Operating ten guns the Bolshevist forces yesterday shelled the village of Vistavka, on the Vaga, almost completely destroying it.

Repeated heavy infantry attacks followed, but these were repulsed with heavy losses by the Americans, British, and Russians.

The Allies were greatly outnumbered, but fought bravely in the snow.

OLD GUARD WINS; MONDELL LEADER

PROGRESSIVE SHOWING POOR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Representative Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, classed as an extreme reactionary, was named today by the Committee on Committees for Republican floor leader after Representative James R. Mann had declined the honor. The committee was dominated by the Old Guard element, which will control not only the floor, but also the Steering Committee which guides legislation.

The work of the committee, characterized by Representative Nicholas Longworth "as out-Cannoning Cannon," was marked on the surface by an approach to harmony, as there will few insurgents other than Messrs. Longworth and Winslow.

Steam roller methods, such as those which disrupted the Republican Party in 1912, were employed. The Mann leaders declined to listen to delaying until a caucus the selection of floor leader and the Steering Committee, a course urged by Mr. Longworth, representing a number of States.

The entire slate, dictated by Messrs. Mann and Cannon, was jammed through, while all committee places were filled in accordance with the seniority rule. The latter practice put in places of responsibility and power men regarded as reactionary and men whose records on war legislation do not command popular esteem.

The Steering Committee selected, of which Representative Mondell is Chairman ex-officio, together with the vote, follows: J. Hampton Moore, Pennsylvania, 175; Martin B. Madden, Illinois, 168; Nicholas Longworth, Ohio, 175; Thomas B. Dunn, New York, 157; Stephen W. Winslow, Massachusetts, 191. By reason of seniority service the men rank as given in the above list and not according to the number of votes cast for them.

The Whip nominated was Harold Knutson of Minnesota, a Cannon pupil. He received 118 votes, to 41 for McArthur of Oregon and 23 for Vestal of Indiana.

Progressives May Fight.

Progressives left the meeting determined to fight the work of the Committee on Committees, provided sufficient public sentiment could be aroused throughout the country in the next six weeks against retaining in power the element which brought disaster to the Republican Party in 1910, and under whose leadership the Republican Convention in 1912 was torn asunder.

Mr. Mann, after declining to accept the floor leadership, refused to take a committee assignment. This leaves him free to be the actual master of the House, while, as the independents say, his supporters, the newly named floor leader and the Steering Committee, may do his bidding.

Representative J. H. Moore, with Pennsylvania's twenty-eight votes behind him, placed Mr. Mann in nomination for floor leader in a very eloquent, laudatory speech. Seconding speeches were made by Representative Frank W. Mondell and Representative John J. Esch of Wisconsin.

The Voting for Leader.

Mr. Mann received 138 votes, and finally was allowed to vote for himself, casting Illinois' votes, which gave him 154. The ballot was: Mann, 154; Mondell, 5; Longworth, 2; present and passed the vote, 41; absent, 23; against Mr. Mann, 12.

Representative Winslow of Massachusetts, the Gillett leader, declined to cast Massachusetts' 12 votes for Mr. Mann, while the votes of Ohio, Idaho, Indiana, New Jersey, and West Virginia were passed.

After Mr. Mann had declined the election Mr. Longworth unsuccessfully renewed his request that the vote for floor leader be postponed. Mr. Moore directed the opposing Mann forces. The balloting proceeded, with this result: Mondell, 160; 53 votes passed, and 23 voting against.

The Steering Committee and the whip were then elected, and Mr. Mann was designated as a committee of one to consider remaining committees, assignments, and patronage, and report to the committee next Thursday.

PEACE DRAFT AHEAD OF LEAGUE; BILL FOR REPARATION IS 35 BILLIONS; GERMAN NAVY CUT TO 15,000 MEN

To Be Signed This Month, London Paper Reports.

BARS GAS AND TANKS TO FOE

Germans Will Be Invited to Sign Document as Soon as Presented.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES POLAND

Will Investigate Teuton Plot Against Czechs—France to Bear Her Own Debt.

LONDON, March 11.—The Supreme Council has decided that the personnel of the German fleet is to be restricted to 15,000 men, according to press dispatches from Paris.

The military conditions to be imposed on Germany include guarantees that no tanks will be built and no more poison gas manufactured, and that all German war material must be handed over and destroyed.

It is added that allied commissions will supervise the carrying out of these conditions.

Premier Lloyd George and Arthur J. Balfour have sent word to their colleagues here that the Peace Conference has nearly completed its work, according to The Evening News. The draft of the peace treaty has already been finished, says the same paper, and will be signed before the end of March.

When the Germans are summoned to Paris, The News adds, the treaty will be read to them and they will be invited to sign it. There will be no discussion with a view to alterations of the principal articles of the treaty. If it is thought necessary, questions involving the adjustment of details will be referred to a special commission.

A sitting of the plenary conference is not contemplated before the final completion of the terms of peace to be presented to the Germans, according to Reuter's Paris correspondent. The explanattion of this step, as given by an authoritative British source, is that the question of peace with Germany is one that concerns only the powers that took part in the war against her, and that it is unnecessary to require the conference to permit the delegates of other countries to take part in deliberations in which they have no direct interest.

The same authority is of the opinion that even at Versailles, when the terms are presented, the meeting may be confined to the German delegates and the representatives of th Allies and the powers associated with them in the war.

Fleet Once Had 197,375 Men.

When the German fleet surrendered it had, approximately, a personnel of 197,375 officers and men, minus casualties amounting to 60,000, most of which were suffered on land.

When the war began in August, 1914, the personnel of the navy was given as 3,889 officers and 75,486 men, plus a reserve of about 110,000 men. During the war Germany's recruits to the navy were furnished entirely from her maritime population, which did not, it is believed, exceed 10 per cent. of a total of 80,000, or 8,000.

The comparative inactivity of the German fleet after the battle of Jutland, May 31, 1916, allowed the military command to employ large bodies of sailors in Belgium, which accounts for their relatively large casualties, which amounted to 25,000 killed, over 15,000 missing, and nearly 29,000 wounded, figures which represent many times Germany's losses in actual naval combats.

Czechs Complain of German Plots.

PARIS, March 11, (Associated Press.)—The Council of the Great Powers heard today a statement presented by Dr. Benes of the Czechoslovak delegation on the widespread conspiracy alleged to exist against the new State on three sides—Germany, German Austria, and Hungary.

According to documents found on a German courier arrested at Prague, an extensive plot is being fomented to excite a revolution and furnish arms and ammunition to those seeking to overturn the new Government. The council regards the representations as serious, and is taking measures to investigate and give adequate security.

The council today also considered the serious internal conditions in Poland, which subject will be discussed

Clamor for America to Be Boundary Arbiter Is Proving an Embarrassment to Our Delegates

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 11.—The adjustment of the eastern boundaries of Germany is now occupying the attention of the Supreme Council. A report prepared by an expert geographer gives Danzig to Poland, which is also to have West Prussia. East Prussia does not go to Poland except a small section, which is said to be overwhelmingly Polish in population. The probability is that East Prussia will be formed into an independent republic.

These proposals and others affecting boundaries bring sharply to the front the situation in which the American Commission is placed through its disinterested attitude toward the internal affairs of Europe. It is recognized as inevitable that President Wilson and his associates will soon be obliged to act as arbiters between conflicting interests.

That the American representatives are anxious over this state of affairs is no secret. They recognize that whichever way the United States decides in the capacity of umpire some nation will be dissatisfied, with the result that America will incur the ill-will of a large section of the world.

One reason urged for the President's return to France was that his counsel would be needed in an arbitral capacity when boundary questions came up for settlement. He fully appreciated the compliment conveyed in this; but during his absence, and particularly within the last few days, the embarrassments likely to grow out of the position in which the United States is placed have become obvious.

Even Great Britain feels that her past affiliations would make her decisions subject to suspicion, and her representatives have practically said to the American delegates: "Embarrassing as it is, you are the only nation that is free to act as umpire, and you cannot escape the responsibility."

It goes without saying that a little sympathetic guidance from home would not be unappreciated by the American Commission.

MORE VOTES FOR AMERICA

Even with Imperfections, Covenant Should Be Accepted—Statement from Sick-bed.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—William Jennings Bryan issued a statement here tonight indorsing the League of Nations, but suggesting amendments to the proposed Constitution, which, among other things, would preserve specifically the Monroe Doctrine, enlarge the proportionate voting power of the United States, and make it clear that each member nation might decide for itself whether it would support decrees of the League's General Council.

While pointing to imperfections, Mr. Bryan urged that they should not be allowed to lead to rejection of the plan, declaring that risks to be run in accepting the League were less than those involved in rejection and returning "to the old ways of blood and slaughter."

Mr. Bryan dictated the statement from his sick-bed at the home of friends, where he nas been indisposed for nearly three weeks. He said the League of Nations idea, "the greatest step toward peace in a thousand years," was taken from the thirty arbitration treaties negotiated by the United States while he was Secretary of State. It was not to be expected, he said, that so great an idea would be made perfect in detail in so short a time, and added that, while President Wilson had "done the best he could," he would be helped by intelligent and friendly criticism from the American public.

The statement follows:

"The League of Nations is the greatest step toward peace in a thousand years. The idea of substituting reason for force in the settlement of international disputes is in itself an epochmaking advance. The Constitution of the League as announced provides for three things which constitute in themselves an advantage the importance of which can scarcely be estimated. Deliberation before war—the investigation of all disputes of their kind and character before hostilities begin. This almost ends war. The idea is taken from the thirty treaties negotiated by the United States with three-quarters of the world. Our nation, therefore, gves to the Peace League its greatest piece of machinery. Second, the reduction of armaments will make it impossible for a nation to prepare for war without notifying the world of its intention. Third, the abolition of secret treaties, which will do much to prevent the combinations which lead to war. If the League of Nations did nothing more than provide these three things, our nation would be justified in supporting it to the utmost.

"It is not to be expected that so great an idea as the League of Nations would be made perfect in detail in so short a time. There are defects that should be corrected, and the fullest discussion of proposed amendments should be invited. The newspapers of Great Britain, France, and Italy are not backward in the expression of their views as to changes that should be made. Why should the American people be silent?

EX-KAISER'S FATE DIVIDES DELEGATES

Americans Think He Cannot Be Legally Punished for Starting the War.

FRENCH HOLD THAT HE CAN

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 10.—There may be a deviation this week from the Peace Conference rule that all conclusions shall be unanimous when the committee appointed to fix responsibility for the war finishes its work. Today there is a decided difference of opinion in that committee whether the ex-Kaiser can be held personally responsible and legally punished. If this difference is not removed before the end of the present week, there will be a majority report to the effect that Wilhelm cannot be punished by the Allies, and a minority report that he can and should be. In that case, his fate will next rest with the Council of Ten, and perhaps pass to the plenary conference for decision.

The American opinion is that the ex-Kaiser cannot be held legally responsible in the sense that punishment may be imposed upon him by the Allies, and there is enough backing in the committee to make that the opinion of the majority. Naturally, France takes the other view in the matter. It may be said, however, that there is unanimity in the committee to the extent of wishing that there was some provision of international law by which Wilhelm could be brought to book, for it is recognized that throughout the world, and particularly in the United States, there is a desire to be able to say legally to him, "Thou art the man!" and then to impose a tangible and concerete punishment upon the individual found responsible for the world terror of the last four years and all the subsequent turmoil that has grown out of the war.

War Itself Not a Crime.

But, in the opinion of a majority of the committee, this cannot be done. This conclusion is based on the fact that war is not a crime within the meaning of international law; that, on the contrary, it is a legal thing, because in fact there has been no international ban upon it, such as is now provided in the covenant of the proposed League of Nations.

The majority of the committee is also utterly opposed to inventing a new law to fit the case, because it is realized that any such ex post facto proceeding would make Wilhelm a martyr. Another contention is that as war is legal under the present world code, there is no provision for passing on the justification of it in a legal sense, no matter what historians, present and future, may say about it, and no matter what the

TREATY A LONG DOCUMENT

Will Include Regulation of German Military System.

HAS FIVE OR SIX DIVISIONS

All Matters Have Been Adopted or Agreed To by Allies in Principle.

REPARATION BILL CUT DOWN

PARIS, March 11, (Associated Press.)—The first rough outlines of the peace treaty are beginning to take form, as a result of the rapid disposition of the main questions before the Council of the great powers. The preliminary draft will be well along within the present week, and with the arrival of President Wilson final revision will proceed, so as to make it possible to have the document ready for presentation by the end of next week, and thus conform to Marshal Foch's limit of March 20, although the British delegates are apparently inclined to doubt the possibility of carrying out the program on time.

The covenant of the League of Nations does not figure as a part of the peace treaty, but will be treated separately, although the treaty makes frequent reference to the duties which are to be intrusted to the League.

The peace treaty promises to be a very long document, chiefly owing to detailed provisions concerning the German military system and methods for its control by the Allies. It will embody, however, only five or six main divisions, namely:

First, military, naval, and aerial terms; second, reparations for war damages; third, German boundaries; fourth, economic and financial provisions, and, probably, fifth, responsibilities for the war.

All these main subjects are in an advanced stage and have been either adopted or agreed to in principle, with the exception of some reserved points on which President Wilson and the Premiers are to take final action.

Boundaries Terms Are Up.

The Military terms adopted yesterday were in the hands of the drafting experts today, to be put in the form of articles of the treaty. The naval and aerial terms are agreed to, except as to reservations regarding the disposition of the large German ships and the dismantling of Heligoland and the Kiel Canal.

Germany's eastern, western, and northern boundaries are now before the Council or in the Committee on reports. The eastern and northern boundaries are to be determined Thursday. The western boundary will be settled Friday.

The consideration of reparations is set for Saturday, though this question may go beyond that time. This covers all the principal subjects, except for responsibility for the war. It is the desire of the French to have this made an integral part of the treaty, so as to settle the question, and this may be conceded, though it is an open question.

The consideration of reparations has introduced the word "trillion" in recognizing money, probably for the first time in any single financial operation, for, although millions and billions often have been used in war finance, no sum has yet been reached touching a trillion.

In estimating the war losses of all the powers, the first figures of one of the great powers aggregated a trillion francs, and those of another power were slightly above a half trillion francs, namely 600,000,000,000 francs. These first estimates have gradually been reduced, until the present aggregate covering the losses for all countries is about one-fifth of the first highest estimate, and in final form probably will be in the neighborhood of thirty-five or forty billion dollars.

The final figure has not yet been written into the committee report, but has been left in blank and expressed as "X," so that an insert may be made when there is an understanding as to the formal decision on the amount to be exacted.

PRINKIPO PLAN REVIVED?

Lithuanian Minister Said to be Ready to Send Delegates.

BASLE, March 11.—A Libau dispatch received here says that a wireless message from Moscow states that the Commissary for Foreign Relations of Lithuania and White Russia has sent a note to the American, French, British, and Italian Governments asking when plenipotentiaries should go to Prinkipo Island.

It was said that the Commissary's note stated that there was a disposition to settle all questions relative to the situation in his part of Russia in a peaceable manner.

This is a development of the invitation sent to Russian factions by the Peace Conference, asking that a conference be held at Prinkipo Island, in the Sea of Marmora. As a condition precedent to the conference it was stipulated that a truce between the Russian factions should be arranged. This has not been done, and recent dispatches indicated that the plan for the conference at Prinkipo had been abandoned, but that a meeting might be held at some other place which would be attended by members of some Russian factions.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS UNION.

Straus, Bourgeois, Nansen, and Venizelos Among Delegates at London.

LONDON, March 11, (Associated Press.)—The conference of the League of Nations Union opened at Westminster today and elected Lord Shaw President. The delegates included Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the committee, sent to the Peace Conference by the American League to Enforce Peace; Leon Bourgeois, President of the French Society for a League of Nations; Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, arctic explorer and one of the organizers of the Norse Society for a League of Nations, and Eliptherios Venizelos, Prime Minister of Greece.

M. Bourgeois and M. Venizelos in their speeches both deprecated the requiring of complete unanimity at first as likely to endanger the success of the League of Nations.

A resolution favoring the free exercise of religion, submitted by the delegates from the American League to Enforce Peace, was adopted by the conference.

NOT DISCOURAGED BY HITCH

Negotiations Suspended at Spa Will Be Renewed, Says Braun.

WEIMAR, March 11.—Under Secretary Braun, speaking today of the armistice negotiations at Spa, said:

"We consider the rupture of the Spa negotiations simply a measure permitting the opposing delegates to demand fresh instructions from their Governments. Our situation is serious, not desperate. Fresh negotiations will come."

tomorrow, when Poland's frontier in Germany will probably be determined.

The official statement issued after the meeting reads:

> The Supreme Council considered communications from the Armistice Commission regarding the situation in Poland. At the request of the Czechoslovak Republic concerning German, Austrian, and Hungarian intrigues against the new State, the council considered the reports and decided to investigate them as soon as documentary evidence is received.
> The council then discussed the conditions under which the powers with special interests and the States in process of formation should participate in the discussions with the great powers respecting their frontiers.

In the recent armistice discussions the American members of the Supreme Council, it is understood, permitted the military experts to exercise their judgment regarding the proper size and character of the future German army. In order to have a basis of discussion, the Americans, it is reported, suggested an army of 400,000 men, but only because that was the number mentioned in the first armistice proposal.

The decision of the Council to limit Germany to a volunteer twelve-year army is regarded by the Americans as likely to lead to consideration by the League of Nations, when it takes up the subject of the limitation of armaments, of the policy of a general prohibition of conscript armies in all nations. This is on the theory that the great expense of regular long-term armies will be such as automatically to keep down militarism.

France has abandoned, for the present at least, any hope of having her great war debt shared by the Allies. It is authoritatively asserted by one of the Americans attending the conference that what had been an embarrassing possibility has now been definitely eliminated from the deliberations, although it is possible that France may at some future time attempt to obtain assistance.

The project has never been formally presented at the conference, but conversations held at intervals since the conference began have served as a medium for the presentation of the French point of view.

The British and American delegations have been quite frank in their disapproval and have openly said that the people of their countries would be slow to indorse the French plan.

The Supreme Council, in accordance with the decision reached yesterday, today closed the question of the representation of the small nations on the Economic and Financial Commissions by making the following appointments:

Economic Commission—Representatives of Belgium, Brazil, China, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, and Serbia.

Financial Commission—Representatives of Belgium, Greece, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Serbia, and one country to be named.

The Peace Conference Commission on International Labor Legislation today heard statements by various delegations on the result of their consultations with their Governments and with employers and organizations of working people in their respective countries. The commission then took up the final reading of the draft of the International Labor Convention, submitted by the British delegation.

POPE URGES POWERS TO HASTEN PEACE

Wants to Avert Anarchy and Would Also Avoid Humiliating Germany.

FEARS A BOLSHEVIST STATE

Said to Have Information of Grave Conditions in Germany—Anxious About Palestine.

PARIS, March 11, (Associated Press.)—It has become known that Pope Benedict has addressed an appeal to the powers, emphasizing the urgency of the speedy conclusion of peace with Germany.

It is understood that the pontiff states that the Vatican possesses reliable information that the situation in Germany, socially and economically, is very grave, and that he fears the spread of Bolshevism with such rapidity that it may result in the establishment of a Bolshevist State, which in turn might become allied with Bolshevist Russia.

The Pope is reported to have said that he feels that the only way to avoid such an eventuality is a speedy peace—a peace, he says, which will not humiliate the German people.

ROME, March 10.—In the course of his allocution at the Consistory he held today Pope Benedict, in alluding to the future settlement of the Ottoman Empire, said:

"It would be a great grief to the Holy See if in Palestine the preponderating position were given to infidels, and a still greater grief if the holy places were given to a non-Christian power."

MAY EXILE EX-EMPEROR.

Paris Hears Austrian Government Is Considering the Matter.

PARIS, March 11.—Information has reached responsible quarters in Paris that the Austrian Government is contemplating the enactment of a law banishing former Emperor Charles.

This report has aroused discussion here regarding what country the ex-Emperor would be likely to retire to. It is said to be certain that he would not go to Italy or Germany, while the Scandinavian countries, with Holland's trouble over the presence of former Emperor William as a warning, are not considered likely to receive him. The choice would seem to lie between Switzerland and Spain.

Either of these two powers, however, would require guarantees from the powers, it is thought, against any possible future demand for the ex-ruler's extradition.

TAKE TWO COURLAND TOWNS.

German Troops Again Defeat Bolsheviki, with Heavy Losses.

BERLIN, March 11, (Havas.)—German troops have recaptured the towns of Laiden and Schrunden, northeast of Libau, Courland, according to reports received here. The Bolsheviki were driven back with heavy losses.

COPENHAGEN, March 11.—The recently reported recapture of Riga, on the Baltic coast, is denied in a Berlin dispatch received here. The German troops, it is stated, are still a considerable distance from Riga.

STOCKHOLM, March 11, (Havas.)—A British squadron has arrived at Libau, according to advices received here. On board the warships are members of a British commission.

OCCUPATION TROOPS DUE.

First from German Soil Reach Here Tomorrow.

> To the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES, New York: The 314th and 315th Trench Mortar Batteries, the first units leaving German soil for home from the Army of Occupation, debark Wednesday morning from U. S. S. Iowan at New York.
> MEYERS.

Regiments have arrived previously who had marched to the Rhine after the armistice was signed, the military officials said yesterday, but they were not a part of the forces occupying Coblenz or any other positions in Germany.

Among the other transports due today from France are the Calamares, Amphion, Suriname, and the Hospital Ship Mercy with 400 sick and wounded.

The French liner Espagne, with 534 American troops, the Hospital Ship Comfort, with sick and wounded, and the Cartago are due tomorrow. The Dutch liner Hollandia, with the 53rd U. S. Artillery Brigade on board, is due on Friday. The French liner Patria from Marseilles with 2,110 American troops, including the 304th Brigade Tank Corps complete and six casual companies is expected Sunday. The casual companies are the 1902d, 1903d, 1909th, 1912th, 1913th and 1914th.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

world may think. A minor point is—the Jefferson Davis case is cited as a precedent—that it would be impossible to find a court and jury before which the ex-Kaiser could have an unbiased hearing.

One recommendation of the committee has been to have him returned to Germany to be dealt with by his own people. But America cannot consistently insist on that before the Peace Conference, because the status of Wilhelm in Holland is that of a political refugee, and American law provides the right of asylum for such refugees. Furthermore, nobody knows what would happen to him if he were forced back into Germany. It is not considered likely that he would meet the fate of the Czar, but, beyond assumption, nobody at the Peace Conference has any speculation in the matter.

German Indifference to Wilhelm.

Information here is to the effect that increasing indifference and contempt for the man who once ruled them is the present attitude of the German people toward him. The Germans are said to feel that he was a coward to run away, and that now it matters little what happens to him. Suddenly to transform such indifference and contempt into a revival of the Kaiser fetich by making a martyr out of the ex-Emperor would defeat the purpose of the Allies themselves, regardless of the illegality of it, in the opinion of many Conference delegates.

But this likelihood that he will escape trial and punishment by legal processes by no means indicates that Wilhelm is to be allowed to live out his life morally uncondemned by pronouncement of the Allies. On the contrary, while admitting that nothing can be done to fix the legal responsibility, the report will very likely go far in placing the moral responsibility and putting on Wilhelm, by judgment of the entire world, the brand of Cain for all time. That, say its advocates, would be a far greater punishment than could be inflicted by the hangman or by a firing squad.

This legal immunity of Wilhelm does not necessarily cover all his Ministers, in the opinion of the committee, although no conclusion has been reached yet on that point. But there is a well-defined feeling that, although the head of the German Nation committed no international crime in declaring the world war, his subordinates cannot escape punishment if they are found guilty of violation of the international rules under which that war should have been fought. The delegates have in mind such men as von Tirpitz, Ludendorff, and those responsible for the Fryatt murder and similar crimes. It is well within the range of possibility that the surrender of these men will be demanded by the Governments, whose nationals suffered from their violations of international law, for trial and punishment, and that such surrender will be provided for in the peace treaty.

Fate of Subordinate Criminals.

PARIS, March 10, (Associated Press.)—It will be the fate of ex-Emperor William to be branded for all time as an arch-criminal by the solemn declaration of all the nations assembled at the Peace Conference, to which even his own country may be called upon to subscribe in the peace terms, according to the present plans of what is believed to be a majority of the commission on responsibility for the war.

The report of this commission will be ready within a few days, and the indications are that the members are harmonious on the main points. There are likely to be differences, however, regarding subordinate German officials, though at present a majority of the commission is understood to hold that they can be punished for orders given or acts permitted by them in violation of the national laws of Germany or the rules of war. Such a rule would apply to the officer who ordered the execution of Captain Fryatt, but not to the one who condemned Edith Cavell, who, it is pointed out, may have been technically guilty of espionage. No doubt is felt as to the liability to punishment of captured German officers found guilty of atrocities.

WILSON NOW HOPES TO SHORTEN HIS STAY

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, March 11, (by Wireless to The Associated Press.)—Feeling more vigorous than at any time since his departure from the United States, President Wilson devoted some time today to his approaching tasks in Paris.

The progress made by the Peace Conference during his absence encourages the hope that he may be able to make his stay abroad shorter than he had expected. The President is planning to do everything possible to expedite the work of the conference.

For the first time in several days he attended moving pictures in the George Washington's theatre tonight.

Three of the four destroyers which accompanied the George Washington from New York parted company with the President's ship, sailing for the Azores in the course of the night. The fourth went today. Four destroyers from the Azores fell in line with the steamship late this afternoon for convoy duty.

The President received a wireless from a delegation of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, proceeding to England on the Aquitania, conveying greetings and best wishes.

He is receiving unusual courtesies of the sea from passing ships. The steamer Annam hove to until the George Washington had passed. This salute is said to be given as a rule only to royalty. The Hollandia inquired as to the George Washington's position, the crew wishing to approach and cheer the President. But the vessels were too far apart.

INVESTIGATES LONDON RIOT.

American Board Hears More Evidence—Newspaper Praises Our Men.

LONDON, March 11.—The American commission which is inquiring into the disturbances Sunday in the Strand, near the Eagle Hut, resumed its sittings today. The proceedings are private, but a statement is promised at the conclusion of the investigation.

Major Gen. Fielding, commanding the London district, and Major M. Tomlin, Chief Constable of the Metropolitan Police Force, attended the session today. The British officers will be allowed to question witnesses.

The Daily News, referring to the riot, says:

"The decision to hold an inquiry, and the rapidity with which the inquiry has been put in hand, are very much to be welcomed. It may be said, since rather regrettable prominence has been given to the American soldiers in particular in some of the earlier accounts of the disturbance, that the behavior of the American troops since the day they were first welcomed to London has been exemplary, not merely in an ordinary, but to a conspicuous degree.

"Unless and until the men in the mêlée are condemned by the Court of Inquiry, public opinion here will be content to withhold its condemnation. In any case, the whole affair was distinctly less serious than at first appeared."

QUEEN PLANS VISIT HERE.

Marie of Rumania Wants to Thank Americans for Help.

PARIS, March 11, (Associated Press.)—Queen Marie of Rumania may soon visit the United States. Whether the trip will be made before or after the conclusion of the Peace Conference has not been decided. The Queen will leave for London tomorrow.

In a conversation with The Associated Press today she said that for many years her most cherished hope had been to visit the United States, and now she was looking forward to the early fulfillment of that hope.

"I feel that I shall be almost as much at home in America as in my own country," said the Queen, "For I have come to know Americans as intimately as my own people. I desire first to have the privilege of thanking in person the people of the United States for the great help they have given Rumania through the American Red Cross and the Food Administration.

"It is a splendid thing to see so many of your fine soldiers in France. Whenever I pass one of them on the street I feel instinctively that there is one of my friends, and my impulse is to shake every one of them by the hand."

The Queen spoke of the wonderful part played by the women of America and England in the war and said that it was their dauntless spirit which had carried the troops on to victory.

"Woman's day has come," she concluded, "and I believe that she will have an increasingly important part in the future life of the world."

GIVES NO DETAILS OF WORK

Connection with Committee Has Been Nominal Since March 1, He Asserts.

George Creel, who sailed from New York on Dec. 1 on the United States naval transport Orizaba for France to take charge of the Bureau of Public Information in Paris during the Peace Conference, returned yesterday on the transport Agamemnon and confirmed the reports cabled from the other side that he had resigned his post as director.

When asked by the reporters at Pier 5, Hoboken, if he was going back to the Bureau of Public Information in Washington, Mr. Creel replied, "No, I am no longer with them."

When he saw that his resignation did not appear to be known generally, he added, "I cabled a statement from Brest before I sailed." Mr. Creel then turned to one of his assistants from the bureau who was there to meet him and asked if the statement had been given out for publication. On being informed that it had not Mr. Creel turned to the reporters and dictated the following brief statement:

"I am going to return to private life. The domestic Bureau of Public Information ended in December, and I am now considering arrangements for the discontinuance of all foreign work. My only relation with the Committee on Public Information from March 1 is a nominal one, and my connection with it is to arrange the formal features of settlement."

Mr. Creel declined to give any details of the work done in Paris by the bureau, and hurried from the pier to greet his family. After dinner he left for Philadelphia.

At the time Mr. Creel went to Paris while preparations for the Peace Conference were under way it was repeatedly asserted that he had gone to assume a censorship control over press dispatches regarding the conference sent to this country by American correspondents in Paris. Shortly after he had denied this, a report was cabled from Paris, late in December, that he had resigned and was returning home immediately. The reason hazarded at the time by some who had followed his movements was that he had failed to receive an expected appointment as President Wilson's "Foreign Secretary." Confirmation of Mr. Creel's expected return was not received at Washington at the time and there was much puzzlement as to his exact status.

President Wilson appointed Mr. Creel as Chairman of the committee on April 14, 1917. The other members were the Secretaries of State, War, and Navy and the committee's duty was to handle all official war publicity sent out by the Administration and all American propaganda abroad. He was in numerous controversies with the Senate Committee on Military Affairs and others because of charges that he exaggerated some of the news he gave out and colored war news in order to make it favorable to the Administration. These charges he persistently denied.

AIR CONFERENCE ENDS.

Delegates Find Discussions Embarrassing to Their Governments.

PARIS, March 11, (Associated Press.)—Like the International Wireless Conference, which assembled here several weeks, ago, a similar gathering which was intended to deal with problems relating to aerial navigation has been compelled to postpone its work indefinitely after having merely perfected its organization. Mere suggestions of the extensive plans which were to be brought forward for consideration developed the fact that most nations might be obliged to make wholly unexpected changes in their fundamental laws if they participated in decisions. This made necessary the reference of many problems to home Governments, and it is understood that it will require consideration of many months before the delegates will be able to proceed with the conference.

The air conference was to be merely a French, or possibly Franco-British, affair, but the appearance in Paris of accredited delegates of many other nations made it necessary to hold matters in abeyance for the time being. The delegates to the Peace Conference were quick to see that what amounted to a control of aerial navigation might be involved in the decisions of the conference and lost no time in demanding that their nations be represented.

TARDIEU SEES IDEAL OF PEACE AS CERTAINTY

Says League of Nations and Peace Treaty Can Be Only One Question.

PARIS, March 11.—Captain André Tardieu, the French High Commissioner for Franco-American War Matters, speaking at a banquet tonight given by the Interallied Press Club in honor of the American Peace Commissioners, said:

"Of the great work in which we are all laboring together, half is on the way and its success is certain. Although the negotiations are not finished, we feel today that peace has been won. We feel it for many reasons, but one of the reasons sums up the others, this reason being that it is already certain that our common ideal will find its expression in the material settlement which we have to prepare, and this is of capital importance.

"What I said on Jan. 11 last, on the eve of the opening of the conference, I repeat tonight—the treaty of peace and the League of Nations can only be one question, and I say that the League of Nations can be founded only on the treaty of peace, and, on the other hand, the very principles on which the League will be founded will give their lasting value to the clauses of the treaty.

"It must be pointed out with justice that the Governments wanted it, and to impose that will they had to struggle almost everywhere against the forces of incomprehension, against political intrigues, and often against the imprudence of newspaper men. The success which the Governments have achieved in remaining faithful to themselves has not been an easy success, and by maintaining unbroken ideals and facts they have rendered a service which will be recognized later.

"Within a few weeks—and I proclaim here my confidence—we shall bring to all honest peoples, to all just peoples, a new element of hope and faith, a new and decisive reason to believe in the progress of humanity and to work for it, without any honest people being deprived of any material guarantee, of any of those guarantees of which France, more than any other nation, knows the necessity."

BASE CREDITS ON INDEMNITY

British Move to Facilitate Trade—Fears for Canadian Exports.

LONDON, March 10.—Sir Auckland C. Geddes, Minister of National Service and Reconstruction, speaking on the Government's trade policy today in answer to Sir Donald Maclean, Liberal leader in the House of Commons, said that one reason for limiting imports to Great Britain was the necessity of preventing an increase of the British debt.

"A similar motive has actuated other countries and has hampered our export trade," he said, "but the Government is trying to make arrangements with countries which probably in the near future, by the receipt of indemnities, will be placed in a position to purchase our manufactured goods, to allow the entrance of our exports and charge them against prospective indemnities. The Government is moving as rapidly as permissible in the direction of securing some arrangement of the affairs of Europe and allowing the removal of the blockade."

Asked by Sir Richard Cooper if the Government had any official information showing that the present method of granting licenses for imports was penalizing the trade of Canada in favoring the trade of the United States, W. C. Bridgeman, Under Secretary of the Board of Trade, referred to his recent announcement that the trade ban had been lifted from goods from the overseas dominions. He added that this concession was confined to goods produced and manufactured in the British Empire.

Sir Richard Cooper also asked if the Government had any information that Canadian steamers were mainly carrying imports toward Great Britain from the United States. He wanted to know what steps the Government had taken to secure fair treatment for Canadian trade.

REDS WINNING AND LOSING.

Driven Back at One Point in Siberia, Gain at Another.

VLADIVOSTOK, March 11.—Information comes that the Bolsheviki have been driven back from the Pero Kungur Railway to Osa, which is stubbornly defended. East of Ufa the Siberians advanced twenty miles. In the Orenburg region the Bolsheviki captured Kanonikolska and threaten to cut off General Dutovo's army. The telegram says that he needs moral and material support in the difficult situation.

SAY BOLSHEVIKI DOMINATE MEXICO

LIKENS COUNTRY TO RUSSIA

Recent Visitor Declares Carranza Is in League with I. W. W. to Overthrow Present Order.

That unless Mexico pays her debts the Carranza Government must collapse, that the I. W. W. have a working agreement with the Carranzistas, and that Mexico is dominated by a "Bolshevistic group," were the contentions of speakers last night at a forum on Mexican affairs held by the Council on Foreign Relations in the Hotel Astor. Mark O. Prentiss of the Council, opened the discussion and then turned it over to Professor William R. Shepherd of the Department of History, Columbia University.

Professor Shepherd in his introductory remarks declared that much of the misunderstanding between this country and Mexico was the result of poor communication, and said that certain sections of the press of both countries emphasized the unfavorable, rather than the favorable, side of the news of each nation. He said that if a friendly and tolerant spirit was displayed mutually the "clearer would become the prospects for genuine and hearty co-operation."

Ramon Prida, formerly President of the Mexican Chamber of Deputies, declared that the way to help Mexico was through a sympathetic understanding of the problems of the land.

M. Garcia Aldape, formerly Secretary of the Interior of Mexico, alluded to the fact that recently a sentiment had grown stronger for armed intervention in Mexico, but this, he said, "would prove as ineffective as it is unjust."

"As a result of internal causes and external influences, the Mexican people are in the clutch of a Bolshevist group, which by intimidation and terror has substituted in the place of the genuine Mexican institutions the so-called Constitution of Queretaro. There has been fastened upon the people a rule of fierce military despotism, and there has been implanted a foreign policy which disregards Mexico's international treaties and obligations."

William Gates, recently returned from a 1,500-mile horseback tour through Mexico, and who said he had interviewed many of the Mexican leaders, declared that the condition of Mexico was parallel to the condition in Russia.

"Carranza and his people," he said, "have turned the Mexican popular revolution to their own benefit, just as Lenine has the Russian, and Mexico is in a parallel condition today to Russia. Carranza and his people are selling out Mexico to whoever will buy. On Sept. 28 in Mexico City a meeting of the syndicalists of the branch of the International I. W. W. presented a memorial to Carranza, which resulted within nineteen days in the addition to the plan, or document, drawn up what was called a 'revolutionary confederation.' I have that document in my pocket, with its various clauses proposing to overthrow the clergy, the bourgeoise, the capitalists, and the land monopolists.

"It is a case of a common international enemy. Carranzista Mexico is now interfering in our internal affairs, allied officially with the Spartacus radicals whose open purpose is to overthrow the present social order everywhere. All these things are going to be documentarily proved before long. And Carranza meanwhile comes to us for money. What is needed in Mexico is less politics and less Carranza dollar diplomacy."

GIANT GUN PLANT TO BE DISMANTLED

Government Abandons Neville Island Project and Will Turn Site Back to the Owners.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Abandonment of the Neville Island ordnance plant, planned as the largest munition factory in the world, was announced today by the War Department. Not only will construction be stopped at once, but the buildings already completed will be dismantled and the tools and machinery manufactured or nearing completion transferred to other Government arsenals or sold. The island itself, in the Ohio River near Pittsburgh, will be turned back to the original owners.

SAVAGE CRUELTY IN BERLIN STRIFE

gun into a house opposite the barracks of the Guard Regiment on Friedrichstrasse, a short distance north of Unter den Linden. From this point of vantage they opened fire on the barracks. Another squad penetrated into the newspaper district and threw hand grenades into the courtyard of the building occupied by the semi-official Wolff Bureau.

The possibility of an outbreak in the radical suburb of Spandau has been met by the Government by the disarmament of a battalion of pioneer troops whose loyalty was suspected.

The order calling off the general strike was obeyed only in part today. Nearly all the small establishments and a number of the big plants resumed work with full forces, but workmen in the factories dominated by radicals said they would not return to work until the Government troops were withdrawn from Berlin.

Encounters with troops are also reported from the Silesian coal region, where the miners' strike is spreading. The movement is partly a Polish separatist one in character, the Poles in that region having been left by the Allies on the German side of the line of demarcation fixed by the February armistice.

The miners' strike in the Hamborn-Essen region has also been resumed, the miners refusing to accept the Government's decision that they be not paid for the days when they were on strike. A collision between strikers and home guards is reported from that area.

SPARTACIDES SPREAD OUTBREAK TO SILESIA

By LEONARD SPRAY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, March 10.—The General strike in Berlin having failed, the Spartacides are now seeking to achieve their aims by a reign of terrorism in the outskirts of the city and by organizing, as before, labor outbreaks in other parts of the country.

For instance, news comes of a fresh cessation of work in the upper Silesian and other mining districts. The Bolsheviki are leading the movement in Silesia, where they are distributing pamphlets inciting the miners to sabotage and calling upon them to bring about the fall of the Ebert-Scheidemann Government.

The scene of the latest and most terrible outrage is the Lichtenberg suburb, where, after being driven from Berlin itself, the Spartacides attempted a wholesale massacre of police officials. It is at Lichtenberg that they have their headquarters and a great depot from which arms and ammunition are issued to their followers. Late on Saturday they prepared from this centre an organized attack on all the police stations, the Post Office, and the depots of the Republican Guard.

There was a massacre, as to the extent of which accounts vary. The lowest estimate of the victims is that of the Berliner Tageblatt, which has a headline: "Fifty-seven police officials shot dead in Lichtenberg." Another newspaper gives the number as 250, while the Morgenpost speaks of 200.

The most ominous feature of the business is that as soon as the massacre began a contingent of Republican Guards stationed at Lichtenberg declared itself neutral. This is further serious proof of disaffection among the Government troops, a large number of whom, in addition to the Marine Division, joined the Bolsheviki last week.

I have just been in telephonic communication with Berlin. The city is like a huge battlefield. Its centre, where many important buildings have been badly damaged by shell fire, is in occupation of Government troops and is cut off from public traffic.

In the eastern suburbs there is heavy fighting with the retreating Sparatcides, who are putting up a bitter resistance. Airplanes of both sides constantly hover over the city, those of the Government being manned by sharpshooters, who are seeking out and attacking the roof nests of the Spartacide machine gunners. The Spartacide machines are mostly bomb laden and from one of these a missile was dropped last night into a crowd gathered on Bülow Square with terrible results.

It is quite clear that all the official communiqués have minimized the seriousness of the conflict, as is shown, for instance, by the fact that this morning in the Berlin Morgue alone are 150 bodies. Another thirty lie in the garrison hospital, leaving out of account those in the suburban districts.

Another message from Berlin lays emphasis on the increasing anarchy.

"Terrorism," says the correspondent, "is increasing in an alarming manner. Never was there so much murdering, plundering, and stealing as in the last few days.

"The people in the east and north of the city are special victims of these repeated rebellions. Some in such areas, hermetically shut off, are now receiving no supplies of food, which even when sent are stolen en route. Supplies in stores and shops have mostly been plundered, so that it is being asked how these populations are to live.

"It is significant and ominous, however, that the pople in the working-class districts are more embittered against the Government than against the Spartacides and show their sympathies with the revolutionaries even when they themselves take no part in the outbreaks."

GERMANS DENOUNCE LEAGUE.

Call It Instrument of "Anglo-American World Domination."

WASHINGTON, March 11.—General opposition to the proposed League of Nations is reflected in recent German newspaper comment received by the State Department and made public today. Two of the newspapers say that the League as proposed would establish "Anglo-American world domination," while another characterizes it as "a league of arms against Germany."

Vodwärts asserts that the League "is a league of victors with the character of a trust, despite the welcome establishment of the principle of arbitration, and the treaty is pervaded with a capitalistic spirit."

The Tägliche Rundschau says that the "League simply establishes Anglo-American world domination, France, Japan and Italy being permitted to sit as neutrals."

The Germans, according to the Berlin Tageblatt, now learn that in the League of Nations covenant, "established at Paris without consultation, no attention appears to have been paid to Germany, evidently considered a second or third rate power. The covenant is a draft not of a League of Nations, but a League of Arms against Germany."

The Leipziger Tageblatt says:

"It is our misfortune that we are in a disadvantageous position regarding power; but that should not deter us from approving the erection of a league, for the cause is of too great importance for us. Our existence as a national and economic body is at stake, and this is better safeguarded within than without the League. It does not follow that we must swallow the treaty in its present form."

The Vossische Zeitung terms the treaty "a great disappointment—merely an instrument to maintain the supremacy of England and America."

AIRPLANES SOLD TO RUSSIA.

Lieut. Porten, a German, Accused of Disposing of Many of Them.

LONDON, March 11.—Lieutenant Porten, formerly an officer in the German aviation service, has been tried by court martial, according to Berlin advices received in Copenhagen and forwarded by the Central News Agency, on a charge of having sold an entire park of airplanes at Vilna to the Bolsheviki for 2,000,000 marks. The airplanes were valued at 10,000,000 marks.

Porten then fled to Königsberg and headed a conspiracy in the local Workmen's Council against the commander of the German garrison at Kovno. The plot was discovered and Porten was arrested.

EICHHORN REAPPEARS.

Reported to be Aiding Separatist Movement in Brunswick.

AMSTERDAM, March 11.—Eichhorn, the former Spartacide police chief of Berlin, who fled from the German capital in the course of the disorders there in January and who has been living under an assumed name in Brunswick, addressed a meeting of Independent Socialists in that city on Monday. It is reported that Eichhorn has been aiding a movement to establish an independent State in Brunswick.

The city of Brunswick is becoming a place of refuge for Spartacides and Independent Socialists driven from other German cities by the Government.

EX-KAISER ASKS CHANGE TO A SOFTER CLIMATE

Wants Erzberger to Tell the Allies He Would Like to Go to the Riviera or Egypt.

GENEVA, March 11, (Associated Press.)—It is reported from Basle that the former German Emperor has complained against his residence in Holland.

It is asserted that he has declared that the climate is disagreeable and that he desires to go to the Riviera or to Egypt on account of his health, and that he has requested Mathias Erzberger, head of the German Armistice Commission, to make representations to the Allies to this effect.

EX-KING NEARLY DROWNED.

William of Wuerttemberg in a Scuffle When His Yacht Is Seized.

GENEVA, March 10.—Former King William of Württemberg had a narrow escape from drowning today in a scuffle that took place when a party of German sailors from Kiel seized the ex-King's yacht on Lake Constance. The sailors took the yacht to use it for a fishing boat.

CLASHES AT O'LEARY TRIAL.

Government's Attempt to Introduce New Evidence Fought by Defense.

The attempt of the Government to introduce new testimony in its case against Jeremiah A. O'Leary, on trial in the Federal Court, charged with violation of the Espionage act, aroused the ire of O'Leary and his counsel yesterday and led to many clashes with the prosecution.

The Government has declared its case closed and the defense charged that the Government was resorting to unfair methods. Judge A. N. Hand sustained many of the objections of the defense and several witnesses, called by the Government, were not allowed to testify.

During one of his protests O'Leary said that a university professor from Syracuse had stated before a Congressional committee that O'Leary had received $250,000 of German gold.

"I am going to take care of that man when I get out of here!" O'Leary cried.

After a long argument Eugenia Geerloffs was permitted to occupy the witness chair long enough to identify a photograph of W. J. Robinson, under indictment for treason. She said she had met Robinson on the steamship Ryndam on a voyage from Rotterdam to New York. Robinson is accused of having been a messenger in the interests of Mme. Victorica, the German spy.

One woman was called by the Government to corroborate testimony given by Mrs. Manuel Gonzalez, wife of a former Consul from Costa Rica, that a meeting held in Lexington Avenue in the Summer of 1917 was in a room practically sealed, and that only Irishmen were admitted. But the testimony was not allowed. The defense has contended that the meeting was only for the purpose of preparing a card index of persons interested in an Irish bazaar.

The trial will be continued today.

UPHOLDS WORLD COUNCIL

Declares There Can Be No Transfer of Sovereignty Without Consent of Congress.

Taking up the assertions of Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania against the League of Nations as proposed, ex-President William H. Taft, speaking last night at the forty-seventh meeting and dinner of the Economic Club of New York at the Hotel Astor, declared that the Senator's arguments not only fell flat but that his proposals would involve the United States in as much war "and in as great a transfer of sovereignty as he charges this covenant with doing."

The other speakers were Henry van Dyke, former Minister to Holland, and Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey. The latter was Chairman of the meeting. More than 1,500 men and women were present, and it was announced that the attendance was larger than that at any meeting in the twelve years' existence of the club.

Mr. van Dyke spoke on the moral responsibility of America in the League of Nations and declared that while the proposed covenant might be amended, as there was nothing sacred about it, yet it ought not to be amended so that it would become "a spineless, toothless, puny thing for the scrap heap." This sentiment was received with applause.

Mr. Taft arose after Mr. Morgenthau had called for "Three cheers for the ex-President, for the President, and for the next President, and I think we are cheering for only two people." The cheers were given, and when Mr. Taft arose to speak he was greeted with great applause.

The points on which Mr. Taft dwelt at length were the assertions of Mr. Knox that the League covenant was in conflict with the Constitution of the United States; that it delegated to the Executive Council power to make war for us and to fix a limit to our armaments; that it involved us as a mandatory in all sorts of duties in the management of backward peoples, and that it transfers the sovereignty of the United States to the governing body of the League. Mr. Taft said in part:

Mr. Taft's Address.

Senator Knox has presented a formidable indictment against the proposed covenant of the League of Nations. A number of his colleagues seem to have accepted his views as to its meaning. He says that it is unconstitutional in that it turns over to the Executive Council of the League the power to declare and make war for us, to fix our armament, and to involve us as a mandatory in all sorts of duties in the management of backward peoples. He says that it thus transfers the sovereignty of this nation to the governing body of the League, which he asserts the Executive Council to be.

"When Senator Knox's attack upon the validity of the covenant is analyzed it will be seen to rest on an assumption that the Executive Council is given executive powers which are unwarranted by the text of the covenant. The whole function of the Executive Council is to be the medium through which the League members are to exchange views, the advisory board to consider all matters arising in the field of the League's possible action and to advise the members as to what they ought by joint action to do. The council makes few if any orders binding on the members of the League. After a member of the League has agreed not to exceed a limit of armament the Executive Council must consent to raising the limit. Where the Executive Council acts as a mediating and inquiring body to settle differences not arbitrated its unanimous recommendation of a settlement must satisfy the nation seeking relief if the defendant nation complies with the recommendation.

"These are the only cases in which the United States, as a member of the League, would be bound by action of the Executive Council. All other obligations of the United States under the League are to be found in the covenants of the League, and not in any action of the Executive Council. When this is understood clearly, the whole structure of Senator Knox's indictment falls. The Executive Council is a most necessary and useful body for co-ordinating the activities of the League, for initiating consideration by the members of the League of their proper joint and individual action, and for keeping all advised of the progress of events in the field of the League jurisdiction.

Council Only Recommends.

"It is impossible in the time I have to follow through Senator Knox's argument in all the articles of the League. But his treatment of Article XVI. is a fair illustration of the reasons he advances for ascribing to the Executive Council supersovereign power. Article XVI. is the penalizing section. Whenever a member of the League violates its covenant not to make war under Article XII., it is an act of war against the other members, and they are to levy a boycott against the outlaw nation. There is in the covenant no covenant or agreement by them to make war. An act of war does not produce a state of war unless the nation acted against chooses to declare and wage war on account of it. The Executive Council is given the duty of recommending what forces should be furnished by members of the League to protect the covenants of the League. The members are required to allow military forces of members of the League co-operating to protect the covenants passage through their territory. Of this article Senator Knox says:

"'If any of the high contracting parties breaks its covenant under Article XII, then we must fly to arms to protect the covenants.' Again he says of it: 'Whether or not we participate, and the amount of our participation in belligerent operations is determined not by ourselves but by the Executive Council in which we have seemingly, at most, but one voice out of nine, no matter what we think of the controversy, no matter how we view the wisdom of a war over the cause, we are bound to go to war when and in the manner the Executive Council determines.' Again Senator Knox says the power of the Executive Council is that of 'recommending what effective military or naval forces each member of the League shall contribute to protect the covenants of the League, not only against League members but non-League members, that is, as a practical matter, the power to declare war.'

"I submit in all fairness that there never was a more palpable non sequitur than this. I venture to think that were Senator Knox charged as Secretary of State with construing the obligation of the United States under this covenant, he would on behalf of the United States summarily reject such a construction.

"By what manner of reasoning can the word 'recommend' be converted into a word of direction or command? Yet upon this interpretation of the meaning of the words 'recommend,' 'advise,' and words of like import as they occur in many articles, depends his whole argument as to the powers of the Executive Council under the covenant and their super-sovereign charter.

"Senator Knox contends that the plan of the League will create two Leagues—one of the Allies and one of the outcast nations. The covenant provides for a protocol to invite in all nations responsible and fit for membership. Certainly Germany and the other enemy countries ought not now to be taken in, but they ought to be kept under control. The League wishes to prevent war in the world and realizes, of course, that excluded nations are quite as likely to make war as their own members. The covenant therefore declares the concern of the League in threatened war between nations whether members or not and asserts its right to take steps to prevent it. This declaration is made as the justification for Article XVII., by which a nation or nations not members of the League who threaten war are invited to become temporary members of the League in order to enable them to settle their disputes peaceably as permanent members covenant to do. These temporary members are visited with the same penalties for acts which would be by permanent members breaches of their covenants not to begin war. Thus the scope of the League's action is extended to all nations.

"This is the explanation and the purport of Article XI. and Article XVII. They involve the whole world in the covenants of the League not to make war. They operate to defeat the formation and warlike organization of a rival league of nations not admitted as permanent members to this League. They unite the rest of the world against such nations in any case of war threatened by them.

"There is no supreme court to construe this covenant and bind the members, and each nation, in determining its own obligations and action under it, must construe it for itself. Our duties under it are not to be declared and enforced against us by a hostile tribunal or by one actuated by different principles and spirit from our own. Its whole strength is to rest in an agreed interpretation by all. Its sanction must be in the good sense of the covenanting nations who know that, in order that it may hold together and serve its purpose, they must all be reasonable in their construction. What rules of interpretation should and must we, therefore, apply?

The Treaty-Making Power.

"The President and Senate are to ratify this covenant, if it be ratified, by virtue of their constitutional power to make treaties. This power, as the Supreme Court has held, enables them to bind the United States to a contract with another nation on any subject matter usually the subject matter of treaties between nations, subject to the limitation that the treaty may not change the form of government of the United States, and may not part with territory belonging to a State of the United States without the consent of the State. The making of war, of embargoes, of armament, and of arbitration is frequent subject matter of treaties. The President and Senate may not, however, confer on any body constituted by a League of Nations the power and function to do anything for the United States which is vested by the Federal Constitution in Congress, the treaty-making power, or any other branch of the United States Government. It, therefore, follows that whenever the treaty-making power bind the United States to do anything it must be done by the branch of the Government vested by the Constitution with that function.

"A treaty may bind the United States to make or not make war in any specific contingency; it may bind the United States to levy a boycott, to limit its armament to a fixed amount; it may bind the United States to submit a difference or a class of differences to arbitration; but the only way in which the United States can perform the agreement is for Congress to fulfill the promise to declare and make war; for Congress to perform the obligation to levy a boycott; for Congress to fix or reduce armament in accord with the contract; and for the President and Senate, as the treaty-making power, to formulate the issues to be arbitrated and agree with the opposing nation on the character of the court. When the treaty provides that the obligation arises upon a breach of a covenant, and does not make the question of the breach conclusively determinable by any body or tribunal, then it is for Congress itself to decide in good faith whether or not the breach of the covenant upon which the obligation arises has in fact occurred, and, finding that, it has to perform the obligation. These plain limitations upon the Federal treaty-making power are known to nations of this conference, and any treaty of the United States is to be construed in the light of them. Following these necessary rules of construction, the provisions of the covenant entirely and easily conform to the Constitution of the United States. They lose altogether that threatening and dangerous character and effect which Senator Knox and other critics would attach to them. They delegate to no body but to our own Federal constitutional agencies the duty of deciding in good faith what our obligations under the covenant are, when they become immediate, the appropriate means and method by which they are to be performed, and the performance of them.

"By the first article the action of the high contracting parties under the covenant are to be 'effected through the instrumentality of a meeting of a body of delegates representing the high contracting parties, of meetings at more frequent intervals of an Executive Council, and of a permanent international secretariat.'

"This means only that when the high contracting parties wish to take joint action it is to be taken through such meetings. This does not vest these bodies with power except as it is especially described in the succeeding articles. The unusual phrase 'effected through the instrumentality of meetings of' means what it says. It does not confer authority on the body of delegates or the Executive Council, but only designates the way in which the high contracting parties shall through their representatives express their joint agreement and take action. On this head Lord Robert Cecil, who had much to do with formulating the covenant, made an illuminating remark in his address following the report by the Committee of the Covenant to the Conference. He said: 'Secondly, we have laid down (and this is the very great principle of the delegates, except in very special cases and for very special reasons which are set out in the covenant) that all action must be unanimously agreed to in accordance with the general rule that governs international relations. That this will to some extent, in appearance at any rate, militate against the rapidity of action of the organs of the League, is undoubted. In my judgment that defect is far more than compensated by the confidence that it will inspire that no nation, whether small or great, need fear oppression from the organs of the League.' This interpretation by one of the most distinguished draftsmen of the League shows that all its language, reasonably construed, delegates no power to these bodies to act for the League and its members without their unanimous concurrence, unless the words used make such delegation clear.

No Power Taken from Congress.

"Article VIII. provides that the Executive Council shall determine for the consideration and action of the several Governments what military equipment and armament is fair and reasonable in proportion to the scale of force laid down in the program of disarmament formulated by it, and these limits, when adopted, shall not be exceeded without the permission of the Executive Council. This leaves wholly to the Governments the acceptance or rejection of the proposed limitation. Senator Knox says that as this recommendation will be made with the consent of our representative on the Council, we shall be in honor bound to accept the limit and bind ourselves. It is difficult to follow this reasoning. The body which is to accept the limitation is the Congress of the United States. Why should the Congress of the United States be bound by a representative selected by the President to represent the United States in this function in respect to a matter of great importance under the control of Congress?

That the United States should recognize the wisdom of a reduction of armament under a world plan for it seems manifest. The history of competitive armaments, with its dreadful sequel, is too fresh in the minds of the peoples of the world not to recognize the wisdom of an agreed reduction. If we have an agreed reduction, then there must be some limit to which the Governments agree to submit. If the nations of Europe are content to bind themselves to a limitation with so many dangerous neighbors, why should we hesitate to help this world movement? There is not the slightest possibility that we will wish to exceed the limit proposed. Our national failing has been not to maintain enough armament. The argument of Mr. Knox involves the conclusion that the United States cannot enter into any agreement not to exceed a certain limit of armament. Since 1817 we have agreed by treaty with Great Britain not to have warships on the lakes. The validity of that treaty has never been contested. There are other treaties of the same tenor. It is true that in the treaty of 1817 either party is able to withdraw from the treaty after a year's notice, but the principle would be the same whether it was a year or ten years. I quite agree that a period should be fixed either for expiration of the obligation or a withdrawal therefrom by a reasonable notice; but that we should have such an agreement it seems to me goes without saying, and I don't know anybody better able to make a just recommendation for our consideration than the Executive Council.

"Senator Knox conceives that there will be thrown upon the United States obligations in respect to the backward countries in Turkey and in Africa which formerly belonged to the Central Powers, because it would be obliged to govern as a mandatary under direction of the Executive Council, and that the Executive Council might require the sending of American troops to these distant lands to die in an unwholesome climate and to expose themselves to all sorts of dangers in remote countries. It is a sufficient answer to this to say that there is no obligation on the part of the United States to accept obligations as a mandatary. It does not covenant to do so, and it is not likely to do so. If it did, it would manage the country over which it was a mandatary with the fullest discretion. The high contracting parties would lay down rules in advance, or the Executive Council would grant a charter under which the mandatary would discharge its trust, but the United States not being obliged to act as a mandatary could decline to accept any charter to which it objected. A mandatary is required to make a report at the end of a year to show that it has conformed to the limitations of the trust, but there is no power on the part of the Executive Council to direct the campaigns of a mandatary or to compel its armies to go into the dangers so eloquently pictured by Senator Knox.

"Senator Knox objects to the provision that no treaties made by members of the League shall have effect until after they have been registered in the office of the League. He says this is contrary to the constitution, because treaties are to take effect when ratified by the Senate and proclaimed by the President. This objection is not very formidable. All this requires is that the United States shall provide in every one of its future treaties that it will not take effect until the treaty is registered in the Secretariat of the League. Certainly an agreement on the part of the United States and the nation with whom it is making a treaty as to conditions upon which it shall take effect are not in violation of the constitutional requirement to which Senator Knox refers.

Sovereignty Not Transferred.

"If, as it seems clear from a consideration of the language already examined and of all the other language that refers to the Executive Council, there is no delegation of constitutional functions to that council by the United States in entering the League, the whole argument of Senator Knox with reference to a transfer of sovereignty falls. The United States merely makes agreements which it has the right to make under the treaty-making power, and these agreements are to be performed by its constitutional agencies. Those agencies are merely limited by the contracts of the Government, and retain their power to dishonor such contracts if they choose, although we would hope they would not. As long as all the branches of the Government function as the Constitution requires, with the discretion fixed in them by that instrument, the form of the Government is not changed and the sovereignty is not given up. In the proper and true sense a lawful contract does not interfere with the liberty of the individual or the sovereignty of a nation when fully and freely entered into. This League does not intend to curtail the sovereignty of the United States. The sovereignty of the United States is a sovereignty consistent with the sovereignty of every other nation. It should be a sovereignty limited by international law and international morality. The League only furnishes the machinery by which this equal and just sovereignty among the nations may be preserved. It furnishes for that preservation the sanction of a loose agreement between the nations under which the united forces of the nations may be directed to restraining the abuses of sovereignty by any nation.

"Senator Knox criticises the League because it recognizes the possibility of war and proposes to use war to end war. Certainly there is no means of suppressing lawless violence but by lawful force, and any league which makes no provision for that method and recognizes its validity would be futile. He points out that the plan of the League is not war proof, and that war may come in spite of it. Then he describes the kind of League which he would frame in which he provides a League which will involve the United States in quite as much war and in just as great a transfer of its sovereignty as he charges this covenant with doing. He proposes to have compulsory arbitration before an international court of international differences, excluding questions of policy. His court would not settle all differences likely to lead to war for questions of policy, however, because nonjusticiable are just as likely to produce war as questions which are justiciable. Then he would declare war a crime, and any nation engaged in it other than in self-defense, should be punished as an international criminal. Would not punishing a nation as a criminal be likely to involve war? The court would have the right to call on powers constituting the League to enforce its decrees and awards by force and economic pressure. It would be difficult to state a League more completely transferring sovereignty to an outside body and giving it power to involve us in war than the plan of Senator Knox. It is far more drastic and ambitious and derogates much more from national control than anything in this League. In contrast with it the present League is modest.

"The supporters of the present covenant do not profess that it is a perfect instrument. It does not profess to abolish war. It only adopts a somewhat crude machinery for making war improbable, and it furnishes a basis for the union of nations by which if they are so minded they can protect themselves against the recurrence of the disaster of such a war as that with which Europe has been devastated during the last four years. Experience under the League will doubtless suggest many improvements. But it is the first step that counts. Let us take it now when the whole world is yearning for it."

LODGE-LOWELL DEBATE SEATS AT A PREMIUM

Wide Range of Discussion Will Be Permitted Under Stated Arrangements.

BOSTON, March 11.—Applications for tickets to Symphony Hall on the evening of March 19, when Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University will discuss the proposed League of Nations, were made today for the greater part of the 2,500 seats available.

The committee of arrangements is made up of Louis A. Coolidge and former State Senator Robert M. Washburn, representing Senator Lodge, and the Rev. Edward Cummings, Secretary of the New World Peace Foundation, and a fourth man, still to be named, representing President Lowell.

The debate will be of wide latitude instead of on a precisely worded question. Senator Lodge said today that his theme would be as set forth in his letter of acceptance to President Lowell: "The plan for the League of Nations agreed upon by the commission of the Peace Conference which has lately been published in this country."

Senator Lodge will speak twice and Dr. Lowell once, each occupying the same time. Senator Lodge will first speak for an hour, when Dr. Lowell will speak for an hour and a half in support of the covenant as championed by President Wilson. Senator Lodge will [illegible] have a half hour for reply.

WILL ASK POPULAR VOTE ON LEAGUE

REPORTS PUBLIC OPPOSED

To Demand Open Session on Ratification—Still Against Penrose as Finance Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—On his return to Washington today after a week of stump-speaking against the League of Nations in New York, Brooklyn, Boston and other cities, Senator Borah of Idaho declared he had found that the people of the country are awakening to a feeling that the League, as adopted at the Paris Conference, ought not to be accepted by the Senate, either as a part of the treaty of peace or independently.

He described the attitude of the crowds before whom he spoke as being opposed to the League because it put the United States in dangerous, entangling alliances. His declaration that the League surrendered the sovereignty of the United States, he said, was applauded everywhere. In no city, he said, did he detect any resentment against the efforts of himself and other antagonists of the League to defeat it when it comes up in the Senate.

"The greatest thing that confronts the Republican Party right now is that it accepts no compromise on the League of Nations," said Mr. Borah. "If it does, the party will destroy itself. The people demand our immediate withdrawal from European affairs. They do not want entangling alliances.

"They have awakened to a keen sense of realization that this League of Nations idea means the sacrifice of the sovereignty, the independence of America in its affairs with other nations. This they will not tolerate. I have found out the temper of the people on my trip, and I know the League of Nations does not strike a responsive chord with them."

He spoke bitterly of any attempt at compromise by Republicans in the Senate.

"I intend to do some plain talking to my Republican colleagues, who appear to think the way to meet this question is to compromise," he remarked.

The Idaho Senator will resume his stumping trip on Saturday, speaking that night at Troy. On Sunday he will speak at Rochester. After that he will turn westward and speak in the cities visited by former President Taft in his recent "swing-around-the-circle."

Senator Borah will find woman suffragists after him when he starts on his next trip, they having announced this week that they would interrupt every meeting at which he spoke. This is in revenge for his refusal to support the woman suffrage amendment to the Constitution when it came up the last time in the Senate for vote and when one more vote would have carried it.

Mr. Borah said he intended to offer a bill in the Senate as soon as Congress reconvenes providing for a nation-wide referendum on the League. He believes advocates of the League will not dare oppose it. In his speeches Mr. Borah is contending that the people will have no say whatever in the relations of America with other nations, once the League of Nations is in effect. If the people sufficiently realized that the United States would turn over the entire regulation of affairs with other nations to those nations themselves, he said, the whole country would be opposed to the covenant in its entirety. He believed the people would embrace an opportunity to express their opinion by ballot and that the referendum idea would find responsiveness throughout the nation.

Senator Borah also allowed it to be known today that he would fight in the Senate to have the peace treaty discussed in open session when it comes up for ratification. He takes the ground that there has already been too much secrecy about the proceedings leading up to the League of Nations project, and that the people will not be satisfied without knowing precisely what it is and what arguments are advanced for it.

At the Capitol it was stated today that Senator Lodge, who will be Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee in the new Senate, favors Mr. Borah's attitude for open sessions on the Peace Treaty and all matters related to it.

Senator Borah said tonight, regarding a report published in New York, that he had abandoned his opposition to the election of Senator Penrose as Chairman of the Finance Committee in the reorganization of the new Senate, so as to bring about solidarity of Republican support against the League of Nations:

"There is no change in my attitude regarding the Chairmanship of the Finance Committee."

"You will still oppose Senator Penrose?" was asked.

"My reply simply is that there is no change in the situation," answered Senator Borah.

There is a well-defined impression at the Capitol that the fight against Mr. Penrose is at an end and that he will get the Finance Committee Chairmanship.

WANTS LEAGUE MODIFIED.

Senator Calder Declares Compact Has Objectionable Features.

United States Senator William M. Calder, addressing the Kings County Republican Committee in the Johnston Building in Brooklyn last night, declared himself in favor of a League of Nations, but insisted that the proposed Constitution of the League must be modified to do away with features which, he said, were objectionable. Senator Calder's criticisms of the proposed constitution followed closely those made by Senator Knox and other Republicans in recent Senate discussions of the League. He feared that the League would be empowered to control immigration into America, to regulate the size of our army and navy, and to involve us in European and Far Eastern broils.

WOMEN OPPOSE LEAGUE.

Republican Club Members to Send Resolutions to Every Senator.

Following addresses by Francis A. Winslow and Francis A. Bangs, the Women's Republican Club, at its regular meeting in the Republican clubhouse, 54 West Fortieth Street, yesterday, adopted a resolution objecting to the constitution of the League of Nations. The resolution read:

"Resolved that it is the unanimous vote of the Women's Republican Club that the sovereignty of the United States and the Monroe Doctrine be preserved in their integrity and that we regard the constitution of the League of Nations, as presented to this country by the President of the United States, as a menace to our republican form of Government."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to every United States Senator.

Mr. Bangs spoke scathingly of the "covenant."

"We did not go into this war for ideals," he said. "We went into it to save ourselves, and we want to have peace to save ourselves. Our sons fought with a new spirit, for they didn't propose to stop and go home until they had licked the man in front and made peace possible. We have been led to think the League of Nations is the idea of Woodrow Wilson. It has been in the mind of publicists for years. It even penetrated the head of the Czar of Russia, and he called the conference of The Hague which led to the erection of the grotesque but beautiful Palace of Peace.

"Woodrow Wilson says the Monroe Doctrine is spread all over the world like a pat of butter on a slice of bread. It can't be spread; it is intended only to keep peace here. We are putting ourselves in a position where we can be out-voted and lose our own privileges in the name of humanity and internationalism. What can we do for humanity better than keeping the peace? Internationalism is a reduction of all nations to one dead level of militant mediocrity. We must accept without discussion a paper framed not by Americans or according to American traditions, if Wilson speaks the truth."

WYOMING PLANS REFERENDUM

May Take a Vote on League on April 22.

Special to The New York Times.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 11.—Wyoming plans to be the first State to hold a referendum on the formation of a League of Nations, unless Governor Carey, now in the East, vetoes the proposition.

The State holds a special election April 22 to vote on the issuance of $3,000,000 in highway bonds, and it is proposed to have a separate ballot printed for electors to express their views for or against the proposed League.

Ours is the nation most influential in the League, and most powerful because most disinterested. Its people should help by free and frank discussion to perfect the League. The President has done the best he could, but he will be aided by intelligent criticism from those friendly to the idea.

U. S. Should Have More Votes.

"I venture to point out certain amendments that should in my judgment be made in the interest of a stronger and better League. First, the basis of representation is not fair to the United States. A comparison of voting strength will show that while our nation is the most powerful in the combination, whether measured by population, wealth, or moral influence, it has no larger vote than nations much inferior in population, wealth, and influence. This inequality ought, if possible, to be corrected, for justice is the only foundation upon which any institution can rest in permanent security.

"Second, the terms of admission to nations that may desire to join hereafter are not fair. To require a two-thirds vote to admit a new nation suggests the social club, where a few blackballs may keep out an uncongenial applicant. This world League is for the world. The President has well said that our nation is not interested in a League unless all nations are in it. The qualification for admission ought to be fixed, and then it ought to be made as easy as possible for those who are qualified to gain admission. Under no circumstances should the consent of more than a majority be required for the admission of any qualified nation.

"The faults of the Constitution are found to be in its indefiniteness rather than in things positively objectionable. For instance, it is not stated with sufficient clearness that the Monroe Doctrine is preserved. Our nation is not asking to be permitted to assist in the settlement of European disputes, and therefore it ought not to be asked to give up its paramount influence in the Western Hemisphere as a condition precedent to its entry into the League. Then, too, it is not stated with sufficient clearness that a League member is not required to become a mandatory. It ought to be definitely stated that a nation asked to become a mandatory is at liberty to accept or decline. Again, it should be made clear that the League is not to interfere in the internal affairs of the nations belonging to the League. The League is for the settlement of international disputes, not for the adjustment of differences between a nation and its own people.

"Another matter that should be made clear—and nothing can be more important than this—is that each nation has a right to decide for itself whether it will undertake the things advised by the General Council. The language of the Constitution, while not definite, would seem to indicate that no nation is required to furnish force to back up a decision of the council. But no doubt should be left on this subject. This nation cannot afford to allow a council in which it has so small a voice to carry it into war against its will. Our people will have as much sense when the time comes to act as they have now, and they will have more light to guide them. When the emergency arises, and they understand all the circumstances and conditions, they may be willing to assist by force; but they cannot decide in advance and allow a council to decide for them.

Boycotts and Expansion.

"The Constitution of the League would seem to imply the right of the council to compel the declaration of an economic boycott by the members of the League. This is not quite so serious as the declaration of war, but economic boycott is likely to develop into a war and an economic boycott may be pecuniarily advantageous to the nations that want to declare it. Our interests may not be identical in this respect, and we ought to have a right to say at the time whether we would declare such a boycott.

"I venture to suggest that the scope of the League's work might well be extended beyond what is now contemplated. A substitute for war must be able to deal with every situation that can become a cause of war. One of the most fruitful causes of war has been the necessity for expansion. Growing nations feeling the necessity for more room have often gone to war on some clumsy pretext when the real purpose has been to secure territory for an increasing population. The right to live is one of the inalienable rights. It is a primal right that must be recognized in nations as well as individuals.

"Nations exercise the right of taking unused land and distributing it among those who need it. So, if the League of Nations is to substitute reason for war, it must be able to deal with claims that are made for the waste places of the earth. A nation feeling a need for more territory should be able to go before the League and present its claims, and point out the territory which it can use to advantage. The Council should consider the claim and advise upon it, and the force of public opinion should be used to secure such an adjustment of equities as would afford a peaceable means of securing needed territory. Such adjustments could be made the easier if the League indorsed the proposition that any nation extending its sovereignty over new territory should stand ready to purchase the property of residents who do not desire to remain under the new sovereignty. The resident does not go with the land. He has rights independent and superior to the right to the land. If against his will, he is brought under new soverignty, he ought to be able to sell his property without loss, and choose a sovereignty of his own liking.

"I have suggested what seemed to me to be desirable changes, some being modifications, some being merely more explicit statements. I conclude as I began, that while we should endeavor to make the League as nearly perfect as possible, we should not allow its imperfections to lead to its rejection. We must take risks, no matter whether we accept the League or reject it. The risks that we take in accepting it are less than the risk we take if we reject it and turn back to the old ways of blood and slaughter. God grant that those who are intrusted with the launching of this great work may have the wisdom to so purge it of selfishness and greed and so infuse into it the spirit of the Prince of Peace as to make it the end of war."

THREATS IN ALBANY OF LABOR REVOLT

Aldermen and Union Leaders Take Menacing Attitude to Assembly Codes Committee.

BECKERMAN IS RULED OUT

West Virginia Legislature Is Threatened by Miners If It Passes Patrol Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 11.—Thinly veiled threats of serious labor disturbances to come were frequent at a hearing before the Assembly Codes Committee this afternoon on two bills introduced by Assemblymen August Claessens of New York and Charles Solomon of Kings, both Socialists.

The Claessens bill makes the hiring of armed guards by employers for the protection of their property during strikes a penal offense. The Solomon bill brings under the provisions of the penal law advertisements for men to take the place of strikers where these do not specifically set forth that the men are wanted for strikebreaking purposes.

A dozen or more representatives of labor organizations appeared to advocate the enactment of the bills. Members of the Codes Committee took exception to the arrogance and general attitude of some of the spokesmen for labor and there was tension in the air from the moment the hearing got under way. The trouble came to a head when A. I. Beckerman, Socialist Alderman from the Sixth District in Manhattan, was speaking. It ended by Alderman Beckerman being ruled off the floor and prevented from concluding his remarks for refusing pointblank to answer either in the affirmative or negative a question put to him by Assemblyman Caesar B. Barra of the Second New York District.

Mr. Beckerman had already had a controversy with Assemblyman Franklin A. Coles of Nassau County over his differentiation between "honest" workmen and "scabs." He started out by prognosticating industrial troubles.

"I do not see how the committee very well can refuse to report these bills favorably," said the Alderman, "especially in view of the fact that there already is a great deal of unemployment and industrial unrest, and I think the committee will agree with me when I say that things are going to grow much worse."

"Is this a threat?" asked Assemblyman Barra.

"No, only a word of friendly warning," said the Alderman with a wry grin.

It was at this point that Mr. Beckerman, in discussing the Solomon bill, began to differentiate between "honest" workers and "scabs." Assemblyman Coles stopped him abruptly, and said that he would not accept that definition, that he regarded as "honest" any worker who did his duty to his country, his family, and his employer.

"A man may be perfectly honest, even if he does not happen to belong to the organization that you represent," suggested Mr. Coles.

"You do not understand the psychology of this thing at all," was Alderman Beckerman's quick retort. "An honest worker regards a 'scab' very much as a decent woman regards a woman of the street, only worse."

"So that in your opinion a man may be a good worker and a good citizen, upright in all his dealings with his fellow men, and yet any useless loafer should he belong to a labor organization would in your opinion be more honest and compare with the other fellow as a decent woman compares with a woman of the street; answer that question, yes or no."

Alderman Beckerman said he was not prepared to answer that question in just that way. Then Assemblyman Wilfred L. Youker of Brooklyn moved that for his refusal to respond, Mr. Beckerman be denied the privilege of further addressing the committee.

Half a dozen of the labor men present were on their feet protesting, but Assemblyman Duke of Allegany, Chairmon of the committee, called for the next speaker.

Several men with Irish names, a majority of these representing machinists' organizations, had spoken in favor of the bills. This prompted Assemblyman Thomas F. Curley of Richmond to take the floor.

Mr. Cleassens in commenting upon the show of feeling at the hearing, said in addressing the committee:

"You have seen but a little of the fires that are burning in the volcano on which we now live. You will soon witness an eruption and had better adjust yourselves to the change of temperature. Something has been said here about capital and labor putting their feet under the same table and talking over their differences. I regret to say that the time has gone by when that thought can be realized."

CHARLESTON, West Va., March 11.—Threats of armed resistance against "the ruling classes of this State," contained in resolutions adopted by Miners' Unions of Districts 17 and 29 were read into the Senate Journal on the first day of the extra session of the State Legislature, convened today for the purpose of enacting a State patrol law.

The resolution menaces the Governor and Legislature if the bill becomes a law and the miners have gone on record assaying they would "not hesitate for a moment to take up arms and resist enforcement of the Red Flag bill."

In part the resolution reads:

"In the event that war righteous protestations and our desire for peace, order, and harmony as citizens of West Virginia is ignored by the law-making powers of West Virginia and that these bills are enacted into law and are upheld by the courts of the State, we hereby serve notice on the ruling class of this State that whereas labor, by the might of its arm stands fourteen to one, our only means of warfare either offensive or defensive is the strike.

"But as a final arbiter of the rights of public assemblage, free speech, and a free and uncensored press, we will not for a single moment hesitate to meet our enemies upon the battlefields, and there amid the roar of cannon and the groans of the dying and the crash of systems purchase again our birthright of blood-bought freedom."

"DEMANDS" MADE IN BUFFALO

But There Is No Alarm or Disposition to Call Troops.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, March 11.—Reports of threatened riots by unemployed in Buffalo and the summoning of State troops to suppress the mobs caused amusement here today. There has been no danger of serious trouble at any time, and the police are confident that they can handle any emergency that may arise.

Late last week there appeared a "manifesto" voicing the demands of what was styled the Workers', Soldiers', Sailors', and Farmers' Council of Buffalo and Erie County. This document set forth these "immediate demands":

"1. Reduce the working hours in all industries, with the exception of railway crews, to four hours a day, without reducing wages.

"2. No rent shall be collected from families or individuals out of employment.

"3. No taxes or interest shall be collected from private families while out of employment.

"4. That the City Council provide the Workers', Soldiers', Sailors', and Farmers' Council with office and necessary facilities required to do justice to problems of unemployment.

"5. That the City Council advise the proper department to open the public halls (Broadway Auditorium and Elmwood Music Hall) to be used by the council for public meetings on the industrial problems of unemployment."

As the "ultimate demands" of the council these were stated:

"1. The only solution to prevent a nation-wide revolution is to make provisions for plans to socialize all industries of America.

"2. A nation-wide call to be issued to all workers to organize on the same plan as the Buffalo Soldiers' and Workmen's Council."

The manifest also carried a call for the unemployed to assemble on Monday, March 10, at the McKinley monument and march to the Broadway Auditorium, where speakers would address the crowd. Plans for this meeting were blocked when the City Council refused to permit the use of the auditorium or issue a permit for holding the parade. The agitation is generally regarded here as being a political move of the Socialists. The unemployment situation in Buffalo is not critical.

The New York Guard has not been ordered mobilized for service in stemming radicalism in Buffalo, declared Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer, commanding the First Brigade, yesterday, although the city regiments are being put in shape for any emergency which might arise. Dr. George W. Kirchwey, Federal Director of Employment for New York State, attributed the Buffalo disturbances to unemployment and predicted that other and worse outbreaks might be expected unless the problem of the man out of work was dealt with more fully.

SEIZES DUTCH BOATS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, March 10.—According to a report reaching the Nieuwe Courant from Dutch owners who have boats in Belgium, the Belgian authorities in Brussels and Antwerp have seized Dutch inland shipping, on the ground of "the right of angaria of 1835."

According to this rule of international law, the Belgians have the right to requisition means of transport, munitions, arms, and war provisions. Until 1870 this right was treated as obsolete, but Germany and England have availed themselves of it since then, and the Belgians now cite the precedents.

The editor of one of the largest Dutch papers, speaking to THE TIMES correspondent, said that he did not consider it an unfriendly act or one relating to the present territorial dispute between the two countries, but merely a consequence of the great lack of means of transport in Belgium.

Up to a late hour tonight the Foreign Office had no information on the subject.

Estimate That Channel Tube Could Be Finished in Five Years.

LONDON, March 11.—Five years would be required to complete the proposed tunnel under the English Channel from England to France, according to an authoritative estimate.

It is said that in ordinary times the cost of the work would be about £16,000,000, but, in view of the increased cost of labor and materials, the expense involved under present conditions, would be nearly £20,000,000.

QUESTION RULING ON SURTAX RATE

BASIS NOT CLEAR IN LAW

COURT CONTEST EXPECTED

If Decided Against Commissioner's Ruling Millions Would Have to be Refunded.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Under the Treasury Department's construction and application of the new $6,000,000,000 war revenue law it is the purpose of Internal Revenue officers to make taxable under the new 1918 rates all dividends, whether cash or stock. received by the taxpayer during 1918, with a single exception.

The one exception relates only to certain classes of stock dividends, two classes, to be more exact, which will be surtaxed at the earlier surtax rates, although the accumulations of these particular excepted classes of stock dividends will be added to the peak of the taxpayer's 1918 income for the purpose of determining what particular surtax rate for 1917, 1916, or other year prior to 1918 shall be levied. The decision of the Treasury Department is that income which is taxable at rates for 1917 is, for purposes of determining the surtax rates to be made applicable, added to the peak of the 1918 income, and that it should not be added to the peak of the 1917 income.

"These are the only two exceptions applicable to dividends," said one of the Treasury experts with whom THE TIMES representative discussed the matter. "All other dividends received during 1918—whether cash or stock—are taxable at the 1918 rates. The reason for this is found in Section 213, which provides that the amount of all such dividends shall be included in the gross income of the taxpayer for the taxable year 'in which received by the taxpayer.' The only exceptions are those found in Paragraph D of Section 201 of the law, which makes the two exceptions in favor of certain classes of stock dividends.

Commissioner Roper and his experts hold that this income should be added to the peak of the 1918 income under authority of Section 206 of the war revenue law, which deals with parts of income subject to rates for different years, and reads:

"Section 206—That whenever parts of a taxpayer's income are subject to rates for different calendar years, the part subject to the rates for the most recent calendar year shall be placed in the lower brackets of the rate schedule provided in this title, the part subject to the rates for the next preceding calendar year shall be placed in the next higher brackets of the rate schedule applicable to that year, and so on until the entire net income has been accounted for."

The Surtax on Cash Dividends.

The attention of the Treasury experts was drawn today to Income Tax Blank 1,040, for individual incomes exceeding $5,000. Item 12 of this blank read: "State amount of stock dividends received by (or accrued to) you directly during the year, declared from the earnings of domestic or resident corporations, accumulated since Feb. 28, 1913, and prior to Jan. 1, 1918." The Treasury officials held that only dividends paid in the form of stock can be entered here, and that under Item K (a) all cash dividends received in 1918, including cash dividends accumulated in 1917, must be entered as surtaxable at 1918 rates.

When this was declared to be the ruling and decision of the Treasury Department the attention of the Treasury experts was invited to Section 201, Paragraph A, of the new law, defining a dividend as any distribution in cash or in other property, or in stock, and also to Subdivision E of Section 201, which says "any distribution made during the first sixty days of any taxable year shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits accumulated during preceding taxable years."

"If that does not mean that dividends paid in the first sixty days of 1918 were accumulated in previous years, and surtaxable at the rates of those years, what does it mean?" Treasury experts were asked by THE TIMES correspondent.

"It means," was the reply, "that the dividends you mention were accumulated in previous years, but that they are not surtaxable at the rates of those years, except in the case of the two exceptions given relating to certain class of dividends paid in stock."

The Official Interpretation.

The position of the Treasury was officially set forth for THE NEW YORK TIMES today in this signed statement from Commissioner Roper:

"Item 12, Form 1040, refers to stock dividends only, i. e., dividends paid in stock of the corporation, and does not refer to dividends paid in cash or other property. All dividends received during 1918 (other than certain stock dividends) are subject to 1918 surtax rates. Section 213 of the law includes all dividends in gross income for the taxable year when received. No provision of the law says that any dividends received during 1918 shall be taxed at other than 1918 rates, except Section 201 (d) and this is confined to stock dividends received between Jan. 1 and Nov. 1, 1918, or declared between such dates and received before the expiration of thirty days after the passage of the act. All other stock dividends and all cash dividends are taxable at the rates for the year when received. See Article 1541, Regulations 45.

"Section 201 (E) is chiefly important in determining out of what earnings stock dividends are paid, whether dividends are paid out of earnings accumulated prior to or subsequent to March 1, 1913, and the effect of the distribution upon the surplus at the beginning of the year, which is important in computing invested capital."

Section 213, which is cited by Commissioner Roper as requiring that dividends received during 1918 (other than the certain stock dividends enumerated) be subjected to the 1918 surtax rates, defines gross income. It was pointed out by the Treasury's experts that this section defines gross income as including "dividends," without qualification, and this is held by the Treasury officials to mean that "all dividends" received in 1918 must be included in the 1918 gross income, no matter at what rates the dividends are taxable, whether they are cash dividends, all of which are held to be taxable at the 1918 rates, or the excepted stock dividends, which are taxed at 1917 surtax rates, although added to the peak of 1918 income.

It was the insistent contention of the officials seen that nowhere in the law is provision made for taxing at other than the 1918 rates any dividends received during 1918, except in Section 201, Paragraph (d,) and it was insisted that this was confined to dividends paid in stock between Jan. 1 and Nov. 1, 1918, or declared between such dates and paid before the expiration, on March 26, 1919, or thirty days after the passage of the act.

Confusion Over Meaning.

The greatest confusion in the situation arises over the meaning of subdivision (E) of Section 201, which provides that "any distribution made during the first sixty days of any taxable year shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits accumulated during preceding taxable years." In the effort of THE NEW YORK TIMES representative today to arrive at the position of the Internal Revenue Bureau the meaning of this provision of the law, as viewed by the Treasury Department, was sought, and the question was asked whether paragraph (E) of Section 201 could be regarded as changing Section 213, under which the Treasury exports insist that gross income must include all dividends, no matter at what rates taxable.

"A careful reading of Section 201, Paragraph (E)," said one of the Treasury experts, replying to these questions, "discloses that it includes no provision governing rates of taxation. It provides a method of determining out of what earnings the particular distribution is made, but is silent as to the rate at which such distribution should be taxed.

"This subdivision (E) is chiefly important in determining out of what earnings stock dividends are paid. It is also useful in determining what dividends were paid out of earnings accumulated prior to or subsequent to March 1, 1913. It is important in the computation of invested capital, because dividends paid out of earnings of previous years reduce the surplus on hand at the beginning of the year."

It was pointed out that Section 12 of the old Revenue law of 1917, which amended Section 31 of the Revenue act of 1916, provides that all dividends shall be taxed to the distributee at the rates prescribed by law for the years in which the profits or surplus out of which such dividends are paid were accumulated by the corporation, but that this provision does not appear in the 1918 law except in a very limited way in Section 201, Paragraph (D.)

EXPECT LEGAL FIGHT OVER DIVIDENDS TAX

If Official Interpretation of Law Is Rejected Millions Must Be Returned.

The prospect of a legal fight over the assessment of surtaxes on cash dividends actually paid in 1918, but accruing from 1917, is regarded as practically a certainty. Numerous inquiries and protests have been received and some practiced experts at interpreting the income tax laws insist that the method adopted by the Bureau of Internal Revenue is based purely upon arbitrary regulation and has no basis in the law itself.

The interpretation placed upon the law as to dividends by the Commissioner and by his subordinates acting under his instruction is that all cash dividends actually received by the taxpayer in 1918 are surtaxable at the 1918 rates and, for the purpose of computing the surtax rate, are to be added to the "peak" of the 1918 income. The contention of those who read the law differently is that such dividends as are accumulated in 1917 and distributed during the first sixty days of 1918 are surtaxable at the 1917 rates. They hold further that since such payments clearly are part of 1917's income they should be added to the peak of the 1917 income in computing the surtax and not to the peak of the 1918 income.

If the question is brought into the courts, and the contention of those who read the law differently from the way it is interpreted at Washington is upheld, it is recognized that millions of dollars may have to be returned by the Treasury to taxpayers, and that an almost endless amount of confusion will result.

An example of how the administration of the law, as prescribed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, may work undue hardship on a taxpayer, which was cited yesterday, was that of a man whose income was $35,000 in 1917 and $45,000 in 1918 and who received in January, 1918, a $2,500 cash dividend, which was for the last quarter of 1917. Added to the peak of the man's income for the year in which the dividend actually was earned, the sum of $2,500 would be subject to a surtax at the 1917 rates of 8 per cent., or $200. Under the ruling of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, however, this $2,500 would be added to the peak of the 1918 income and would be taxable at the rate of 22 per cent. prescribed in the 1918 schedule for sums up to $48 000. In other words, the man would pay a tax of $550 at the 1918 rate, whereas he should have paid but $200 at the rate of the year in which the income actually was earned.

Another evil that some experts who criticised the bureau's regulations on surtax on cash dividends pointed to yesterday was the probability that if Congress were in session and it were evident that surtaxes for 1920 were to be greatly reduced, it would be a simple matter for corporations to quit paying dividends until Jan. 1, 1920. That would mean that millions of dollars in dividends really earned in 1919 would be surtaxed at the lower rates of 1920, causing great loss to the Government's revenues.

Mark Eisner, who has just retired as Collector of Internal Revenue for the District, said yesterday:

"Many taxpayers are crossing out the word 'stock' on Line 12 and interlining the word 'cash' and are attempting to allocate cash dividends in the belief that the form is wrong. The form is correct, because the law, as embodied in the act of 1917, has been modified so as to make cash dividends pay the tax of the year when paid.

"Many taxpayers are likewise under the impression that losses can be deducted only from general income, but not including dividends," Mr. Eisner added. "This is not the case. The losses sustained by a taxpayer are deductible from the totality of his income, inclusive of dividends.

"It would seem from the new excess profits regulations that the department is preparing for the extension to the present law of the Towne vs. Eisner case, denying the right to tax stock dividends. Article 859 of the regulations provides that the payment of a stock dividend has no effect upon the amount of invested capital—which means that the corporation has become no poorer by the distribution—that is, exactly what the Supreme Court said in its decision, namely, that a stock dividend made the corporation no poorer and by consequence the stockholder became no richer, and hence received no taxable income.

It was said by one revenue official here yesterday that probably 20,000 firms in New York had overlooked Section 224 of the law, which requires every partnership to file a return, regardless of its income and even though it made no profit. Last year this provision was limited to partnerships making a profit of $6,000 or more, and in previous years to partnerships specifically called upon by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to make a return. Unless this section is heeded, it was pointed out, those affected by it who fail to comply will be subject to penalties.

More than 5,000 persons called at the Custom House yesterday to file their returns and make their first payments. The Consuls of two foreign countries were among the visitors, and they learned upon inquiry that "every resident alien is individually liable to the tax even though his income is from sources wholly without the United States." One woman paid the tax on an income of 65 cents, and though she was informed she had the privilege of paying it in four installments of 1 cent each, she put the full sum on the counter and departed with her receipt.

INCOME TAX CONGESTION.

Roper Wants Taxpayers to Mail Their Returns and Checks.

In a statement from Washington, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Roper warns the local offices for the collection of the income tax that there will probably be congestion. His instructions to Collector Prendergast read:

"Every indication points to great congestion in the work of the collection office this week. In an attempt to personally serve the crowd of taxpayers who will call for personal attention of the Collector's office it is very advisable to divert as many taxpayers as possible from bringing their returns personally. Have them send the same by mail.

"Arrange for immediate widespread publicity calling attention of the taxpayers to the probable congestion at the end of the week by personal filing at the office. Urge all taxpayers to mail accounts by check or other remittance. Specifically inform the public that a tentative or regular income tax return deposited in any Post Office on March 15 will protect the taxpayer from penalties and insure proper consideration of his return, while an attempt to file same personally on March 15 might prevent him from doing so on account of the congestion at the office."

EXEMPTION RULING REVISED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—In an important new ruling, the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department today held that the status of an income taxpayer on Dec. 31 will determine his personal exemption for 1918, as in previous years.

"The subdividing of personal or family exemptions to cover a person's changes in status during 1918 is abandoned," said the ruling. Paragraph Three of Section 6 of the instructions on the new forms for individual returns is made void by the new ruling.

"When claiming the personal or family exemption on his return, a taxpayer should be guided by the following schedule of lawful allowances:

"If married and living with wife (or husband) on the last day of the year the exemption allowed is $2,000. Any taxpayer who, though unmarried, supported in his household on Dec. 31 one or more relatives who were dependent upon him may claim the $2,000 exemption. Single persons, also married persons who were living apart on Dec. 31, and who have no dependents, may claim only $1,000 exemption.

"Additional exemption of $200 is allowed for each person who was dependent upon the taxpayer on Dec. 31 if the dependent is under 18 years of age or is mentally or physically incapable of self-support."

It is understood that this ruling was revised because thousands of persons who failed to understand the rule swamped the Collector's offices with inquiries.

Experts from offices of the Collectors of Internal Revenue will describe the workings of the present income tax law and will answer any questions regarding it tomorrow night at Masonic Hall in New Rochelle. Though the meeting is under the auspices of the Odd Fellows, the public is invited.

STATE'S BILLS FOR 1919 WILL BE $90,000,000

Largest in Its History—$20,000,000 Construction Program to Aid Unemployed.

ALBANY, March 11.—It will cost New York State approximately $90,000,000—the largest amount in the history of the Commonwealth—to administer its affairs during the next fiscal year. Approximately $20,000,000 of this total will be for construction work to help take care of the unemployed. These facts were announced today by the Chairman of the legislative finance committees in introducing the annual appropriation bill.

The bill carries a total of $59,388,611, an increase of $4,521,538 over last year. Among other fixed appropriations which will swell the aggregate are debt service, $13,341,678; appropriation necessary to meet Federal aid to highways, $575,000; State and county highway maintenance and repair, $5,500,000; State aid to town highways, $2,150,000; emergency appropriation bill, $1,534,521; purchase of Rensselaer and Greenbush Bridges, $1,700,000. These bring the fixed charges total to $84,189,812. Appropriations requested for the same purposes were $97,858,064.

A statement by the finance chairmen says that there will be other "large items which are more or less conjectural, but which will be appropriated this year," as follows: Hudson vehicular tunnel, $1,000,000; necessary appropriation for difference in cost in completing abandoned highway contracts, $2,500,000; additional amount necessary to finish canal terminals, $900,000; allowance for other special appropriation bills, $1,000,000. This brings the grand total to $89,619,000, compared with a total appropriation last year of $81,325,271.

I. W. W. PROPAGANDA IS COUNTRY-WIDE

Further Evidence Furnished by Government to the Seante Investigating Committee.

REDS HAVE 8,334 UNIONS

And Supplement Their "Literature" Factories with 4,567 Active Recruiting Agencies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Additional documentary evidence indicative of the activity of the Industrial Workers of the World, the anarchists, radical Socialists, and other organizations in this country that are agitating for the overthrow of the United States Government and its replacement by a system such as now prevails in Russia under Trotzky and Lenine, was read today into the records of the Senate Committee investigating Bolshevism. All of the evidence was supplied by the Government, much of it by Postmaster General Burleson.

The documents show that the greater part of the agitation is carried on through the foreign language press, and that the people to whom the revolutionary organizations look for their main support are Italians, Letts, Hungarians, Spanish-speaking workmen, Austrians, Germans, Chinese, and Scandinavians. So far as the evidence shows there is no revolutionary propaganda in French. Probably one-third of it is in English and the rest, for the main part, in the languages named.

The I. W. W. is the backbone of the amalgamated agitation and is spending huge sums of money in its work, which covers a large part of the United States and Canada. The record shows that this organization is operating through 8,334 unions and that in addition to its newspapers, magazines, and circular factories, it is maintaining 4,567 recruiting agencies in this country. The anarchistic and Socialist organizations which are affiliating in the propaganda would bring the total number of units concerned to more than 15,000.

It is estimated that fully two-thirds, if not more, of the membership of these organizations is made up of persons born in foreign lands, a large proportion of them non-citizens of the United States. The evidence shows that a vigorous campaign by circulation is now under way in New England, the East, and the more thickly settled centres of the West and Southwest.

That the I. W. W. is in all main essentials a Bolshevist organization has been the statement of all informed witnesses who testified before the Senate Committee. Here is a list of the unions and recruiting agencies which are being utilized by the I. W. W. to spread Bolshevism in this country:

Industrial Unions of the I. W. W.—Forty-six bakery workers' industrial unions, 100 marine transport workers of Atlantic, 200 marine transport workers of Pacific, 300 metal and machinery workers, 323 shipbuilders, 400 agricultural workers, 450 oil workers, 490 iron miners, 500 lumber workers, 573 construction workers, 600 railroad workers, 800 metal mine workers, 900 coal miners, Eastern; 950 coal miners, Western; 1,000 textile workers.

General Recruiting Stations—Detroit, 85; Minneapolis, 64; Fresno, 66; Salt Lake City, 69; Sacramento, 71; Stockton, Cal., 73; St. Louis, 84; Toledo, 86; Reading, Penn., 88; Oakland, Cal., 174; San Jose, 490; Omaha, 599; Los Angeles, 603; Denver, 614; Spokane, 222; San Francisco, 173, Latin branch; New York, 599, Finnish branch; Portland, 92; Sandusky, Ohio, 1; Pocatello, 1; Kansas City, 61; Bisbee, 65; Seattle, 178.

CALLS REPORTS "LURID."

Algernon Lee Declares Bolsheviki Stories Are Political.

Algernon Lee, Socialist Alderman, the principal speaker at an organization meeting of the Young People's Socialist League at the Central Opera House in East Sixty-seventh Street, characterized as "lurid" reports that radical Socialists and I. W. W. were planning a revolt to seize the Government in this country. Twenty-five plain-clothes men from Police Headquarters attended the meeting.

"You have all been reading lurid stories in the papers the last day or two about a Bolshevist uprising all over the United States," said Mr. Lee, "but you know as well as I do that this talk is being launched for political purposes at this time in the hope of deceiving and frightening people who do not know the difference between Bolshevism and astrology. This sort of thing, however, is not going to stop the great Socialist movement in the United States or anywhere else. Our movement has been misunderstood, libeled, and denounced and persecuted, but we were never more optimistic than we are today.

"We are passing through hard times just now. Every effort is being made to deprive the Socialist Party of the opportunities which every other political party has—to state its cause before the public. But we are going to win. Every time they close halls against us, every time they send a Debs to jail, the ruling classes help to open the people's eyes."

Louis P. Lochner, once Henry Ford's secretary, Chairman of the meeting, declared that considerable difficulty had been experienced by the Socialist Party recently in obtaining public halls for meetings.

RAILROADS TO GET NEEDED FUNDS

sirous of doing everything possible to assist in meeting the situation, having in mind the interests of the Government in protecting loans and the legal limits placed upon the corporation.

"A spirit of hearty co-operation was evidenced by the railroad executives, through Mr. Howard Elliott, who appeared as Acting Chairman of the Railroad Executives' Committee, and other railroad corporation officials. The conferences have not yet been concluded."

After the general conference the railroad executives themselves met and adopted these resolutions:

"1. That it is the sense of this conference of railroad executives that the railroad companies will, in the present financial emergency, co-operate in every practical and reasonable way with the Railroad Administration in its efforts to provide for financial requirements pending an appropriation by Congress to relieve the situation.

"2. That while the problems to be met are largely matters between the individual roads, the Railroad Administration, the War Finance Corporation, and the bankers, it is deemed wise to have the general subject supervised, on behalf of the railroad companies, by a central committee, with power to consider the questions involved and to give such aid and co-operation and to make such suggestions as may be possible to the individual roads, to the Director General, to the War Finance Corporation, and to the bankers, it being understood that such committee is not to have power to commit any individual company without its assent.

"3. That the Chair be, and hereby is, authorized and requested to appoint such committee, to consist of seven members, of which Howard Elliott, the Chairman of this meeting, shall be ex officio Chairman.

"The Chair thereupon appointed the following committee: Howard Elliott, Albert H. Harris, Robert S. Lovett, Samuel Rea, Henry Ruhlender, Henry Walters, Daniel Willard, Alfred P. Thom, counsel; George M. Shriver, in charge of accounts, and E. G. Buckland, Secretary.

"This resolution was presented to Director General Hines, who held a brief conference with the members of the newly named committee, and expressed his gratification over the attitude adopted by the executives, adding that he was very happy to have the committee to co-operate with the Railroad Administration. A further meeting will be held Thursday between the Director General and the members of the committee of executives named today."

ALL of the feminine fashions which have their origin in the Orient necessarily are robes d'interieur because an Oriental woman of caste is rarely seen outside the privacy of her "four walls"

This accounts for the picturesque styles, the fineness of the silken materials and the intricacies of the elaborate hand-embroidered decorations—an expression of the art of a people wonderfully talented and artistic.

BIG LINERS DELAYED BY HARBOR STRIKE

NO COMPROMISE IN SIGHT

Seeing little chance of a compromise in the harbor strike, the employers and the union turned their eyes toward Washington yesterday, where Federal Conciliator James L. Hughes has gone to lay the situation before Secretary of Labor Wilson. Mr. Hughes said he was hopeful of an agreement being reached, but this spirit was not reflected by either side in the controversy.

In the meantime conditions in the harbor are becoming worse. Perhaps the most serious phase is the delay to transatlantic liners because they cannot fill their coal bunkers or get cargo on and off, since longshoremen refuse to handle work for concerns against whom the harbor men are striking.

The trouble is complicated because a warning is said to have gone out from Government sources to all transatlantic lines stating that because of the unsettled labor situation in British ports it would be well for liners to carry coal enough for a round trip when they clear from this side. Some steamships will have to go to Halifax to coal. The Cunard liner Caronia, which was to have sailed on Monday, is expected to sail today, stopping at Halifax for coal.

The Wholesale Coal Trade Association, which met yesterday in the Whitehall Club to consider the situation here, sent a dispatch to Secretary of War Baker which read:

> Understand transports landing troops here have been delayed in returning, and others have been compelled to go to other ports for bunker coal because of the harbor strike. We suggest the commandeering of harbor equipment sufficient to meet needs of all troopships, to be manned by Army and Navy Departments, and thus avoid, for instance, the sending of the Mauretania to Halifax for coaling. There is an ample supply of coal at this port to care for all Government needs.

Some of the Liners Delayed.

The Cunarder Mauretania, with a full passenger list, was scheduled to sail today. It was said last night that she would be able to get away tomorrow at noon. The Lapland, which was scheduled to leave for Liverpool last Saturday is to depart today; the French liner Niagara, which was to have gone yesterday, will sail today, and the Adriatic's sailing time has been changed from March 15 to March 19 because of the delay to the Lapland.

It was said yesterday that while some boat owners would not be averse to the Government taking over their business and all their troubles, there is objection to commandeering vessels because of the principle involved. This was voiced by Paul Bonynge, counsel for the boat owners, who said: "If the Government is going to take over factories, vessels, and industrial concerns after arbitration has been kicked into the gutter, then we will have socialism before we know it."

The only word that passed between employes and employers during the day was a letter sent by the Lighterage Association of the Port of New York, the New York Tow Boat Exchange, and the New York Boat Owners' Association to the Marine Workers' Affiliation, notifying the unions that the wage schedule submitted by Federal Mediator Hughes had been unanimously rejected by each of these organizations. The letter follows:

> Dear Sirs: Through the courtesy of Mr. J. L. Hughes and our attorney, Mr. Paul Bonynge, we are in receipt of your letter of March 10, transmitting a wage scale for our consideration.
> We beg to inform you that this schedule has been rejected by a unanimous vote of the members of this organization.

No Separate Peace, Says Counsel.

"There has been a certain amount of untrue propaganda issued by the union leaders during the last twenty-four hours, to the effect that certain individual owners were secretly signing the new wage scale and accepting the eight-hour day," said Mr. Bonynge. "These statements have been carried in the New York newspapers and, in all fairness to the owners, it should be stated that they are absolutely untrue, except in the case of one or two small individual concerns. The responsible boat owners are standing as a unit. There will be no separate peace negotiated by any individuals whose action can be considered important.

"It has been intimated in some quarters, the intimation apparently having originated in union headquarters, where the wish was father to the thought, that the United States Government might commandeer the boats in New York Harbor 'to ease the situation.' This proposition has been put forth by those who would like to see the boat owners driven from the perfectly fair position which they have maintained throughout the strike.

"If the Government should commandeer our boats it would place itself in the unusual position of punishing the boat owners, whose only crime, so far as we can discover, has been in accepting an award of the Government's own War Labor Board. That this punishment will be visited upon us, to the benefit of those who have repudiated the award, is something we cannot believe."

Thomas L. Delahunty, President of the Marine Workers' Affiliation, and Paul Vaccarelli, Business Agent of the Harbor Boatmen, called upon Mayor Hylan yesterday and notified him that the Strike Committee had voted to allow workers to man the tugs necessary to tow the garbage out to sea, in order not to menace the health of the city. The only thing the strikers asked was that each boat so employed be placarded.

Early in the day there was some friction reported between railroad officials and the workers. The union ordered its men off five coal boats of the Reading Railroad, charging that the line had violated its agreement and had done work for private boat owners. There was a conference between the strike leaders and officials of the Railroad Administration, after which it was said that the Railroad Administration was not quite satisfied with the way the workers have lived up to their agreement.

Delegates of the Harbor Boatmen's Union and Port Terminal Workers will meet on Friday afternoon in Columbia Hall, Twenty-fifth Street and Ninth Avenue, to formulate and file a joint protest with the Railroad Administration on the terms offered them in the agreement made by the Railroad Administration. Members of these two unions in the affiliation are dissatisfied with the terms they received. Some of the workers maintain that as much as $20 has been sliced off their monthly pay.

Longshoremen Not on Strike.

Joseph Ryan, President of the Atlantic Coast District of the International Longshoremen's Union, 164 Eleventh Avenue, said yesterday: "The longshoremen are not on strike, and I am pleased to set the public right on this point. They have refused to handle freight brought to any dock or pier by a lighter or other craft manned by a nonunion crew."

An official of the New York Dock Company, which has piers along three miles of the Brooklyn waterfront from Fulton Street to Erie Basin, said that the business of that concern had been reduced 50 per cent. by the strike. The company has 116 warehouses, from which large quantities of foodstuffs and produce were handled via nine connecting railroads by car ferry. The only shipments which have been made to and from these storehouses in a week have been by truck over the bridges, the total to which has been comparatively insignificant. One hundred and fifty men employed by the New York Dock Company and 350 workers of the railroad controlled by that company are idle.

Five tugboats and two lighters of the Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company are still tied up. The only boats in operation by this company are those which are doing Government towing. The same situation exists in the yards of James Shewan & Sons, at the foot of Twenty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, where the work being done is exclusively for the Government. Three of the firm's tugs are tied up.

It was stated at the office of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, 115 Broadway, that the passenger boats Highlander and Homer Ramsdell, which carry workmen to the yards of the Standard Shipbuilding Corporation, on Shooters Island, will be running today. The strikers have given their consent to the operation of this line. The Strike Committee also gave permission for Henry Herberman to operate four lighters engaged in transporting Red Cross and relief supplies for a steamship loading at Pier 1, North River.

DRY TOWNS CHANGE TO WET

Eight of Them Show a Change in Massachusetts Elections.

BOSTON, March 11.—Returns from eleven towns that voted yesterday on the question of issuing liquor licenses show that eight changed from "dry" to "wet."

Three South Shore towns, Weymouth and Hingham, which have been no-license places for more than a quarter of a century, and Scituate, with a dry record of eleven years, shifted to license. Easton, Rockland, and Abington also went "wet," following the example set by a number of other towns in the Old Colony district which voted a week ago. Other towns which changed to "wet" were Hudson and Ipswich.

Liquor advocates maintained that the result was a protest against the national prohibition amendment, while anti-saloon leaders asserted that it was mainly due to apathy on the part of the voters.

MAY REJECT AMENDMENT.

Anti-Prohibition Resolution in Jersey House Expected to Pass.

TRENTON, N. J., March 11.—After a day of manoeuvring the Democrats in the Assembly outwitted the Republicans this afternoon and succeeded in having a resolution, introduced by Assemblyman Barrett, the Democratic floor leader, calling for the rejection of the Federal prohibition amendment, referred to the Municipal Corporations Committee, which is Democratic. It is expected that the resolution will be favorably acted upon next week.

When the resolution was offered in the morning it was referred to the Judiciary Committee, controlled by Republicans, but after recess Assemblyman Barrett insisted that the measure, being political in nature, should be acted upon by the Municipal Corporations Committee, and this was agreed to.

Assemblyman Barrett said he wanted every member of the House to come out in the open and be recorded as to where he stood on prohibition. "It is time we stopped dodging the issue, as has been done for the past few weeks," he said.

The Democrats evidently feared the Judiciary Committee would smother the resolution. If the "wet" Republicans vote with the "wet" Democrats the anti-prohibition resolution will be passed by the House.

15 Reasons

Why First Mortgages Guaranteed by this Company Are the Best Investment for Prudent People.

8.

A prominent bond house has issued a circular giving a list of ten bonds of $1,000 each which could have been bought in 1910 for $9,215, and could be bought in 1918 for $6,300.

The firm draws the conclusion that they are a good purchase now. Perhaps they are, but so we have thought many times since 1907 and have been mistaken.

How do the people feel who paid $9,215 for them in 1910? How much better those people feel who put $9,215 into guaranteed mortgages in 1910 and have received their interest regularly and have their principal intact. They have had also two opportunities meanwhile to cash in their principal at par.

No investor has ever lost a dollar.

SOUTHERN FRIENDS TO SEE 27TH PARADE

O'RYAN TO RETURN TRIBUTE

Mayor's Welcoming Committee Announces Plans for Triumphal March Up Fifth Avenue.

When the 27th Division has its triumphal parade in this city on March 25 it will be honored and acclaimed not only by New York citizens who have relatives in its regiments, but by citizens from South Carolina, Tennessee, and Georgia who had relatives in the 30th Division, the organization that stormed the Hindenburg line with the New Yorkers last September. Similar honor will be paid to the National Guardsmen in the 30th Division by officials from this State when the parade of that unit is held upon its return from France.

This exchange of compliments by the two divisions is founded upon good feelings among officers and men on the Mexican border and in the South Carolina training camps before the two divisions were sent overseas. Major Gen. E. M. Lewis, who commanded the 30th in France, commanded a camp on the Mexican border only fifteen miles from that of the New York National Guard Division, and close friendship was formed by him with General O'Ryan and other officers from this State. General Lewis was in command of the 30th in Camp Sevier, at Greenville, S. C., while the New York troops were in training at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, only a few miles away. Then the two divisions were combined in an army corps in France and sent to aid the British armies.

A delegation from South Carolina will attend the parade. It is headed by Governor Robert A. Cooper, and it is probable that ex-Governor Manning of South Carolina also will attend. Governor Roberts of Tennessee and Governor Dorsey of Georgia also may come, with officers of the 30th Division who have returned from France as casuals. General O'Ryan hoped also that General Lewis would be able to attend the review of the 27th here, with Major Gen. George W. Read, who commanded the corps composed of the 27th and the 30th Divisions.

General O'Ryan promised the delegations from the South that he would attend the parade of the 30th Division upon its return, and the Southern States delegation announced that they would also invite Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan.

It was decided yesterday at a conference between General O'Ryan and members of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to the Homecoming Troops that the division should march north on Fifth Avenue in its parade on March 25.

"It was agreed in connection with the review and parade that, in recognition of the valor displayed by the victorious army, a deviation from strict military restrictions would be permitted in connection with the review," said a statement issued by the Mayor's Committee.

"Some of the picturesque and symbolical features to be observed will be in a measure similar to those that characterized the conquering hosts of ancient Rome.

"At the head of the column of 27,000 men a great service flag, bearing upon its field 1,972 golden stars, representative of the men of the division who sacrificed their lives in the cause of liberty, will be carried on an especially prepared framework. This immense banner will float parallel to the line of the parade from a staff that will be held in place by picked men of the division.

"In the column will be a gun carriage covered with the traditional drapery and upon the catafalque there will be a great wreath which, upon arrival at the Court of the Victorious Dead in front of the Public Library, will be taken from the gun carriage and deposited at the foot of the great Roll of Honor which is to be a central feature of the court. Prior to the parade other wreaths are to be laid at the foot of this Honor Roll. The gun carriage is to be drawn by eight horses bearing black trappings and led by a squad of honor men of the division.

"As the marching column approaches the Arch of Victory at Madison Square there will be a salute of the colors of the allied nations, which are to be placed upon the Altar of Liberty, east of the Arch of Victory, by representatives of the embassies of the combatant nations with which the American soldiers fought on the battlefields in France and Flanders. These stands of allied colors are to be in the custody of a guard of honor made up of members of the Grand Army of the Republic, who will have places assigned them at the Altar of Liberty.

"Stationed in front of the altar and looking out upon the Victory Arch will be a private or noncommissioned officer of the 27th Division who has been decorated for valor, whose duty it will be, as the marching host approaches, to step out in the roadway at the approach of the Liberty Arch and sever with a thrust of his bayonet a silken rope that will stretch across the roadway in the shadow of the Liberty Arch.

"In order that each of the units making up the marching host may be readily identified, General O'Ryan has consented to permit to be carried at the head of the unit an especially designed standard that will identify the men as they pass.

"Supplementing the martial music of the five bands of the 27th Division, twenty bands of music will be stationed in the principal side streets along the line of march."

27TH AND 77TH CO-OPERATE.

Advance Parties Unite in Seeking Jobs for Men in Divisions.

Officers of the advance parties of the 27th and 77th Divisions announced yesterday that they had agreed to co-operate in seeking jobs for the soldiers of the two New York organizations. They will have the assistance of the United States Employment Service.

Major S. Fullerton Weaver, advance officer of the 77th Division, opened his employment agency at 280 Madison Avenue last week, and in making plans for their campaign for jobs officers of the 27th Division conferred with him. It was agreed that the two agencies could co-operate effectively, so that if a job reported to one division remained unfilled a man for the place could be sought in the ranks of the other organization. Lieutenant E. L. Mullaney of the 107th Infantry has established temporary headquarters for the 27th employment agency in the Biltmore.

Plans for the reception to be given to the 77th Division upon its return from overseas service next month were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the 77th Division Association. Officers of the regimental auxiliary associations reported progress in finding jobs for the returning soldiers and spoke enthusiastically of the plans for the establishment of a divisional clubhouse. The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity, presided and the following were appointed members of the Finance Committee; Stephen H. Olin, Cleveland H. Dodge, S. R. Bertran, and Majors Archibald G. Thacher and S. Fullerton Weaver. The following Arrangements Committee was chosen: Major Archibald G. Thacher Chairman; Captain F. S. Greene, Major Delancey K. Jay, S. R. Bertron, Mrs. Russell H. Hoadley, Cleveland H. Dodge, Mrs. James A. Roosevelt, Walter Grafton, and Lieutenant Shelton Martin.

WOMAN IN HARVARD POST.

Dr. Alice Hamilton First of Her Sex Elected to the Faculty.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 11.—The first woman to hold a position on the Harvard University Faculty will be Dr. Alice Hamilton of Chicago. Announcement was made tonight of her appointment by the Board of Overseers as Assistant Professor of Industrial Medicine in the Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Hamilton, who obtained her medical degree from the University of Michigan in 1893, studied at several other universities in this country and Europe, was Professor of Pathology at the Woman's Medical College of Northwestern University for three years, and served as Bacteriologist at the Memorial Institute for Infectious Diseases in Chicago for eight years. Since 1910 she has been engaged in investigating industrial poisons for the Federal Department of Labor.

The overseers also made public the appointment of Professor Comfort A. Adams as dean of the Harvard Engineering School, and of Colonel Robert C. F. Goetz, as Professor of military science and tactics.

Professor Lucien Levy-Bluhl, of the Sorbonne, was announced as exchange professor from France to Harvard for the first half of the next collegiate year.

SHOPKEEPER KILLED IN BROOKLYN HOLDUP

ARE INTERRUPTED BY WIFE

Woman Hears Shot That Kills Husband as She Flees from Scene—Intruders Escape.

Two young men entered the candy and stationery store of Samuel Wolchoch at 208 Wyckoff Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday and shot and killed Wolchoch in an attempt to rob the store. Wolchoch was standing behind the counter when the two young men entered. One purchased a stick of licorice and in payment handed over a five-cent piece. As he did so the second man left the store, closing the door behind him and locking it from the outside. At the same time the man inside drew a revolver and commanded Wolchoch to throw up his hands.

Mrs. Wolchoch, with her three young children, Gilbert, Percy, and Marion, entered the store at this time from the living apartment in the rear. She saw her husband standing with his hands above his head and ran screaming from the store through a side entrance into a hallway.

Mrs. Wolchoch said that when she was half way down the hallway toward the street she heard a shot. There was a pause and then came two more shots. When she reached the street she saw a man run from the front door of the store.

William Lippman of 1,396 Greene Avenue saw a man run from the store and ran into the butcher shop of Edward Gross, at 200 Wyckoff Avenue, to tell Gross something had happened. Gross went to the street and saw two young men turn into Bleecker Street. He gave chase and at Dekalb Avenue and St. Nicholas Avenue, saw one man turn into a car barn, while the other ran into a garage at the corner. Both escaped.

The bandits did not get any money in the holdup. In a drawer beneath the counter was found $80 in $5 and $10 bills, while in the cash register there was $28. Wolchoch had been shot beneath the heart. Two bullet holes were found in the wall behind the counter. Wolchoch crawled from behind the counter, as a trail of blood indicated, to the threshold of the living apartment in the rear where he was found.

Lippman described the two holdup men as about 20 years old, 5 feet 8 inches in height and weighing 145 pounds. One wore a black fedora hat and a gray overcoat, while the other had on a brown fedora hat and wore a blue suit, but no overcoat. While the two were being chased by Gross they ran onto the tracks of the Long Island Railroad and one took off his overcoat and gave it to the other. They also changed hats.

26TH SAILS IN APRIL.

Boston Expected to Give a Great Reception to the New Englanders.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—General Pershing cabled the War Department today that the 26th (New England National Guard) Division would embark from Brest for Boston in the first half of April aboard the transports Agamemnon, Mount Vernon, America, Von Steuben, Kroonland, George Washington, and President Grant. It is expected that a great reception will be accorded the troops at Boston and a divisional parade arranged. The only division, in addition to the 26th and 27th, which it is expected will be paraded as a unit on its return is the 42d (Rainbow) Division, which is tentatively scheduled to be reviewed in Washington.

Organizations assigned to early convoy home were announced by the War Department today as follows: Base Hospitals Nos. 8, 21, 41, 56, and 115; 10th Anti-Aircraft Battery, Companies 801, 802, 113, and 114 Transportation Corps.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., March 11.—With 5,500 troops on board the transport Nansemond arrived today from St. Nazaire. The 56th Engineers, one of the units aboard, were the only "flashlight" outfit in the allied armies, having been organized to break up night air raids by spotting airplanes and Zeppelins for the artillery. Other units arriving were the 74th Engineers, 53d Coast Artillery, 55th Ammunition Train, and fifteen casual companies from Iowa, Ohio, Illinois, Arkansas, Kentucky, and Wisconsin.

JEWISH COMMITTEE TO SAIL.

Marshall and Adler Will Attend Peace Conference.

Louis Marshall and Dr. Cyrus Adler, who are respectively the President and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Jewish Committee, are leaving today on the Caronia to attend the Peace Conference at Paris, as representatives of the committee.

Their purpose is to support the petition of the Jews of Eastern Europe for the grant of full civil, political and religious rights in the several lands where they are now withheld, and for the assurance of adequate guarantees to safeguard these rights. No claim will be made on behalf of the Jews of any rights in any land that are other or different from those possessed by or conferred in general upon the citizens of the land in which they dwell; but they insist that the Jews shall acquire those rights in their entirety.

Mr. Marshall is also one of the delegates of the American Jewish Congress and has arranged for conferences with the representatives of the leading Jewish organizations of England, France and Italy, which are co-operating in this movement for emancipation.

Let us haul YOUR goods 20 miles a day FREE

BUSINESS is improving steadily. As a Nation, we curtailed our private purchase and consumption of goods over eight billion dollars a year, at Government request, during the war, or one third the value of ALL our manufactured products for 1913. We are steadily returning our manufacturing enterprises to our pre-war basis. We are steadily moving forward toward our high average of domestic Peace-time production and CONSUMPTION.

We are nearly one-third of our National output BEHIND in goods on the shelves, but we are starting out to CATCH UP. That, in itself, means a great increase in all production and buying during the next few months---as soon as our factories can resume PRODUCTION, on the old scale.

Our Foreign trade has enormously increased. Competent authorities estimate that Europe needs over seven billions a YEAR of our products for at least two years. As soon as the amount and terms of the enemy indemnities to our Allies is settled, foreign buying will ENORMOUSLY increase. Even now our financial leaders are arranging credits abroad to enable European countries to buy our goods. Belgium has just been given a credit of $500,000,000 by a syndicate of our bankers.

Business will be beyond precedent---make no mistake about that ---but the RULES will be different.

The world is one hundred and seventy-nine billion dollars POORER by this war. We Americans have a tax bill to pay running to six billions a year RIGHT NOW.

Our Foreign Trade will pay that tax bill and THEN some. Whether you sell abroad or not you CAN benefit by it. Money or credits (the equivalent of money) will pour into this country to others who sell abroad and who DO buy from you—or who buy from others who buy from you. Every dollar brought here by Foreign Trade is a NEW American buying asset.

You can VASTLY increase your business if you know and practice the NEW RULES. They are EFFICIENCY and ECONOMY.

Efficiency and economy are going to pay off this world war cost of $179,000,000,000, because the world WILLS it. Efficiency and economy are beginning to be practiced to an extent formerly undreamed of. We're getting ready. THAT'S why business hasn't yet started up with the AWFUL whoop that the optimists expected. But it's about ready to start and when it starts LOOK OUT.

Brother, this will be a swift game. IT HAS to be. If you don't want to practise the new rules you would better GET OUT of this game NOW.

Unless you intend to inject efficiency and economy into your business with all your heart and strength—SELL IT. Sell it before you find it snaked out from under your feet by a World competition out to wipe off that $179,000,000,000.

EFFICIENCY means MOTOR TRUCKS. ECONOMY means Trucks priced right, built right—to RUN right.

An essential of business will be fast delivery—promises KEPT on a time table basis. Self-preservation necessitates ECONOMICAL delivery. Speed means Motor Trucks—ECONOMY demands FULTON Trucks.

Let us deliver your goods 20 miles a day FREE.

Fulton Trucks are the most economical in first cost. They are priced at $1,850, and that is $475 LOWER than the AVERAGE of the Fulton carrying capacity class, and $1,000 LOWER than ANY truck of nearly equal performance value.

That is a strong statement but we have USERS' RECORDS to PROVE the case.

Fulton Trucks COST less because they are simple—because EFFICIENCY and ECONOMY are built right into them.

And there is NO FREIGHT from the FACTORY to pay on Fulton Trucks, because they are built right here in the Port of New York, the greatest labor and material market in the country.

Save $420 a Year on GAS

Fulton Trucks run from 14 to 17 miles on one gallon of gas. Seventeen is not unusual. Most trucks run six miles on one gallon. Some makers are VERY proud of getting ten miles to the gallon. A Fulton Truck will save you $420 a year over the AVERAGE truck used for 50 miles a day. HOW much do YOUR trucks use NOW? We would like to send you the results of an official test made by the Standard Oil Company which CONSTANTLY re-orders Fulton Trucks because they PAY.

Saving on Oil and TIRES

Fulton Trucks average over 250 miles to a gallon of oil. The average truck gets less than 110 miles to the gallon. Fulton Trucks get 7,000 to 10,000 miles on one set of tires. The AVERAGE truck of the same carrying capacity gets 15% LESS than the Fulton MINIMUM and 20% less than the Fulton average tire mileage.

Fulton Trucks cost 40% LESS in the essentials of operating cost than ANY other make of equal carrying capacity that we know of, and 60% less than SOME that we know of.

If your motor trucks cover, on the average, 50 miles a day, you can have 20 miles of delivery a day made FREE by using Fulton Trucks. If you use horse trucks you may get 30 miles of deliveries FREE by using Fulton Trucks, and, Brother, we want to come down and SHOW you this in SERVICE USE. We want to show you that you PAY TWICE the FIRST YEAR for MOST trucks but only ONCE—and THAT at LEAST $457 less—for Fulton Trucks.

A DANGEROUS Waste

Now let's see what type of trucks you use. Is your fleet 3-ton or 3½-ton trucks? If they are, Brother, LOOK OUT. Service records SHOW beyond any question of doubt that when you buy a 3 or 3½-ton truck at $4,000 or $4,500, you get $4,000 worth ONLY ONCE IN A WHILE. Service records SHOW that 80% of ALL cartage problems are BETTER taken care of by a 1½-ton truck than any other type. And this is not guess work—nor rule of thumb, nor the slip-shod, offhand opinion of a foreman nor a superintendent of trucks, but an exact, scientific tabulation by the investigating engineers of the greatest Industrial Corporations in the Nation.

Real Saving

TWO Fulton 1½-ton trucks costing $1,850 each, or $3,700 for the two, will carry 4 tons 50 to 150 miles a day at a FIRST COST of $500 to $1,000 LOWER than a 3 or a 3½-ton truck and at an OPERATING cost far lower. If you could count on a sure, full load every trip, every day, for your 3 or 3½-ton truck, STILL the two Fultons would save you money.

But you can't count on the full load, every minute, all day use, of your 3-ton truck. Deliveries DON'T RUN that way. Your 3-ton truck will be operating at capacity only 20% of the actual 3,000 working hours of the year. It will often be carrying 1½ tons and 2 tons. At other times the 3-ton truck will have more goods to move than it can carry in its maximum number of trips for the day. Deliveries will have to WAIT and under the new rules they WON'T wait. Delay will mean business LOSS.

Two Places at Once

A 3 or 3½-ton truck CAN'T be in two places at once, but TWO Fulton 1½-ton trucks CAN.

When a truck is not operating it is not COSTING, except for interest and overhead. Two Fulton trucks, one of them idle half the time, will cost you FAR less for deliveries than ONE 3 or 3½-ton truck operating with PART loads ALL the time—and that's what your big trucks DO NOW.

For average use, day in and day out, through the year, giving DOUBLE service when needed in times of heavy deliveries and rush orders, TWO FULTON 1½-ton trucks will deliver 12,000 ton miles MORE service—more goods—in a year than ONE 3 or 3½-ton truck. The TWO Fultons will cost $500 or $1,000 LESS than your one big truck to buy—will cost you far less to operate and will deliver FAR MORE GOODS in the year.

Put ONE Fulton in service among your big trucks and SEE the saving for yourself. And, Brother, you CAN'T AFFORD NOT to do this NOW.

A Necessary Saving

Business has started. The flood has begun. You are going to need more trucks SOON, you may need six to twenty more motor trucks than you operate to-day. If you equip with six Fultons you will save AT LEAST $6,000 a year in first cost over any REALLY good 1½-ton truck. You will save perhaps $6,000 over the cost of FOUR 3 to 3½-ton trucks and MOVE MORE GOODS. The six Fultons will cost you AT LEAST $3,000 LESS to operate for the year over either the six 1½-ton trucks or the FOUR 3-ton trucks.

A saving of $9,000 is the interest on $150,000. Can you afford to have your competitors borrow $150,000 each, for use in their business, pay 6% interest on it and STILL do business as cheap or cheaper than YOU can? Suppose THEY use Fulton trucks and you DO NOT. Ask your banker just how vitally important a saving of $9,000 a year is going to be.

More Fulton Advantages

Fulton trucks last, LAST. Their freedom from trouble and need of repairs is proverbial throughout the Nation. But if a peevish trolley car sneaks up from behind and wraps your truck around an elevated pillar, THAT truck needs a doctor. REMEMBER Fulton Trucks are built right here in the Port of New York. The FACTORY is here, fifteen great buildings. We can unwrap your truck QUICKLY, drop in a new engine if necessary, no delays of weeks with consequent delays of deliveries, perhaps loss of business, surely great loss of overhead. It is an INESTIMABLE advantage to have the FACTORY where the truck OPERATES.

You have the comfort of knowing that the Fulton Motor Truck Company is the LARGEST manufacturer of exclusively 1½-ton trucks IN THE WORLD. And that it grew to this size through the sheer PERFORMANCE, endurance, strength, overload ability, constant and SUPERIOR mileage — MORE tons of goods delivered per year, GREAT economies of operation over ANY other make of equal or greater carrying capacity—not only great LOWER first cost, but lower FINAL cost and MORE GOODS MOVED.

We want to see you and SHOW you SAVING. We want to PROVE to you that you need to put in ONE Fulton Truck and WATCH THE COSTS COME DOWN. We won't worry about the rest. You will just plain TAKE MORE TRUCKS AWAY from us, just as the greatest industrial enterprises all over the nation are doing every day.

New Highway Chief a Captain.

Frederick Stuart Green of Sands Point, Nassau County, whose nomination as State Commissioner of Highways was sent to the Senate by Governor Smith last night, is well known in army circles, where he served during the war as a Captain of engineers. Captain Green, who was mistakenly referred to as "Colonel Green" in dispatches yesterday, telling of his nomination, did much successful work in highway construction during his military service, mastering the problems of rapid construction of heavy-duty roadways. In civil life he has been, in addition to his activities as an engineer, a frequent contributor to technical magazines.

To Vote on Taking Street Railway.

DETROIT, March 11.—Following the reaching of a tentative agreement by the City Railway Commission and officials of the Detroit United Railway for purchase by the city, at a cost of $31,500,000, of the company's properties in Detroit, the City Council this afternoon decided to submit the proposition to the voters at the election April 7. If the plan carries the city will assume control on July 1, 1919. The agreement calls for an initial payment by the city of $15,000,000.

MORE 27TH TROOPS RETURN FROM FRONT

AMMUNITION TRAIN BACK

Unit Recruited Here Delivered 1,420 Truckloads of Munitions During Severe Fighting.

Three transports reached Hoboken yesterday from France with 11,143 troops on board, including 3,300 officers and men of the 27th Division. The Mount Vernon reached her pier at 8 o'clock, and was followed later in the day by the Ohioan and the Agamemnon. The returning soldiers were welcomed by the Mayor's Committee on the police boat Patrol, and as many of their friends as Captain James Hallock thought consistent with safety, and the steamboat Correction, with relatives and friends of the members of the 27th Division.

Among the 5,784 officers and men on the Mount Vernon were the 102d Supply Train, 102d Sanitary Train, 102d Ammunition Train, the 27th Division Military Police, and twenty-four casual companies. There were twenty cases of pneumonia in the ship's hospital when she arrived and two deaths had occurred on the trip across—Sergeant George L. Johnston of 320 Argyle Road, Brooklyn, of Headquarters Company, 102d Ammunition Train, who died on March 4, and Corporal George H. Benning of 105 Meigs Street, Rochester, N. Y., of Company C, 102d Ammunition Train, who died on Monday night as the transport was nearing the American coast.

Served with British.

The 102d Sanitary Train, commanded by Lieut. Col. R. P. Wadams of the Yale Club, served with the British, one section of the train operating a gas hospital in the Argonne. Four field hospitals were also conducted by the train. They suffered fifty casualties, including eight killed.

The 102d Ammunition Train, which was recruited and commanded by Lieut. Col. Walter L. Bell of New York City, saw sixty days' continuous service at the front. The Rev. Royal Tucker, Chaplain of the 102d Ammunition Train, who returned with them yesterday, was rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church at Gloversville, N. Y., and was decorated with the D. S. C. for rescuing men under heavy fire.

One of the New York officers to return yesterday was Major Percy Nagle, former Tammany Hall leader in Harlem, who was a Lieutenant Colonel in the National Guard before the war, and enlisted as a private in the Ammunition Train in June, 1917. He became a Major when the 102d was at the front north of Verdun. The train delivered 1,420 truck loads of ammunition at the battles of Bethincourt, Bois de Forges, Gerecourt, Dannevoux, Le Claire, and other places where severe fighting took place.

Military Police Go Over Top.

The 27th Division Military Police, commanded by Captain Juan M. Ceballos, a broker, of 112 Wall Street, with Lieutenant Oran S. Baldwin second in command, were proud of the fact that theirs was the only unit of its kind that had been over the top. The corps was recruited at the request of Major Gen. O'Ryan and was composed of two officers and 207 men, mostly college students and old cavalry men who were used to hard riding. It was their duty to direct the bringing up of supplies, but they were often called upon to fill gaps in the ranks. One of the members, Leslie Callahan, was killed, and fourteen others were wounded.

Chaplain Tucker, speaking of the work of the 102d Ammunition Train, said: "These boys went through some of the hardest fighting in this war. For sixty days they were under continual shellfire with motor, horse and mule, and never once faltered or cried out for a rest. It was simply one of God's miracles that the casualties were so small."

Detonates 400 Grenades.

Four of the train were killed and several wounded on Oct. 8 at Norre while bringing up a mule train with ammunition, when some hand grenades exploded through the pins dropping out. While this was going on, Sergeant Albert P. Anscombe of 2,095 Mohican Avenue, the Bronx, volunteered to pick up the hand grenades which had dropped in all parts of the field. He stuck to his job for several hours and detonated more than 400 of them at the risk of his life. He was awarded the D. S. C.

On the Mount Vernon were sixty-eight nurses from Base Hospital No. 8, at Savenay, near Nantes, who had been abroad since September, 1917, and also twenty-six nurses from Rochester, N. Y., Base Hospital No. 19, under command of Lieut. Col. John M. Swan of Rochester.

The transport Ohioan had 1,627 troops from Bordeaux, mostly of the 348th Infantry, which did not go into action. The regiment was commanded by Major Sam J. McCants, a Mississippi reserve officer. There were several cases of influenza on the voyage home and one death—Private Eugene A. Tansey of Lynn, Mass.

The transport Agamemnon had 3,732 officers and men on board, composed of the 102d Engineers, 27th Division; nineteen casual companies from all parts of the United States, and 171 nurses, who were chiefly from Virginia and Michigan. The 102d Engineers, Second Battalion, was commanded by Major George B. Snyder, a veteran of the Philippines, who said there was nothing he could add to what the Colonel of the regiment had said recently when he returned to America.

STRIKE DELAYS ADRIATIC.

Brought Americans Who Enlisted with Canadians.

The White Star liner Adriatic arrived yesterday from Liverpool, via Halifax, with about 800 passengers on board, and was delayed nearly eight hours in making fast at her pier foot of West Twentieth Street, on account of the harbor strike.

Among the 300 passengers in the third-class on the Adriatic were 200 soldiers, mostly American citizens, who had enlisted in the Canadian Army and gone to France before the United States entered the war.

Chief Steward A. L. Gosling said that the liner had landed 1,400 officers and men of the Canadian Highlanders, the 42d Regiment, at Halifax on Sunday. He had a copy of THE NEW YORK TIMES, Sunday, Dec. 18, which showed the pipers of the Highlanders marching through the main street of Mons on Nov. 11, after the armistice was signed, and he asked them to inscribe their names on the copy of THE TIMES, under their own pictures, which they did.

Major Gordon Balfour of the Canadian Heavy Artillery, a passenger on the Adriatic, who intends to spend two weeks in South Carolina before he goes home, said that it was not the fault of the Overseas Ministry that the Canadian soldiers were not sent home quicker.

Another passenger on the Adriatic was Commissioner T. H. Howard of the Salvation Army in London, who is chief of staff of the International Salvation Army, on his way round the world to visit the British colonies. The Commissioner said that food conditions were better there now, and he did not expect any serious labor trouble before the date set for the general strike, March 22.

Lieutenant J. P. Gillespie, son of P. A. Gillespie, a contractor, 50 Church Street, returned on the Adriatic after nearly four years spent in the war zone. He got the Croix de Guerre with one star for Verdun, the Italian War Cross in November, 1917, and the Duca D Aosta's medal.

Do You Keep An Accurate Record of Your Haulage Costs?
WE hope you do, for the more accurate the records of haulage costs which a concern keeps the easier we find it to sell them a Clydesdale Truck.

We like to find a prospect who runs his business according to facts set down in black and white.

Such concerns don't buy on guess work, personal prejudice, or by casual reading of truck specifications.

They appreciate the constructional advantages of the Clydesdale.

They appreciate such features as the controller, which practically does away with the trouble and heavy expense due to careless driving by inexperienced operators. The Clydesdale controller governs the motor at all speeds and is an exclusive feature of the Clydesdale Truck.

They understand the importance of the extra depth of the Clydesdale frame, the heavy cross bracing, the radiator, made from seamless copper tubing and scores of other equally vital advantages which the average careless buyer overlooks.

Such buyers realize that each one of these features, even though it may seem unimportant, has an actual dollars and cents value to the purchaser—that they do mean lower haulage costs and long truck life.

Will you let us show you just how much these features of the Clydesdale truck will lower your hauling cost?

Destroys Them. Watch It Disappear
All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Science Saves Teeth
In a New Way Now

Dental science has found that an important cause of tooth troubles lies in a slimy film. You can feel it with your tongue.

It has also found that old methods of teeth cleaning do not end this film. That is why well-brushed teeth still discolor and decay—why tartar forms and pyorrhea starts. Statistics show that, despite the tooth brush, these troubles have constantly increased.

And now dental science has found a way to combat that film. That fact has been proved by many clinical tests. And this offer is made of a 10-day tube to urge everyone to prove it.

That film is what discolors, not your teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. In fact, dentists call this film "bacterial plaque." Those germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus nearly all tooth troubles are now traced to the film.

The film is a clinging substance. It gets into crevices, hardens and stays. The ordinary dentifrice cannot dissolve it. A soapy tooth paste even helps it to become more resistant to the brush.

So the tooth brush has proved disappointing. It removed food debris, but it failed to end film. And that film is the teeth's chief enemy.

Now that film can be efficiently combated. The method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Its results are quick and convincing. A 10-day test will prove a revelation to you. We ask you to make it at our cost, then judge for yourself what Pepsodent means to your teeth.

This 10-Day Test
Will Convince You

Analysis shows that the film is albuminous. So Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The object is to dissolve the film, then to constantly combat it.

The great difficulty lay in the fact that pepsin must be activated. The usual agent is an acid, harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed impossible.

But science has now evolved a harmless activating method. Five governments have already granted patents. That method—used in Pepsodent—seems to solve completely this great dental problem.

Able authorities have proved these results by many clinical tests. Some of them have watched the effects for years. Their opinion is that Pepsodent inaugurates a new dental era. And now thousands of dentists all over America are urging its adoption.

Now comes the problem of proving these facts to the millions. And doing so quickly, for film removal is tremendously important.

We do this by supplying a 10-Day Tube for test. The stores named below have them in stock. They will give one free to you this week if you present this coupon.

Do this in fairness to yourself. Use Pepsodent like any tooth paste, and watch results. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten—how they glisten—as the fixed film disappears.

Then form your own conclusions. You will never again try to clean teeth without it, or let your children lack it. Cut out the coupon now.

to save most automobiles from jarring to pieces. Nowadays all are equipped with pneumatic tires and many with shock absorbers. If an auto is broken it can easily be repaired. Not so with the human body, yet many never think of protecting the body from the jars of walking.

The Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoe does this protecting in the nature way—cushioning the WHOLE foot, both heel and sole. This shoe supports the arch of the foot, gives buoyancy and springiness to the step, takes the strain off the muscles and ligaments and makes walking a genuine pleasure.

PROPHECY ABOUT ENGLAND

Predicts That "In Justice" Some Day She Will Be an Irish Province —Belief a Family Inheritance.

The will of Dr. Thomas Addis Emmet, grand-nephew of Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot, disposes of an estate of more than $1,000,000 and contains a prophecy that England will some day be a province of Ireland.

Dr. Emmet, who died, in his ninety-second year, on March 1 at his home, on the top floor of the Emmet Building, Twenty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue, left the bulk of his estate to his granddaughter, Miss Margaret Harris, who lived with him; his sons, John Duncan Emmet of 4,241 Broadway and Robert Emmet of London, and his daughter, Kathleen Erin Emmet of Oxford, England.

Dr. Emmet gave his valuable collection of Irish books to the American-Irish Historical Society, and to his son Robert Emmet he left his collection of antique and curious objects more or less related to Ireland. Books on Ireland were left to the Rev. John Cavanagh of Notre Dame University, and certain historical data went to the university. The Confederate Museum, at Richmond, Va., gets the seal of the Confederate Treasury Department.

Gifts of $5,000 went to William M. Ford of 15 West Fifty-fourth Street and $1,000 to Thomas P. Tinte of 372 West Twentieth Street. The will was made four years ago, and two codicils were made later, the last transferring a bequest to Thomas Addis Emmet Harris, a grandson, who died of wounds in France, to the granddaughter, Margaret Harris.

"From my faith in God and ultimate justice, the stronger is my belief in restitution to be revoked by individual action, but inevitable for the punishment of a nation. The Irish people have suffered from persecution to an extent never before inflicted on any other race, and through many centuries have borne the burden in preparation for her own future government. Yet the atonement has not been reached, possibly yet due for the want of unity among ourselves as a people, and for having ceased the use of their native language, God's special designation for them to indicate their nationality.

"God has done more for Ireland than for any other favored territory of the same extent, and nowhere has man done so little. Intellectually God has favored the Irish people as individuals, and, scattered over the world at large, no other race has done more for the development and happiness of other people. Comparatively, England is in the decrepitude of old age, and living on the wealth of other peoples, while Ireland after her regeneration will have yet to gain the vigor of youth, and in justice England must some day become an Irish province. This belief is a family inheritance. Let the student of Irish history study 'The Decree,' written during the American Revolution by Christopher Temple Emmet, the first of the family to question the acts of England toward Ireland.

"With this belief here prophesied—that a change is near at hand—I make this additional provision to my will, and wish when it is probated that this provision shall be published as my last words to the Irish people, to whose welfare I have devoted the study and work of a lifetime."

MISS MORTIMER ON STAND.

The taking of testimony in the case of Miss Edith Mortimer of Roslyn on the charge of manslaughter in the second degree before Justice Aspinall in the Queens County Supreme Court ended yesterday. Miss Mortimer took the stand in her own behalf. She said:

"Just as I came near Linden Avenue I saw an automobile truck coming out of Linden Avenue. I was driving a little to the right of the centre of Broadway. I supposed that the truck was going to turn to the right, as Broadway is wide at this point, and then Linden Avenue comes to a stop here at the park. The truck was twenty or thirty feet away. Instead of turning to the right, as I supposed, the driver continued direct across Broadway. I then put on gas to speed up to get by the truck and escape. The truck hit my car just behind the seat. It threw my car to the left. I felt the truck coming on and pushing me. I tried to go to the right with my car, but it would not go. Why, I don't know. The first thing I realized was that we had crashed into the Ford car and struck the men.

"If the truck had turned to the right, according to the rules of the road, would you have got by?" asked Mr. Thomas L. Hughes, one of her attorneys.

SIMONS TELLS OF PERJURY.

Testifies That Witness Against Cohen Admitted False Testimony.

Benjamin Simons, a process server in the office of the District Attorney, was a witness yesterday before Judge McIntyre sitting as a committing Magistrate in the John Doe proceedings in connection with alleged perjury committed at the trial of Joseph Cohen, who was convicted of complicity in the murder of Barnet Baff and recently reprieved.

Simon testified that Joseph Sorro, one of the chief witnesses against Cohen, had admitted to him that he had committed perjury at the trial of Cohen. The witness said that Sorro declared he had concocted the story told on the witness stand while at Police Headquarters.

When Assistant District Attorney Pecora asked the witness about a conversation between Sorro and Special Deputy Attorney General James O'Malley in Baltimore on Feb. 11, Judge McIntyre interrupted:

"I want it understood that Mr. O'Malley, an honorable member of the bar, was perfectly justified in asking all the questions that have been repeated by the District Attorney here. I want the public to understand that it was not only his right but his duty to ask those questions."

The hearing will be continued on Friday.

Says Flatly He Will Not Sell Old Company's Stock.

DETROIT, March 11.—Plans of Henry Ford for a new company to produce a lower-priced automobile than any at present extensively marketed contemplate the employment of possibly 200,000 workers when in full operation, the motor manufacturer said today on his return from Los Angeles.

Mr. Ford stated that the new corporation would not interfere with the present Ford Motor Company; that he had no intention of relinquishing control of the majority stock of the old company, and that he was not in the market for a share owned by other stockholders.

Mr. Ford indicated that a year might be required to perfect the organization and production plans and location of the plants projected for the new company.

Aid Society Elects Officers.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America, held at the office of the society, 229 East Broadway, yesterday afternoon, these officers were elected for 1919: President, John L. Bernstein; Vice Presidents, Leon Kamaiky, Max Myerson, Isaac Heller, Boston; Israel Silberstein, Baltimore; Harry K. Wolff, San Francisco, and Julius Shafer, Seattle; Treasurer, Harry Fischel; Honorary Secretary, Jacob Massel.

CARUSO'S SILVER JUBILEE.

He Will Appear in Three Operas on March 22 for Emergency Fund.

Signor Caruso has arranged his own silver jubilee program at the Metropolitan on Saturday night of next week, March 22. He will appear in the third act of "Elisir d'Amore," the first act of "Pagliacci," including his most famous air, and the third act of "Le Prophete," assisted by star casts and conductors familiar in those operas. It is a $10 opera night, the first since before the war, and all proceeds will go to the Opera Emergency Fund.

The nineteenth week of the season brings a last performance of "Le Coq d'Or" next Monday afternoon, repetitions of "Mireille," with Barrientos on Monday night, "Samson et Dalila" on Wednesday with Caruso and Matzenauer, the three new American operas again on Thursday evening, and a Friday "Thais" with Farrar and Whitehill. The Saturday matinée will be "L'Amore dei Tre Re," with Muzio, Martinelli, Chalmers, and Didur, for the first time this year.

MADGE LESSING ARRIVES.

Madge Lessing, the English actress who has been playing in pantomimes and comedies in London, arrived yesterday on the Adriatic to appear in a comedy rôle in New York. She was last in "Sleeping Partners" with Seymour Hicks at the St. Martin's Theatre. Miss Lessing said the risk was to get home during the air raids without being hit by falling shrapnel. When she asked a taxicab driver to go quickly to the Savoy Hotel as the anti-aircraft guns were starting to go off, he replied, "You're alright—you're inside."

Granville Barker, the playright and manager, also arrived on the Adriatic to attend to some private business, he said, which was entirely apart from theatrical enterprise.

PLEA FOR THREE PLATOONS.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 11.—Fire fighters of the State, led by New York City firemen, pleaded before the Assembly Cities Committee of the Legislature this afternoon for an eight-hour working-day to give them a "square deal and a chance to become acquainted with their families" by enacting the Blakely measure providing for a mandatory three-platoon system in all cities of the State.

Representatives of New York City and the Mayors' Conference opposed the measure as unnecessary legislation and violative of home rule. They maintained that the question should be left to local authorities.

ALDERMEN BACK ENRIGHT.

Table Falconer Resolution for Costigan Inquiry.

Alderman Falconer at yesterday's meeting of the board introduced a resolution directing Police Commissioner Enright to appear before the board and give information on a number of matters relating to the Police Department. It was requested that the Commissioner, among other things, give full information "as to Inspector Costigan's record for arrests, both as Inspector and as head of the Vice Squad, and also as to the records of all other Inspectors."

Alderman Kenneally wanted to know if Inspector, now Captain, Costigan had requested the introduction of the resolution. Upon being informed that such was not the case, Alderman Kenneally said that if Captain Costigan would make a request in the proper way he and the other Democratic members of the board would be glad to take up his case. He moved that the resolution be tabled, and this was done.

Adele Parkhurst in Simple Songs.

Adele Parkhurst, a young soprano whose early ambition for coloratura has not prevented her becoming a charming singer of simple songs, gave what was said to be her first public recital hereabouts in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. She displayed a voice of agreeable quality and a musical feeling for poetic text and clarity of diction. Her audience encored Bruneau's "Pavane" and the old Irish "I Know Where I'm Goin'." There were American pieces by Watts, Rybner, Spross, and Horsman.

MUSIC

By James Gibbons Huneker

Stokowski Conducts.

The last of the series of five concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra occurred at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon, Leopold Stokowski conductor. Instead of being a superfluous conveyance of musical coals to Newcastle, these orchestral concerts have proved a refreshing novelty, and that, too, during a season log-jammed with orchestras. The truth is soon told. Mr. Stokowski is the most temperamental, therefore the most interesting, conductor of an orchestral organization before the public today. You may like or dislike his Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms, or Wagner readings, nevertheless he never fails to arrest your attention, if for no other reason, because you disagree with him. This blond, youthful Irish-Pole is nothing if not intense, and while his band does not measure up in quality to the New York Symphony or the Boston Orchestra, yet he squeezes from it every ounce of music which it holds. The élan, elasticity, and vivid rhythmic life in all he conducts tells on the pulses of his audience. Yesterday he received an ovation, which he richly deserved. He is easily the most popular orchestral leader in the country. And if he but knew it, tomorrow is his. Luckily for Philadelphia, he doesn't know this, and he will continue to live "over there" and delight his fellow-townsmen with well-planned programs and his electric personality.

It was an afternoon of beautiful music-making. Bach, a concerto for piano, flute, and orchestra in the soothing key of D, opened the scheme. The solo performers were Andre Maquarre, flute; Jacques Thibaud, violin, and Harold Bauer, piano. Like Tennyson's "Brook" this music might have flowed on forever—cool, silvery, purling. The ensemble was admirable. Mr. Bauer played his long solo digression in the nature of a cadenza, with fine tonal poise and in the exact archaic key. What a sweeping musical line had the old cantor! The slow movements unaccompanied were excellently interpreted.

After Mozart's G minor symphony, Mr. Bauer and Mr. Thibaud joinel forces in a concerto for violin and piano with strings by Chausson, unfamiliar to the present writer. Novelty or not, it contained some charming pages, though its prolixity finally palled. The program closed with the Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan," played too sentimentally. Mr. Stokowski's conducting of his own arrangement of the national anthem stirred the large audience so profoundly that it narrowly escaped repetition. Fancy that in a city where the grand old melody has become almost stale, flat, and unprofitable, thanks to public indifference.

Manager Arthur Judson announces the five following dates for next season of the Philadelphia Orchestra: Tuesday evenings, Nov. 11, Dec. 2, Jan. 6, Feb. 10, and March 9, at Carnegie Hall.

The Last Flonzaley.

The third of the Flonzaley Quartet concerts occurred last night at Aeolian Hall, and with it the last high light of the musical season is extinguished, for it would be absurd to hope that anything may come which will be commensurate in artistic importance with the playing of this remarkable group of artists. The program, to be sure, was not of prime significance, the last being best, Beethoven's C-major Quartet in C, opus 59, No. 3; yet there was much that was pleasing before that masterpiece was interpreted in a masterly style.

The Ravel Quartet in F has been heard at these concerts. It is more ingenious than original, strictly speaking, not true quartet writing, though picturesquely effective. Episodical, occasionally eccentric, and in the last analysis musically sterile, the lovely tonal quality of the Flonzaley made it sound better than it is. The first movement is the superior of its fellows, melodious, almost sentimental, but logically developed; after that we heard strivings to say something—the Scherzo with its abuse of pizzicati is really empty—and only in the slow movement is there a cleverness in the employment of a cantus firmus. The close is not noteworthy.

The novelty "Frammenti" per Quartetto (M.SS.) by Rosario Scalero, was especially written for the Flonzaley organization. It is not in quartet form, being four brief and disparate pieces which do not escape the category of the popular. Signor Scalero is a Roman, a former pupil of Wilhelmj, and earlier of Sivorich, therefore, a mature musician. The playing throughout the evening was superlatively fine. There was a record audience present. The Quartet was enthusiastically greeted. Victor Herbert, the well-known composer, conductor, and violoncellist, sat in a box with Mrs. Herbert, better known to veteran operagoers as a dramatic soprano, Theresa Herbert-Forster of the Metropolitan Opera House.

What Causes Tooth Cavities?

The next time you go to your dentist to have a painful cavity treated and filled, picture to yourself the condition known as "Acid-Mouth." If "Acid-Mouth" is not causing the gradual destruction of your teeth, you are 1 in 20. For dental authorities believe that 19 in every 20 persons have that condition.

"Acid-Mouth" works without warning or symptom except to slowly break down the enamel of the teeth. But once cavities are formed the soft, interior pulp goes quickly.

Many dentists have recommended Pebeco Tooth Paste for "Acid-Mouth," and for its exceptional whitening and polishing qualities.

THE PEACE TREATY.

The best news that has come out of Paris in many a day is the announcement that an agreement has been reached as to the chief conditions of the Treaty of Peace, and that the Treaty will be submitted to the German plenipotentiaries for their inspection and acceptance perhaps not later than March 20. The Peace Conference has been much criticised in this country for deferring the accomplishment of its chief purpose. The delay has been called unreasonable. Much of this criticism has an obvious partisan motive. The Republican leaders blame Mr. Wilson for what he does or does not do. The League of Nations plan reported by the committee seems to have been objected to chiefly because it had Mr. Wilson's approval, and was drawn in substantial accord with his ideas. Already the extreme opponents of the League are casting anchors to the windward; we must have some League of Nations, they now admit, but it must be different from Mr. Wilson's League. Those who have suffered more or less acute mental disturbance because of delay in making the Treaty will perceive, on candid examination, that the delay has not been caused by Mr. Wilson or by the discussion of the League of Nations Constitution. The Entente Powers have not been able to agree among themselves concerning the terms of the Treaty. They have now reached an agreement, it appears.

The announcement will be welcomed, for the time is ripe and overripe for declaring the war ended. Hostilities ceased on the 11th of November, four months ago. Nominally, the world is still at war with Germany, and the world does not want to be at war with anybody. It wants peace. The continuance of war, even by legal fiction, is disturbing. War legislation in many instances created conditions not to be ended until peace is proclaimed, or for a specified time thereafter. These conditions in many cases cause public inconvenience, they try the public patience. Government operation of the railroads in the United States is an instance; with surprising celerity and unanimity the people of the country have come to the conclusion that they have had enough of it, they want to see the roads returned to the private companies at the earliest possible moment, as soon as the Government can make provision against the loss and danger due to the operating conditions it has created. The public wants to see the telegraphs, telephones, and cables returned to private operation, it wants to see the end of censorship, the end of a multitude of war activities and arrangements.

Above all, the anxiety, uncertainty, and the unrest due to war must be removed and allayed, and that can come only through peace. In this great war, civilization has had more than four years of midnight, the earth swung "blind and blackening in the moonless air," men could not see their way. Even now they cannot see their way. The unrest of labor, the unreasoning agitations for revolution and social destruction, are an emanation of the war spirit; calm and quiet will come only through peace. The people of all the great nations have a giant work to do in repairing the ravages and paying the costs of war. It is time they set about it.

Already the Conference has reached a conclusion that will destroy the military strength of Germany and remove danger from that quarter. An army of 100,000 men should be ample for the internal policing of Germany; fortresses will be destroyed and the manufacture of arms strictly limited. No agreement concerning reparation has been reported. It is believed that the rule to be adopted is Germany's ability to pay. There will be no disposition to make the terms easy. There should be none, neither should her time of deliverance from the burden be brought too near. It must be remembered that, although we in the United States are more fortunately situated than other nations, the American people, for the next twenty-five or thirty years, will be paying taxes to liquidate the debt incurred in the war Germany brought on. In France and Great Britain the war debts will not be paid in the next fifty years. Surely Germany, who put this great burden upon the world, should not get her release earlier than the peoples who had to take up arms to defeat her wicked purposes.

There is another consideration. The armies that defeated Germany might have fought their way to Berlin; in that march they would have destroyed an immense amount of property, they would have left Germany much weaker than she is. Instead, the Allies made peace, they refrained from inflicting upon her the ruin she had ruthlessly wrought in France and Belgium and Serbia. Account must be taken of that. She is better able to pay by what was spared to her in the armistice terms. There is no reason why the payment she is to make, which at best can repair only a small part of the damage she has done, should not be continued over a period of fifty years, or more than that, until it is deemed to be reasonably compensatory. It would seem that this should not be a cause for prolonged discussion. It will be in a very high degree gratifying if the Treaty can be made ready for the German signatures before the end of March.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT.

For the Prohibition Enforcement bill introduced into the State Senate by Mr. Walters of Syracuse not much is to be hoped or wished by the friends of a reasonable liquor law. It would permit the manufacture and sale of beer containing not more than 3 per cent. of alcohol. So far, so good. A beer of light alcoholic content would probably satisfy the majority of beer drinkers, and especially a great number of workingmen. Most saloons now sell cheap food. As an accompaniment of food, alcoholic drinks are least harmful or most salutary. The Walters bill would not allow them to be served with meals in restaurants or hotels or saloons. It would put saloons out of business. Except in so far as it recognizes the desirability of authorizing a mild alcoholic drink, its details are not likely to please anybody among the Wets, and to the Drys any compromise with the unclean spirit is anathema.

It is unfortunate, to say the least, if in this great wine-growing country and in this State, which has a considerable wine-growing region, a valuable industry has to be destroyed. While wine contains a much larger percentage of alcohol than the Laodiceans among the political Wets seem willing to demand at present, a great number of persons habitually drink the native, and an important if much smaller number the imported, wines. They are used most temperately, and with food, as a rule. Probably only champagne, the sole "wine" of wastrels, has been misused, and that only sporadically; and its price, grazing the skies, puts it out of the reach of most persons even if they want it. There might have been, and there should have been, a wide extension of the use of American wines in this country. They are, or were, cheap. Some of them are wholesome. If we had come to be largely a nation of wine-drinkers, like the Italians and the French, all this heat and hubbub and sincere fanaticism of the Prohibitionists would never have arisen. Whisky is the prime cause of "the evils of intemperance." To whisky and its deadly congeners, to the illicit and horrible substitutes for it, the Prohibitionists, for all their excellent intentions, are driving the country. It has never been possible, it never will be possible, to enforce extreme prohibition in a population where no united public sentiment sustains it, where it is counter to the habits as well as the beliefs of large masses of the people. With only reprobation for those who loudly proclaim their intention to violate the law, with the utmost desire to see the law enforced, it is reasonable and it would be for the public good that a light beer, non-intoxicating unless poured down in Gargantuan quantities, should be legally made and sold without such vexatious restrictions as the Walters bill would impose. The choice is between letting people have a mild stimulant and driving them to noxious or destructive substitutes. The path of wisdom and safety is in recognizing things as they are and not attempting the impossible.

OUR GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP CURE.

For the five months of Government operation of the American Telephone Company ended with last December, President Vail reports a realized deficit of $3,842,300. For the current year he estimates a profit of $12,477,300. That prophecy will not come true as the result of Government operation as illustrated in 1918. If it comes true at all, it will be as the result of the increase of rates by 12 per cent. which he recommends. If the company itself had raised rates there would have been a demand for Government operation. If the increase comes as the result of Government operation there will be a demand for return to private operation. The logic is faulty, but it is convincing to those who use it. The true argument is not that rates should be kept low in any manner producing deficits, but that rates should be kept in true relation to the costs of producing goods and services, with due consideration of the excellence of what the rates pay for.

Americans want the best, and only few of them either want or expect to get anything for nothing, or for less than cost, permanently. Our telephone service has been the world's best, but it cannot long continue so if it is maintained at the waste of the capital which provides it. That is the interpretation of the deficit reported above, and which is like nourishing a dog with bits of his tail. President Vail makes this clear in remarks which he apologizes for the necessity of making. The necessity of making the remarks is in greater need of the apology than the remarks. Sooner or later—preferably sooner if disaster is to be avoided—there must come perception that services which do not earn their cost and a profit must slow down, depreciate, and ultimately stop, if the experiment of starvation is carried to the bitter end.

The idea that the deficits of Government operation can be absorbed or hidden in the taxes is a mistake. Huge as our Government operations are, they are insignificant compared with the total of all activities, and it is possible to embarrass the Treasury by losses in peace as certainly as in war. The fatal process is to educate the people into the belief that Government can do what private enterprise cannot, and then to regulate private enterprise in a manner making Government operation a necessity to provide public utilities "without profit." Dividends are regarded as waste, as money which might better be spent in wages. Rates can be reduced in proportion that taxes are increased, and the service can be represented as cheap because so many pay taxes and think that others pay them.

If this seems an insult to popular intelligence, it is only necessary to say that it is the process followed too successfully with reference to public utilities in general, and with particular reference to the telephone industry. As President Vail points out, all other goods and services have risen in cost both to producers of them and to users of them. But public utility services, including the telephone, have carried their increased costs without equal increases of their charges to their customers. Their distress pleases their persecutors, who redouble their promises of benefits to the people in the manner which President Vail apologizes for describing. But some are seeing the light.

In this neighborhood there is a trolley line whose riders voluntarily pay the increase of fare which the regulators refuse to allow. The passengers see that otherwise they would lose the service, and they would rather pay than lose it. But the protectors of the people sternly interpose and seek to check this first aid to the insolvent. The company is threatened with the law for unlawful "collection" of fares. The reply is that the company does not "collect"; it merely receives. Who can restrain a smile at such a merry jest at the law's expense? It is as humorous as the idea of yoking President Vail and Postmaster General Burleson in a double team. Sooner or later that partnership is doomed. President Vail must quarrel either with himself as he stands on the record, or with the department which he now is supporting lest a worse thing should happen to him and the great industry which he has developed so masterfully, and with more satisfaction at a profit than the Post Office Department produces at a loss.

President Vail says that the era of small capital and large profits has been succeeded by the era of large capital and small profits. The era of private enterprise is over if profit is to be prevented and Government operation is to succeed it. Accepting the prediction, it may be asked what Government is likely to produce better than private enterprise has produced. That President Vail is of the opinion which he has often expressed publicly appears from the following passage:

> The only incentive to capital in large amounts is certainty and security, and certainty and security can only come through responsible control and regulation recognizing economic rules or laws deduced from experience, judicial in its conclusions, equitable in its findings, prompt in its action, and, above all, the controlling and regulating bodies to be of such standing and such authority, either moral, legal, or personal, as will give effect to or command respect for their decisions.

President Vail is above suspicion of jesting on serious subjects. He cannot have intended to describe the sort of regulation which would make Government operation unnecessary. If he will excuse us we will express our preference for him as a regulator rather than as a Government operator.

THE CASE OF DEBS.

Eugene V. Debs, when placed on trial, called no witnesses and made the only argument in his own behalf. He frankly admitted his violations of the espionage law, but declared that it violated the constitutional privilege of free speech. Unlike nearly all the rest of his fellow-believers, who were lions on the platform and mice in court, he did not act the baby or seek for loopholes. He had the courage of his convictions. He challenged the law, and his challenge has been met.

There is no reason for sympathy with Debs, except such as goes to a fighter who asks no odds. The law defines certain acts as crimes. These acts Debs proudly confessed. The acts were such that they tended to bring about the defeat of the United States in the war or its withdrawal from the war and the consequent triumph of the German autocracy. The constitutionally created law-making body of the United States passed an act to make them illegal, and thereby prevent both of these dreadful results. Debs openly violated the law so passed, and rested his case on his own theory of the Constitution. That theory, in a nutshell, was that the Government had no power to defend itself against unbridled speech, even though that speech might lead to the Government's own destruction.

It is further to be understood that Debs would not look upon any such result as deplorable. On the contrary, he has spent his life fighting to overturn or revolutionize the Constitution. He is its enemy. How, therefore, could he reasonably expect that it would fail to defend itself against him? His theory amounted simply to the impossible doctrine that he had full liberty to overturn the Constitution, but that the Government had no power to stay him.

Debs made his fight and lost it. He is not a martyr, but a defeated fighter. He made the fight knowing perfectly all the possible consequences; he invited them, in the contingency that his impossible doctrine should fail of acceptance by the Supreme Court of the United States. It did fail, as it was bound to. So the consequences which Debs invited have now fallen on his head. That is all there is of the case.

THE RED TERROR.

Our word-of-mouth revolutionists must have shivered with joy when they picked up the papers yesterday morning and read that the Solicitor General of the Post Office Department was taking their activities seriously. Long have they waited for this proud moment, nor have they waited in silence. For years past you could go to certain halls in New York and hear speakers in various languages, including English, depict the great day coming when freedom and human brotherhood should spring from the flames of the Capitol and the City Hall and Fifth Avenue, and the new proletarian State should be christened in the blood of the abhorred plutocrats of Wall Street. Their magazines, of a somewhat limited circulation, have set forth the same apocalyptic visions; and people who believed in that sort of thing have read them and lived in the pious faith that they would yet see the day when things would be turned upside down and the possessions of those who have would be distributed to those who have not.

In spite of the researches of the Post Office Department, we find it difficult to believe that this general overturn is any nearer now than it was thirty years ago. The officials find evidence of the consolidation of "I. W. W., anarchists, radical Socialists and Socialists" for the establishment of a Bolshevist State. These groups are working toward ultimate objects which are very different, but they may have a common purpose in so far as the overthrow of the present Government of this country is essential to the realization of any of their programs. Very possibly they may all be united for the overthrow of our Republic, expecting thereafter to fight out their own quarrels at the cost of the body of our people. But leaders are few in any revolution, nor do they succeed in a large country unless there are present sufficient grounds for discontent to make a great number of the people think that anything is better than the conditions in which they now live.

If a majority, or anything like it, of the American people are so dissatisfied with present conditions that they would do anything to overthrow them; if they are willing to take as a substitute for our present political and social organization the system whose beneficent workings we are seeing so brilliantly illustrated in Russia, then the Red Terror may be at hand. No doubt the leaders of these revolutionary groups believe that this is the condition in the United States, but it may be doubted if anybody else believes it. Revolutionary germs are like tuberculosis germs, they are always present in the system, but they do no damage until some condition arises which opens the way for their ravages. Nobody who contrasts the present material and moral situation of America with that of Russia is likely to be very badly scared by this plot which the Post Office Department has brought to light.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Piece of German Self-Deception.

"Frightful," according to the Frankfurter Zeitung, are the new armistice terms. Is President Wilson "so much in the clouds that he does not realize the situation"? Less than a month ago the Frankfurter Zeitung published a supplement on Alsace-Lorraine. France had no right to the two provinces. There must be a plebiscite. At the same time, Mr. Simon, the editor, was rolling "self-determination" like a sweet morsel under his tongue. "Let bygones be bygones," he said cheerfully, waving away the responsibilities and the crimes of Germany.

Apparently it was a general delusion in Frankfort that Mr. Wilson was the special friend of Germany and was going to be its intercessor against the wicked Allies. Germany wasn't going to give up her extravagant pretensions. The head of a great bank told a correspondent that most of the persons who had extensive financial interests in Alsace-Lorraine did not regard the future status of those provinces as settled by the war. Even the supposed economic advantages of the Entente were doubtful. Much was hoped from labor disturbances in England and France.

"We will not deceive ourselves," the Frankfurter Zeitung, disillusioned at last, says plaintively. So it takes up again the task of trying to deceive its readers. The new terms mean "slavery" to Germany, and so on. Having been so wise in the past, the oracle proceeds to be as wise about the future. The sure result of this ungentle handling of poor, innocent Germany "will be Bolshevism in Germany, which means world Bolshevism." In adversity, as in its most arrogant prosperity, the German genius for self-hypnotism and self-delusion is inexhaustible. Of course a certain discontent has to be shown for "bluff."

Washington Claimed No Perfection.

The comment made by George Washington on the Constitution of the United States while that document was in process of discussion by the various States, as given in the letter published on this page yesterday, might be taken to heart by the enemies of the League of Nations and by some of its friends. "The Constitution that is submitted," he wrote, "is not free from imperfections; but there are as few radical defects in it as could well be expected, considering the heterogeneous mass of which the Convention was composed and the diversity of interests which were to be reconciled." It was not written on tables of stone handed down from Sinai, but provision had been made for future amendment; and Washington made an observation that would fit our time as well as his when he said that much opposition would come from the fact that "the importance and sinister views of too many characters will be affected by the change."

The Constitution that was put into operation in 1789 has not worked perfectly, but it has worked pretty well by comparison with the political systems of other countries, and it has worked superlatively well by comparison with conditions under the Articles of Confederation. Sensible men in Washington's day realized that the choice was not between the Constitution and a state of ideal perfection, but between the Constitution and the all but unendurable condition which had preceded it; sensible men today may come to the same conclusion with the plan for the League of Nations.

Artists Under the Soviets.

We are so much occupied with the outward menace of Bolshevism that we are unable to give much attention to its inward operations; and are hampered besides by the fact that observers of Bolshevism in Russia, unless they adhere to its doctrines, are unpopular and likely to be driven out or kept to starve in jail. But an entertaining account of Bolshevist education in the fine arts is given by a correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung, whose observations, reprinted by The New Europe, are worthy of extended study. There is a Commissary of Popular Enlightenment, Mr. Lunacharsky, whose work is known in Russia as Prolet-Kult, an abbreviation of proletarian culture, and includes all activities having to do with art and education.

The correspondent finds that in some directions the Commissary is making some headway in carrying art to the masses; but his work is hampered by lack of co-operation from the artists. For, he says, "Russia's brutal rulers are demanding even from the arts that they should be subject to the communist principle. Music, painting, and poetry are under orders from the State to be revolutionary, garish, and irreconcilable. The appointment of artists is contingent upon a written adhesion to the Communist or at least the Social Revolutionary Party. There are many who would rather go without bread and shelter than submit to such tests." We have long heard of the baleful influence of democracy on art; now it seems that proletarian dictatorship works no better. It looks as if a generous and not too exacting Maecenas is the best friend of the creative artist; a poet of democracy or of the social revolution is, perhaps unconsciously, working against his own economic interest.

Post-War Washington.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a long time since I (once known to your open columns as the bachelor of Sleepy Hollow Farm) have ventured to address you. It has been because—immured here since the day after von Bernstorff got his papers—wartime Washington has not impelled one to the lighter vein. But now peace has come, near-Spring is in the air, and Washington has regained its sense of humor, to wit:

Today I went looking for a flat. At the last stopping place I found a list of tenants at the door: "Colonel and Mrs. Blank," "the Minister of Blank and Mme. Blank," "the Assistant Secretary of Blank and Mrs. Blank," and "the Janitor and Mrs. Huggins"!

Tonight I dined at the Shoreham. Two gentlemen sat at a table behind me. One of them I recognized as a member of the lower house. In due course proceeded from him these words: "By Godfrey, she's like Caesar's wife; what he says goes!"

So you see the blight of the war agencies is vanishing. The dollar-a-year men have nearly all gone home, and Washington is come into its own again. G. C.

Value of Current History Magazine.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I can honestly say that I have myself found no single book of material on the war more constantly useful than The Current History Magazine of The New York Times. It does not give opinions unless they are themselves history, but collects that sort of material which it is often difficult for a historian to find, because it appears only in temporary form and then is lost. Practically every phase of the war of any importance is in some way treated in this magazine, and in each case a document, an authoritative opinion, or an authentic statement is to be found. The witness cited may possibly have been wrong, but the reader is sure that he is dealing with testimony and not with imagination.

THE ORCHESTRA.

Comrades, yet separate, alone intent
Each on the key-note of his instrument,
Till, 'mid the discords, each the true note finds.
Straightway, attuned as one, their several minds
To one harmonious purpose jointly bent,
And part to part melodiously binds.

Even so, amid the clash of clamorous needs,
God's truth attains athwart all wrangling creeds.
Even so, that wars forevermore may cease,
Building the future on a ruined past,

GRACE DENIO LITCHFIELD.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With so many misrepresentations and calumnies afloat now about conditions in Russia, it is almost impossible to reply to every false assertion or testimony. Yet there are matters of such great consequence, questions so pregnant with meaning, that it would be a crime not to give the world a true exposition of the actual facts. Among many other calumnies regarding conditions in Russia, one of the most revolting is the recent testimony of Colonel Raymond Robins before the Senate committee in the matter of the Czechoslovaks, their stay in Russia, and their fighting against the Bolsheviki.

The events referred to occurred in the Spring of 1918, when the remnant of this brave and honorable army, which for three years had fought against Germany together with our Russian troops, decided—after the treacherous peace arranged by Lenine and Trotzky at Brest-Litovsk was signed—to go to France and continue the war for the freedom of all the democracies of the world, and their own as well. As it was impossible for them to cross the former Russian front because of the German troops, the Czechoslovaks decided to go to the east, through all Russia and Siberia, to reach Vladivostok, and from there to sail for France, a journey of many thousands of miles by land and water.

As for myself, I was at that time hidden in Moscow, and through my many friends could get news from some provinces along the Volga River, where small detachments of the Czechoslovak Army appeared by and by, part on foot and part by rail, all armed, and even with some artillery. Then I began to get letters from many peasants asking me who these mysterious troops were and what were their intentions. To those questions they added that this strange army was a well-behaved one, never harming any one and paying regularly for all the provisions obtained along their route.

Soon afterward we read in the papers that detachments of Czechoslovaks, armed and in good order, dotted the long way from the Volga to Eastern Sibera. Finding it impossible to be transported and fed in one large body, they had dissolved themselves into many groups and were continuing on their way.

It was in May of 1918 that some officers were sent by the Bolsheviki to Siberia to order these brave men to lay down their arms. Some arms were given up by the small detachments near Novo-Nicholayevsk, but about half were retained by the Czechoslovaks. These happenings were reported in the Moscow papers without any comment, but intelligent people began to understand the meaning of the persecution of the Czechoslovaks. It was clear that behind the Bolshevist policy to disarm any force fighting the Germans in Russia stood the Kaiser's ambassador, Count von Mirbach.

And very soon afterward we read again that some more officers and Red Guards had been sent to Siberia for the same purpose. But the Czechoslovaks understood that it meant death for them to be left to the mercy of the Red Guards, who already counted among their number many thousands of German and Magyar prisoners, equipped and armed at the command of Moscow. Instead of surrendering, the Czechoslovaks turned to the west, and their first deed was to turn the Red Guards out of the town of Novo-Nicholayevsk. The joy of the inhabitants was intense.

The 1st of July I left Moscow secretly with a young friend, a member of our party, and proceeded to the east, where I hoped to encounter friends and partisans able to organize a truly democratic government for all Russia. Crossing the Ural Mountains, making a detour to avoid the front, stopping in the villages to change horses and get some rest, on all sides we heard the same lamentations of the peasants about the looting and violence of the Red Guards and about the peasants' wishes to get aid from somebody.

"There are people, the Czechoslovaks, good people," I heard from the peasants. "Why do they not come here to turn out these brigands?"

And the nearer we approached Siberia, the louder were the complaints of the people and the more eager the desire to have these brave soldiers with them.

Tumen, an important trading centre, was full of Bolsheviki when we entered it. These brigands were turning the people mad with despair and fear of their violence and robbery, taking from every family everything possible and emptying all the shops and stores, to send the goods to Ekaterinburg. It was just the moment when the Czechoslovaks, having turned the Bolsheviki out of Omsk, Tobolsk, and the villages on the way, were approaching Tumen and were expected from day to day by the tortured inhabitants.

The Bolshevist party opened its ranks not only to criminals, but also to many psychologically abnormal, almost insane, elements. Given the privilege of choosing their functions, these elements had every opportunity to satisfy their cruel instincts. So in Tumen there was a Bolshevist Inspector of the prison, a ferocious monster, who tortured the prisoners arrested by the Bolsheviki so incessantly that some went absolutely mad, some died from their tortures, and some were buried under the stones and rocks before they were dead.

Having friends all over Russia, I was concealed by several doctors in a hospital for some time, until we should find it possible to leave Tumen safely. Then, one morning, shouts were heard throughout the hospital: "They are coming! They are coming!" And they came, Colonel (now General) Sorovoy, with his gallant Czechoslovaks, and a Russian General with some Russian troops. It was a thanksgiving day. Not only the town, but all the surrounding villages were represented here, with thousands of people praying, cheering, and crying with joy like children. The municipality, the schools, the churches—all the organizations sent their delegates to invite the saviors to the coming feast. Many of the women came dressed in mourning; some of the mothers of the victims of the Bolshevist terror had to be supported, for they could not walk by themselves.

It was the first time I saw with my own eyes and came in close touch with the Czechoslovak officers and men. They were admired by all of us, not only for their gallant appearance, but they were also esteemed as brave warriors, most perfect gentlemen, and splendid citizens.

After this memorable day I always had the most friendly relations with Czechoslovak soldiers and officers. I was interested in their political aspirations, and everywhere and in all circumstances I found them the same: noble, unselfish, strong in their duties and faith. In Omsk I was proclaimed by the Czechoslovaks the "grandmother" of their troops in Russia. There, as well as in Ekaterinburg, in Cheliabinsk, in Ufa, in Samara, in all these places I always found them fine men, beloved and esteemed by all the Russians.

Yes, they were admired especially for their humanity, their sense of honor and bravery. While Colonel Robins tells his stories about the Czechoslovak "atrocities," I have never heard any complaint against them, never a derogatory remark, even by those who envied their valor, their constant and unfailing success. All intelligent Russians are proud to have them as brothers in the Slavonic race, all our simple people love them for their readiness to sympathetically aid every suffering human being.

It is natural that such excellent people, such examples of bravery and honor, are hated by the Bolsheviki and their supporters, who are in character the very antithesis of the blessed Czechoslovak people.

I will say, in conclusion, that if a man, called as a witness, can insinuate about and slander a whole people and a whole army, known well to all the Russian people as the model of honor and humanity, what credit can be given to all the assertions made by him at second hand, or even, as he says, from his personal knowledge?

ANGLO-AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

During this short visit of mine in the United States, crowded every day with the thrilling experience of meeting large numbers of interesting men and women who count for a good deal in the intellectual and social life of the American people, I have been able to study, at least a little, the difference in psychology and temperament between their race and mine.

There are differences, of course. They live in a more vital atmosphere of mentality. In spite of a central heating system which in hotels, restaurants and railway trains makes the veins swell in my forehead until I gasp like a stickleback jerked out of water, they dwell, mentally, in a freer air than that of England. It is impossible for an Englishman coming to this country for the first time not to realize that after a very short visit. They are not so fettered by old traditions of thought, nor by old superstitions of class and caste. Every man has, unconsciously or consciously, a sense of opportunity which does not belong to our people; and that opportunity is there.

One can do big things in America in a big way, given a little luck and a little talent. If a literary man gains success over here, it is a big success worth having, not only financially (which helps) but in generous recognition far beyond anything of which he may dream in England; and so it is in every branch of life. The American people like success, and there is no envy or jealousy in their hearts for a man who succeeds. They acclaim him almost too noisily, make a fuss over him, and desire his opinion on things of which, like myself, he knows nothing; all of which is very delightful and encouraging to his soul and stokes up his inner fire, so that he strives toward new goals.

In England it is different. Success is of smaller account and has more critics. Opportunity for success is not so spacious. The inner fire is damped down by wet blankets of pessimism and the philosophy of "after all, what does it matter?"

In America it does matter, or seems to, and every man goes about with a sense of adventure in his heart and the belief that around the corner he may come face to face with Luck. It is this which gives the average American citizen a wonderfully free spirit of independence in speech and in thought. There is no servility, no moral doffing of caps, except as a salute to success. The hall porter, the "captain," or head waiter, the elevator girl, the city clerk, has a cheerful courtesy, if not crossed in temper, as may happen to the best of us, which is devoid of all subservience.

It is willing service in exchange for the market price of labor, and don't you forget that you may be giving a "quarter" (which is an English shilling) to a man who, in a few years, may be rolling down Fifth Avenue in a Cadillac car, or maybe not. I find them keener than English people, more vital and intense, less reserved in the expression of thought, straighter and bolder in the way they think, though less subtle and sensitive to half-tones and the scale between light and shade. That is to say they are uncompromising and see things black or see things white. They have no use for the gray twilight of thought, as far as I have observed. This makes them good friends and bad enemies. They like or they hate strongly. I see this in their attitude to Germany, at the present time.

Their hatred for the German race is uncompromising, unless they are of close German origin. When I tell stories of the way in which our English soldiers treated their prisoners like tame pets after capture they look grave, and suspect Bolshevism. When I allude to the extreme courage of German soldiers, which should be acknowledged because otherwise we put a slur upon our own fighting men, who found them hard to beat, they are silent and shocked. When I suggest that some time in the future—say in half a century—the German people, cleansed of militarism, must be allowed to breathe and work in a new society of nations, they shake their heads and say "Germany must be crushed to the earth and ground into the dust." At the moment, anyhow, a large number of Americans in the well-educated classes are not prepared to admit that hatred should have a time limit, and that no new foundation of society can be built upon the gospel of hate—which, to me, seems a sterile and unnatural thing when it is directed to whole nations, among whom, probably, there are kind human people with a great and passionate regret for the crimes which have been committed by the powers that ruled them.

An intense hatred of Germany, whose crimes were many in the United States, governs many of the people I have met, and because of it they are antagonistic to any League of Nations which would admit Germany on anything like equal terms, even after full payment for her criminal acts and her widespread destruction. I sympathize with them, though I think that the safety of the world depends upon grace to the German people when they have purged themselves of their old philosophy of militarism and force. What I think, however, matters little, and I am trying only to get the American point of view. And what interests me most is not the American attitude of mind toward Germany, but toward the English people.

It is idle to pretend that the entire American people have a new-born love of England. They have not. As far as I can make out, not by direct contact with great bodies of people, which is impossible for me, but by conversations with intellectual men and women who are in touch with those masses, Americans will have to make a break with many old memories and traditions before there is a closer comradeship between our two peoples. Yesterday I was in Philadelphia and went to see Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed, as the most glorious memory of a free people. On the walls were tablets commemorating the expulsion of an English Army, and in America history books are chapters devoted to that army, which was largely made up of German mercenaries. So that in childhood the American people do not start with a sympathetic disposition toward our own. Later history emphasizes our differences, and modern history, made in the last few years, does not wipe out all that so cleanly as we might hope or believe after American soldiers have fought in comradeship with ours.

On the contrary, I am told that American soldiers returning from France are not extravagant in their affection for our fighting men. Tommy Atkins seems to have put no restraint upon his sense of humor and to have told the "Yankees" very plainly that they are mistaken if they believe they have won the war, because there had been soldiers in France before they came. Personally I saw nothing of that behind the lines and on the battlefields, where there seemed to be a fine comradeship between American troops and ours, and where, certainly, young American officers were on the warmest terms of friendship with British officers, as I had many opportunities of seeing. But if that feeling of resentment does exist in troops returning to this country, it is no use blinking the fact, which is tragic.

My own experience is contrary to that and leads me to the profound hope, and the honest belief, that America and England will sink all petty differences and bind themselves together in a brotherhood of speech and ideals. In all the lectures I have given to great audiences there has been a wonderful and generous response to my stories of the suffering and sacrifice of British troops, and afterward the people who crowd about me express, with deep and sincere emotion, their desire for a closer union with England. Not only that, but in many assemblies where I have been a guest the leading men and women of New York and other cities, people of high distinction because of their intellectual and social worth, have risen to make speeches which I have listened to with reverence and respect. They have not said much about the relations between England and America. They have spoken more about the ideals of life and humanity, and they have spoken words of great beauty, revealing that in their souls there is a passionate desire for a new philosophy of civilization which may lift the world a little higher than it was before and during the war, and give more safety to the multitudes of people in their search for the decencies and joy of life.

These speeches are from the "intellectuals" of America, from men and women who have read much and thought more, not on abstract lines but with actual work and suffering on behalf of the fighting men and the women and children left behind. As "intellectuals" they have a broader vision than the average crowd, but their thoughts and ideals are striking down to the basis of American life and permeating it with a spirit of noble desire. For there is a great well of idealism in the character of the American people, in spite of their practical outlook, their search for individual success, and their keen competition. They are more easily stirred by emotion than we are, and I am certain that now, in all subjects affected by the problems of war, it is an unselfish emotion.

So I believe that if the spirit of England reaches out to that of America in frankness and in friendliness, there will be a whole-hearted response, and small differences and petty interests and old prejudices will be wiped out in a new entente and fellowship of ideas. England has much to learn from this great people. I find life out here thrilling because of its free and vital atmosphere, from which the unessentials of social customs are clean cut out.

I stand amazed at the fair, broad reach of purpose which is seen in such commonplace things as railway stations, built like cathedrals as object lessons of beauty to the crowds that surge in them, and in such cities as New York, where in those high castles with many windows, reaching to the sky, there is an intense activity of life and thought not devoted entirely or mainly to a mere hunt for the almighty dollar but to the needs of human intercourse and affection and the art of living better than the beasts. We in England want more of this American spirit of independence and straight thinking. We need more of the vital energy which over here seeps like a strong wind through the street so that there are megrims in the people's eyes. Our repose and their energy should meet half way and build for humanity upon principles which are the same in both countries, reaching back to the same wells of thought in English poetry and prose and have, as in instinct, the same code of honor.

HOLDS CROWDER TO BLAME.

C. J. Post Asserts That General Had Power of Court-Martial Review.

An interview relating to Secretary Baker's defense of Judge Advocate General Crowder was given yesterday by Charles Johnson Post, now Director of the Publishers' Advisory Board, at 200 Fifth Avenue, and who, in 1914, attacked alleged abuses of the court-martial system.

"When Secretary Baker," said Mr. Post, "in his defense of Judge Advocate General Crowder stated that he did not recall prior to the war that 'our system of military law ever became the subject of public attack on the ground of its structural defects' he placed himself on record as being probably the only official connected with the War Department who was not aware that in 1914 an elaborate series of articles setting forth case after case of cruelty, injustice, and abuse was published in Harper's Weekly.

"These articles were based upon hundreds of cases in the War Department, which the Judge Advocate General's Department permitted me to go over. Later, when I was fortified with facts and a knowledge of the department's methods I asked questions which proved embarrassing, and I was peremptorily denied further access to these public records of public court-martial trials.

"I charged that enlisted men were punished in time of peace with reckless severity and prison sentences for slight infractions of discipline when officers who had committed crimes of embezzlement and fraud against the soldiers under them, with whose funds they were intrusted, were lightly punished by a simple dismissal from the army without prison sentence.

"In no way does Judge Advocate General Crowder attempt to meet the issue or deny the exposures of the Congressional Committee as to abuses and inhumanities in his department; General Crowder merely attacks the courage of General Ansell for making these abuses public.

"As to the legal argument, General Crowder in substance states that he was powerless to revise the abuses of lack of revision of the court-martial cases because it was necessary for Congress to pass adequate legislation. This is disingenuous. Congress passes the organic law, the articles of war, and every legislative enactment governing the War Department and other governmental departments. But like every other great governmental department, Congress also empowers that department to establish its own rules and regulations under the Congressional organic law for the administration of the department. These rules are covered in the department in a series of volumes known as the opinions of the Judge Advocate General, which are the departmental interpretations of the organic law, and are merely regulations only for the department—but which may be changed by the department itself, since the department itself is the supreme authority as to its own regulations. General Crowder had the power to reverse the opinions of the Judge Advocate General that preceded him, in a similar way to that in which any department chief can—where no legal matters are involved. For years past General Crowder has elected to defend the court-martial system, and on his head alone is the responsibility for the present general public condemnation."

Australia to Start Public Works.

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 11.—To take care of unemployed returned soldiers, the Federal Government of Australia has appropriated $2,500,000 to construct public works pending completion of a larger scheme to provide work for homecoming Anzacs along permanent lines.

AIR TRAINING STOPS; DIRECTOR CHANGED

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Coincident with the announcement today that the place of Major Gen. William L. Kenly as Director of Military Aeronautics of the Army had been taken by Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, it was learned that orders have been issued for the cessation of aviation training at all fields in the United States, except two, to be designated by Major Gen. Charles T. Menoher, Director of the Air Service. These instructions take effect March 15. Thereafter the work done at other fields than the two to be selected will have to do only with the storage and maintenance of equipment.

All aviation personnel that can be spared will be discharged by March 31. The fliers retained at the two training fields to be kept in operation will be, so far as practicable, those who desire to remain in the permanent military establishment.

These orders represent a new effort to keep demobilization up to a schedule and get the total of discharges to the 2,000,000 mark by the end of the present month. The cancelling of General Kenly's war-time rank and his assignment to his own branch of the service, the field artillery, in his permanent rank of Colonel, was said to be in line with the policy of reduction all along the line.

The orders also were interpreted as signalizing the new status of the air service which is developing and the fact that General Menoher has actually taken hold of the entire service, both production and operation, after devoting nearly two months to studying the situation, during which time he did not interfere with the methods he found on his return from France, where he commanded the 42d (Rainbow) Division.

The appointment of General Menoher, after the resignation of John D. Ryan, as Civilian Director and Assistant Secretary in charge of aviation matters, meant that the air service was to be combined for peace purposes under a single head, since the bulk of production problems ceased with the termination of hostilities. It also accounts, in the opinion of officers, for General Kenly's return to his regular army rank. General Mitchell was an aviator before the war, when the service was under the signal corps, and virtually all of his duty in the army has been in the aviation branch. He had command of the flying service of the American Expeditionary Force.

General Menoher has not yet designated the fields at which training for the air service is to continue, and officers had no suggestions to make as to his probable selections. Including numerous special fields, about thirty aviation fields and centres were in operation during the war. In selecting two of these it was said that General Menoher undoubtedly would be influenced by year-round weather conditions. This would imply the selection of some of the Southern fields.

STORY OF A NEAR EAST WAIF

The American Committee for Relief in the Near East made public yesterday the story of one of its workers in the campaign for $6,000,000, one-half of which has already been raised. The worker is a child of 3½ years, nicknamed "Exile," the son of Mrs. Paris M. Harpootlian, an Armenian, who recently arrived in this city with her six children, a refugee from Turkish cruelties.

Little "Exile," the committee announced, has been canvassing the city in native costume, appealing for the fund which will clothe not only 400,000 little lads like himself, but orphans starving for lack of life's necessities. Mrs. Oliver Harriman, in charge of the women workers of the campaign, said yesterday that the little boy would be instrumental in securing a good part of the $3,000,000 yet to be raised.

"'Exile' is a child of tragedy," the committee announced. "On May 2 his mother was deported from the city of Mamouret ul Aziz, in Harpoot, Turkey, together with her husband and six children. All of the other inhabitants of the region were deported on that day. The husband, who was a prosperous merchant, and the two eldest sons, were separated from their family on arrival at the banks of the Euphrates. Mrs. Harpootlian reached Mamouret Ul Aziz and was at once captured by the Turks and thrown into prison in company with murderers and other criminals. After a year of hardship Mrs. Harpootlian escaped to Tiflis, where she met Dr. F. W. McCallum of the American committee, who supplied her with money and clothing, notified her relatives in the United States, and started her on the way to this country."

Evening Club Gives First Dance.

The first dance of the Evening Dance Club, held last night at the Hotel Vanderbilt, was largely attended by society, the proceeds to aid the French wounded at Nancy. Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mrs. Robert L. Stevens, Mrs. Herbert Shipman, Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Mrs. A. D. B. Pratt, Mrs. James H. Kidder, Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, Mrs. Irving Brokaw, Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., Mrs. Miller Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, and Mrs. John Claflin were among those who had tables for the opening night. These supper dances will continue for several weeks.

To Discuss Educational Problems.

The second conference of The Federation, with headquarters at 114 Fifth Avenue, will be held at the Stuyvesant Neighborhood House, 36 Stuyvesant Street, today and will be devoted to the discussion of educational problems. The morning session will hear addresses by Professor Charles R. Richards, director of Cooper Institute; Dr. Edgar S. Barney, Principal of Hebrew Technical Institute, and Dr. James Parton Haney, director of art in New York City high schools. In the afternoon I. Edwin Goldwasser, Dr. Leon W. ANSELL SENDS REPLY TO CROWDER CHARGE

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Former Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, who for a time was Acting Judge Advocate General of the Army, and has been fighting for army court-martial reforms, submitted to the War Department today a written reply to Major Gen. Crowder's letter of Saturday to Secretary Baker, in which the former charged that General Ansell sought, without his knowledge, to have himself made Judge Advocate General while General Crowder, who is Judge Advocate General, was acting as Provost Marshal General in charge of the draft.

General Ansell's letter was delivered to Benedict Crowell, Acting Secretary of War, who did not make it public because it was addressed to Secretary Baker, who is making a tour of military posts in the West.

Soon after the Ansell statement was submitted Representative Gould of New York gave out copies of a letter he write to Secretary Baker today regarding the demotion of Ansell from his war-time commission as a Brigadier General. The Representative told the Secretary that he was "unable to escape the conclusion that the War Department had deliberately and ruthlessly adopted this method of punishing a public-spirited and efficient officer whose sole offense was against a powerful and self-centred clique in your department, in that he answered a summons which he couldn't decline, and told the Congress of the United States the truth about a matter which it was clearly the duty of Congress to inquire into."

The reply submitted by Colonel Ansell is understood to be addressed to this charge rather than to further discussion of the controversy over military justice matters.

Some officers doubt if the department will further air the controversy between General Crowder and a subordinate officer, particularly since the whole subject has been submitted to the Inspector General of the Army, Major Gen. John L. Chamberlain, for investigation. Colonel Ansell himself cannot make public his letter without rendering himself liable to disciplinary proceedings.

TRAGEDIES IN EARLY LIFE

To be Buried in Sleepy Hollow, Near Louis Klopsch, Her Old Friend, According to Agreement.

Mrs. Amelia Edith Barr, the novelist, died Monday night at her home, 445 Bedford Avenue, Richmond Hill, L. I. She lacked only a few weeks of being 88 years old. Mrs. Barr had never completely recovered from a heat stroke suffered last July and had been confined to her bed ever since.

Her daughter, Mrs. Edward Munro, was at her bedside when the end came. A younger daughter, Miss Alice Barr, was summoned, and arrived shortly afterward. Mrs. Barr's other daughter, Mrs. Mary Monroe, the wife of Kirk Monroe, the author, was with her husband at Cocoanut Grove, Fla., but is now on her way here to attend the funeral, which will be held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at the residence. Burial will be in the plot of the late Louis Klotsch, in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, near Tarrytown, N. Y.

Born in Ulverston, Lancashire, England, a daughter of the Rev. William Huddlestone, on March 29, 1831, she received her education in the Glasgow, Scotland, High School. When about 18, she married Robert Barr, son of the Rev. John Barr of Dovehill Kirk, an author.

A few years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Barr came to America, landing in New York when Bowling Green and Lafayette Place were among the city's fashionable quarters. They went immediately West, then South, living for a time in New Orleans, then in Galveston, and finally settled in Austin, Texas, where they lived until after the civil war, when they moved back to Galveston. In 1867 an epidemic of yellow fever occurred, in which her husband and four sons were stricken and died, while she and her three daughters were spared.

Shortly afterward she came to New York with a letter of introduction which gained for her a position as teacher in Ridgewood, N. J. One night at a dinner party some one said to her: "Mrs. Barr, if you can write as well as you can talk you might make some money." She determined to do so, and went to the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, who was then editor of The Christian Union, and soon commenced to write for that paper.

Her first novel, "Jan Vedder's Wife," was written in 1884 while confined to a chair by a sprained ankle. Bought and published by Dodd, Mead & Co., the book put her at once among the successful novel writers of the day.

Soon afterward she established a home, Cherry Croft, Cornwall Heights, Cornwall-on-Hudson, and spent many years there, with occasional Summers in Europe. Her home on the north side of Storm King Mountain was the admiration of visitors for years. In recent years she had made her home at Richmond Hill, where she lived quietly, surrounded by friends, still devoting most of her time to her writing, and keenly interested in all that went on in the world.

Mrs. Barr wrote no less than eighty novels. The last one, completed in June, 1918, was entitled, "The Paper Cap," and was based on labor troubles in her native country, England, of which she had been a witness. She had laid out another novel, "The Flag of David," upon which she was at work when she was stricken last July.

In addition to "Jan Vedder's Wife," some of her best known novels were: "Border Shepherdess," "Feet of Clay," "Bernicia," "Remember the Alamo," "She Loved a Sailor," "The Lone House," "A Sister to Esau," "Prisoners of Conscience," "The Tioni Whelp," "The Black Shilling," "The Belle of Bowling Green," "The Strawberry Handkerchief," "Cherry Street," "Playing With Fire," "Trinity Bells," "Measure of a Man," "Three Score and Ten," "Winning of Lucia," "Profit and Loss," "Joan," "Christine," "An Orkney Maid."

The burial arrangements revealed a long standing agreement between the late Louis Klopsch and Mrs. Barr, made when the former was editor of The Christian Herald, and Mrs. Barr was his close friend and a literary contributor to his periodical. The story, as told by her daughter, Mrs. Edward Munro, is that Mr. Klopsch said to Mrs. Barr:

"When you die, I want you to be buried in my plot in Sleepy Hollow, for when the resurrection comes I want you to be there close by me."

Mr. Klopsch's widow recalled this agreement when she heard Mrs. Barr was dying, and she went immediately to Richmond Hill and took charge of the arrangements to have the agreement carried into effect.

Mr. Connick was President of the Camolin Realty Company, Vice President of the Fort Washington Syndicate, of the Sound Realty Company, the Bank of Washington Heights, and a Director of the Mutual Bank.

'MAYOR OF SECOND AV.' DIES

Simon Steingut, Democratic Leader for 30 Years, a Victim of Cancer.

Simon Steingut, known as "Mayor of Second Avenue," died last night in the Montefiore Home and Hospital of cancer of the tongue.

"Mayor" Steingut was in the sixty-third year of his age and was in the real estate business at 47 West Forty-second Street. The funeral will be held at Schwartz's Chapel, 312 East Fifth Street, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The leader of Democratic thought in Second Avenue, "Mayor" Steingut held undisputed sway for thirty years. In 1911 Joe Levy, "Duke of Essex Street," opposed him for the honor and came within five votes of winning. The election was held at Hirschorn's Hall at Second Avenue and First Street, and the contest was a memorable one. The "Duke of Essex Street" and his friends claimed the ballot boxes had been stuffed. "Mayor" Steingut, always wearing a silk hat and Prince Albert coat, was early on the scene.

It had been a custom of "Mayor" Steingut for many years to distribute Christmas baskets to the poor of Second Avenue, and although he was ill in Bellevue Hospital last Christmas he directed his son to see that the usual number of baskets were sent out.

He was a member of the Hester Club, Tammany Club of the Tenth Assembly District, the Young Men's Hebrew Tammany Association of the Tenth District and a contributor to the Montefiore Home.

An informal reception was held yesterday afternoon in the Booth Memorial Hospital, 314 East Fifteenth Street, to mark the opening of a large addition to the building. Others who have been instrumental in bringing the hospital to a point where it has been a strong factor in war work in this country, are Mrs. John Huddleston, Miss Gertrude Outerbridge and Mrs. Delancey Kountze, and to all of these who had given their services, Mrs. John M. Glenn presented the Red Cross service stripes and badge. Mrs. William Kinnicutt Draper, Vice Chairman of the New York County Chapter of the Red Cross, made the presentation address.

Crowded Out

FREQUENTLY it is necessary to omit advertisements from The New York Times in order that the space allotted to news may not be encroached upon.

March		Columns Omitted.	Columns Published.
3	Monday,	6	122
4	Tuesday,	20	110
5	Wednesday,	22	100
6	Thursday,	32	115

Careful discrimination in the assignment of advertising space is forced upon The Times by this condition. Preference is given, therefore, to advertisements having news value and to those for which copy is delivered at an early day and hour before publication.

It is suggested that orders for the insertion of advertisements give The Times an option on the date of publication. There is reasonable assurance that all advertising accepted will be published on Saturday, Sunday or Monday, but it is difficult to give promise of publication on other days of the week.

Orders for the insertion of advertisements of a general character, so far as possible, should include the words "or first available day," as well as the date when publication is preferred.

Ruppert, Huston, and Grant to Confer Today on Deal for Boston Second Baseman.

A QUESTION OF SALARY

Player Sees Owner of Braves Here and Has Permission to Talk Business with Local Club.

Despite the denials from the offices of the Yankees, Charley Herzog, former captain of the Giants and now the property of the Boston Braves, may become a member of Manager Huggins's team within a few days. Following the report from Baltimore that Joe Kelly, scout of the Yanks, was hunting all over Maryland for Herzog, that dapper young man showed up in New York and had a long talk yesterday afternoon with George W. Grant, the owner of the Braves.

Herzog has a contract with the Braves which goes into effect on the opening day of the season. It calls for something like $10,000, and the Boston club does not care to swing such a heavy obligation. It was understood some time ago that all the National League clubs waived on Herzog. Grant and Herzog talked for over an hour yesterday. It is not known just what salary Grant told Herzog the Braves were willing to pay, but whatever it was it did not meet with Herzog's approval, and if Charley plays with the Braves this season he will insist on the club fulfilling the terms of his contract.

If the Boston club should release Herzog when the season starts, the player will automatically become a free agent, as he has been playing in the major leagues more than ten years. He cannot be sent back to the minor leagues unless he himself consents to the change.

Mr. Grant said yesterday that any club had his permission to talk business with the player, so it is believed that a representative of the Yankees has been in touch with Herzog, and that is the reason that he came here yesterday. Herzog intended to return to his home in Ridgeley, Md., but at the last minute he changed his mind and will remain over today anyway.

This is significant because both Colonel Huston and Colonel Ruppert, the owners of the Yankees, are out of the city and both intend to return today. It is expected that there will be a conference today which may result in Herzog becoming a member of the Yankees.

Both Mr. Grant and Manager Huggins denied that they had had a conference about the player, but that one will be held today is a certainty.

With the whole left wing of the Yankee infield, Baker, Peckinpaugh, and Pratt among the hold-outs, Herzog looms up as the available man to fill any one of the three vacancies. While Baker is not a hold-out, it is not at all certain that he will play ball again, and with Peck and Pratt still undecided about signing it looks as if there was going to be at least one vacancy in the infield. As Herzog can play any one of the three positions and play any one pretty well, it is only natural that the Yankees would try to get him if satisfactory terms can be arranged.

The aggressiveness and fighting spirit of Herzog is well known to New York baseball fans. He would give the Yankee infield more pepper and dash than it has had in the past. Although Herzog's playing has fallen off in the last two seasons, he still believes that he has a few good seasons left, and could come back in fine style this year.

Herzog admits that he is in a receptive mood. He isn't particular about returning to Boston, and would gladly accept a proposition to play with the Yanks if the arrangements were satisfactory. If the Yanks can get Herzog for the waiver price and offer him a contract which is something like the one he had in Boston, there is little doubt that the player would gladly accept. While it may be that the negotiations have not yet assumed a definite stage, it is likely that a short conference today will settle the matter.

As the officials of the club have made it plain that they will not recede from the attitude they have taken on the contracts of Pratt and Peckinpaugh, these players may be left out in the cold when the season starts. Colonel Huston had an interview with Peck in Cleveland a few days ago, but no announcement has been made about the conference. Peck last season went to the National Commission to try to collect the full amount of his contract, but the commission turned down the request and he was paid for the season which ended on Sept. 1.

The Yankees signed another young outfielder yesterday. He is Tom Miller, who played with Richmond in the Virginia league last season. He had a batting average of .341.

Henry Fabian, the ground keeper for the Giants, has arrived in Gainesville, Fla., where the Giants will train, and sends back a report that the town is an ideal place to train. Fabian is now busy fixing up the diamond and will have it in the best of shape when the players arrive.

Big Ed Pfeffer of the Dodgers left yesterday for Hot Springs, where he will take a little exercise before reporting to the Robins at Jacksonville. The other Dodgers will leave here on March 20, and start training on March 23.

WEIGHT-FOR-AGE RACES.

Real Test for Champions May Be Revived at Pimlico.

The weight for age race, which a few years ago was run as the real test of a horse, will probably be revived this year as a means of determining the real champion of the racing season. W. P. Riggs, Secretary of the Maryland Jockey Club, is in town now conferring with racing officials on the plan of running a series of weight for age races at the Fall meeting in Pimlico.

It is his present plan to hold three such races next Autumn, one at six furlongs, one at a mile and one at a mile and a furlong. In addition there may be an event at two and a quarter miles for a cup. The races would, of course, be open to the horses of all ages and would tend to bring together the stars of the various ages of the year in a meeting which would determine the real champion.

PLAN EAST-WEST NET MATCH

Tennis Association Is Arranging for Contests Next Summer.

Officials of the California Lawn Tennis Association and the United States National Lawn Tennis Association are considering the details of a proposed team match between the East and West, it was announced tonight by George T. Adee, President of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association.

"These intersectional contests have proved so popular in other seasons," said Mr. Adee, "that every effort is being made to arrange such an event for next Summer. Because of the many applications for tournaments on the Atlantic seaboard and the resulting conflicts in dates, an effort is being made to schedule the East-West match for some date in July. Cincinnati is being considered as the place to hold this match, but award of the event cannot be announced until the arrangements now in the course of correspondence are completed. The details will probably be confirmed at the meeting of the Executive Committee in New York on March 21."

NO CREW COACH NAMED.

Although the Columbia University Committee on Athletics had another protracted session yesterday over the selection of a rowing coach for this season, it was announced after the conference that it was impossible to state whether a selection had been made.

It is understood that the sentiment of the committee is in favor of the engagement of Jim Rice, who was coach of the Columbia crews until he resigned last June, but Rice has been insistent in his statements that he did not wish to return to the Blue and White, although he is on the friendliest of terms with the Columbia authorities. It is expected that a definite announcement as to the coaching situation will be made in the course of a few days.

NOT TO ENLARGE N. Y. A. C.

Club Decides Against Plan Involving Expenditure of a Million.

Officials of the New York A. C. last night voted down the proposition to enlarge the quarters of the present city club house at Sixth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. This action was taken at a meeting which was an adjourned session of the annual meeting held last January.

It had been planned to purchase an apartment building at Fifty-eighth Street and Sixth Avenue, with a frontage of about 100 feet on the avenue and about 75 feet on Fifty-eighth Street. This purchase would have given the Mercury Foot organization the entire block on Sixth Avenue, and it was planned to construct an annex to the present building.

A committee appointed to investigate the proposal reported that the undertaking would require an expenditure of $1,000,000 at least. It was felt that such an expenditure would not be advisable at this time, in view of the prohibition legislation and the unsettled condition of things in other respects. When the vote was taken on the matter the opposition was overwhelming, the figures being 211 to 14 against the proposal.

While officials of the club refused to discuss the meeting at great length, it was learned that it is practically certain the question of enlarging the club house will not again be considered, at least until more favorable conditions present themselves. General comment on the present club conditions was expressed following the meeting.

WOMEN NET STARS IN DOUBLES MATCH

Mrs. Wightman and Miss Zinderstein Win Match in Indoor Title Play.

Efficient railroading by the Tournament Committee at the 7th Regiment Armory yesterday brought to completion the entire second round of the women's indoor national tennis championship, as well as the first round of the doubles. The latter event opened with a sizzling match which might well have been a finale instead of a curtain-raiser, bringing together two of the best teams in the draw, Mrs. Wightman and Miss Zinderstein, and the committee Chairman, Marie Wagner, with her regular partner, Clare Cassel.

The Bostonians won in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4, but every rally was hard fought, and the result was uncertain up to the very finish, although Mrs. Wightman and her team-mate were close to top form, which means they were playing the best doubles of which any American women are capable.

Both of the New York girls faltered at times, particularly in failing to reach the net when opportunity cried aloud, but their sharply angled drives and mathematical covering of the court were a pleasure to watch.

In the same half of the draw Eleanor Goss and Mrs. S. Fullerton Weaver ran through Miss Taylor and Mrs. S. W. McAneny, 6—2, 6—1, while the two little Hooker girls, Helen and Adelaide, had an even easier time with Mrs. Dain and Anna Morse, winning with the loss of only one game. Phyllis Walsh and Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer were equally easy victors over Mrs. Vanderpool and Miss Simpson.

In the lower brackets Mrs. H. S. Green and her sister, Natalie Browning, eliminated their stiffest opposition when they took two out of three sets from Caroma Winn and Gertrude Della Torre, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3. Miss Holden and Mrs. A. Humphries also required three sets to win from Emily Scott and her sister, Mrs. E. Van Winkle, the rubber running to 8—6 after the first two sets had been divided, 4—6 and 6—2.

The second Boston team, Mrs. Cabot and Mrs. Godfrey, and the New Yorkers, Mrs. Pritchard and Miss J. Gott, were the remaining winners.

Mrs. Cabot gave Clare Cassel a scare in the second round of the singles, hitting with lusty confidence for the opening set, which she won, at 6—2. But the versatile New York girl put her brain to work, and by accurate placement shots to her opponent's backhand ran away with the rest of the match, 6—1, 6—0. Mrs. Cabot might have done even better under more familiar conditions, and her powerful game will bear watching.

The fourth Bostonian, Mrs. Godfrey, played Phyllis Walsh to the limit before the tall Philadelphia girl won, 2—6, 6—3, 7—5. The other matches were all one-sided, Mrs. Huff disposing of the brilliant young Betty Baker, 6—2, 6—3, Miss Zinderstein overwhelming Miss Sheldon, 6—1, 6—0, Mrs. Green winning from Mrs. Pritchard, Miss Winn from Mrs. Wilbourn, and Miss Walsh a second match from Barbara Hooker. Mrs. Wightman, the favorite for the title, also took two matches without great effort, her victims being Anna Morse and Helen Hooker.

This morning's play brings together Miss Walsh and Mrs. Wightman, Miss Cassel and Mrs. Sohst, Miss Winn and Mrs. Green, and Miss Zinderstein and Mrs. Huff, the winners going into the semi-final round. The consolation singles will also be started today, with twelve eager entries.

The summaries:

Rice Winner at Balkline.

George T. Moon, Jr., national amateur Class B 18.2 balkline billiard champion, was defeated last night by Julian Rice in the handicap 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at Lawler Brothers' Billiard Academy in Brooklyn. The score was 180 to 128. Rice completed his string in twenty-two innings, making an average of 8 4-22, with a high run of 28. Moon's high run was 39, which he made in his first inning. He averaged 6 2-21.

Greenleaf Increases His Lead.

Rickard Favors East for Willard-Dempsey Match.

The place where Jess Willard, world's heavyweight champion, and Jack Dempsey of Salt Lake City, the challenger, will settle their pugilistic dispute on July 4 still remains uncertain. Tex Rickard, promoter of the proposed bout, arrived in this city yesterday after an extended tour of the oil country in the Southwest, but declared he is not yet prepared to mention the location for the bout. Rickard did state positively, for the first time since the articles for the bout were signed, that the contest would be decided July 4, which was the only definite news he vouchsafed.

Rickard has under consideration more than fifteen possible sites for the battle. These he selected from a deluge of telegrams and letters which accumulated during his absence from the city. Many offers were made, some of them stipulating a sum which would be given Rickard for his interest in the match. The Westerner declared positively, however, that he is not in the market to sell the bout, but rather to secure a suitable place to conduct it under his own personal supervision.

Willard and Dempsey have been insured by Promoter Rickard to the extent of $50,000 each. The policy provides against sickness, death, or accident, and has been issued by Lloyd's of London. Rickard also has taken out an additional $100,000 policy on himself, but this is not connected in any way with the forthcoming ring bout.

Rickard will remain here for about ten days, when he will again journey south. He expects upon his return from this trip to divulge the location for the match. By that time he expects action on legislation which is before the lawmakers of numerous States. It is understood that Rickard favors the East for the match.

PLAN TEAM MATCHES FOR WOMEN GOLFERS

Plans are under way for matches between teams representing Westchester County, Long Island, North Jersey, and South Jersey, under the auspices of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. Three May dates have been decided upon, and, although as yet the courses have not been selected, it is understood that links in each section will be chosen. On May 6, North Jersey will line up against South Jersey, and Westchester will meet Long Island; on May 13, it will be Westchester vs. South Jersey and Long Island vs. North Jersey; while on May 20, Westchester and North Jersey will meet, the other tilt being between Long Island and South Jersey.

It is the general belief that each team should be limited to ten women on a side, but before anything definite is decided, the Secretaries at the different clubs will be communicated with. Mrs. Philip Boyer of Piping Rock will lead the Long Island combination; Mrs. Lester Ketcham of Dunwoodie, the Westchester forces; Mrs. T. Neilson of Hackensack, the North Jersey contingent, while Miss Violet Miller of Baltusrol will be Captain of South Jersey.

The W. M. G. A. schedule will also include numerous one-day tournaments for May and June, and Mrs. Percy Thompson, the Secretary, is working on the dates. Besides the one-day meetings, the 1919 list includes the metropolitan championship at Arcola, June 9 to 13, while the women's eastern championship and intercity matches for the Griscom Cup will take place June 2 to 6 over the Apawamis links.

Only a few more days are left for the delinquent clubs to turn in their reports to the Handicap Committee of the Metropolitan Golf Association. Responses this season, have for some reason or other, been unusually slow, but the clubs which wish members to have ratings, will have to get busy.

CASSIDY WINS DECISION.

Frank Cassidy of the Ozanam Association, former New York State amateur boxing champion, returned to competition last night in the preliminary round of the Crescent A. C.'s tournament in Brooklyn, and defeated Joseph Sullivan of the Trinity Club in four hotly contested rounds at 135 pounds. Cassidy, who has just been honorably discharged from Uncle Sam's army, received the judges' award. The bout was one of the best of the season. Both boxers resorted to open style slugging and at this Cassidy was more proficient. Sullivan boxed cleverly at times, so that at the end of three rounds the judges disagreed. In the extra session the two boxers boxed hard for the laurels.

Irving Jampol of the Bronxdale A. C., who formerly held the local 115-pound title, was defeated by E. Tomer in the 125-pound class. The referee called a halt in the first round when Jampol was outclassed. P. Kanowitz of the Pastime A. C. scored a two-round victory over H. Gold, Reis House, in this class. In the 110-pound novice class L. Astumsky stopped L. Epstein in two rounds. H. Green, Pastime A. C., was disqualified in this class in his bout with M. Weschler, Bronxdale A. C. on the ground that he was not a novice.

YALE FIVE EASILY BEATS PRINCETON

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 11.—Yale tonight closed its basketball season by easily defeating Princeton 22 to 10. Although outclassed after the first 11 minutes of play, the Tigers scored first, led 3 to 0 at the end of 5 minutes' play, and 4 to 3 after 11 minutes, when the Yale team's cleevrness became apparent and the Elis had amassed a 12 to 5 lead at intermission.

Van Slick, individual high scorer for the Intercollegiate League, missed every shot from the floor except the most difficult goal which he attempted. Opie alone of the visitors threw a floor goal, his two baskets being all that any Princeton player was able to accomplish. Alderman's all-round game was excellent.

While Captain Gray displayed the best basket ball for the Tigers, both fives used the long passing game, and as a result the baskets thrown were most spectacular, although misses were also frequent.

The lineup:

SAFEGUARDS NEW INDUSTRY

Will Prevent Importation of German Chemicals and Stimulate Research Work Here.

Francis P. Garvan, Alien Enemy Property Custodian, made public yesterday the second chapter of the report of his predecessor, A. Mitchell Palmer, dealing exclusively with the taking over of the German dye interests in the United States, and announcing the establishment by the Property Custodian of a Chemical Foundation which will place German dye secrets at the disposal of American dyestuff manufacturers.

Mr. Garvan, who is the first President of the Chemical Foundation, points out the importance of the new institution, which will not only protect the American manufacturers against German importation of chemicals, but stimulate as well an interest among commercial chemists in organic chemistry, in which the Germans were masters of the field before the war. Opportunities will be held out to research scientists to develop medicinals in more or less the same manner as the German Government aided its scientists to perform research work which promised cures.

Mr. Palmer's report recites in detail, after sketching the history of the German chemical industry, the efforts made by the six great German chemical houses to protect their interests in this country against seizure through mystifying stock manipulations. Concerning the Chemical Foundation the report says:

"The amendment of Nov. 4 to the Trading with the Enemy act presented for the first time an opportunity for what appears to be the most important piece of constructive work which has been possible in my department. Until the enactment of this amendment it had not been possible to take over German patents. These patents formed an obstacle to the development of the American dyestuff industry. Evidently they had not been taken out with any intention of manufacturing in this country or from any fear of American manufacture, which the Germans apparently thought could not be successfully carried on under conditions prevailing in this country in regard to costs and the supply of technicians and skilled labor.

"Upon consideration, however, it seemed that these patents offered a possible solution for the problem, hitherto unsolvable, of protecting the new American dye industry against German competition after the war. If they were not taken out in order to prevent American competition, they must have been obtained as a weapon against competing imports. If they were sufficient to stop importation of competing Swiss, French, and English dyes, they would presumably serve, in American hands, to stop importation of German dyes. This was particularly probable in the case of the products patents, since most of the coal-tar dyestuffs are definite chemicals, to which a product patent is entirely applicable.

"The idea was accordingly conceived that if the German chemical patents could be placed in the hands of any American institution strong enough to protect them, a real obstacle might be opposed to German importation after the war, and at the same time the American industry might be freed from the prohibition enforced by the patents against the manufacture of the most valuable dyestuffs. Accordingly, these considerations were laid before various associations of chemical manufacturers, notably the Dye Institute and the American Manufacturing Chemists' Association. The suggestion was met with enthusiastic approval, and as a result a corporation has been organized, to be known as the Chemical Foundation, Inc., in which practically every important American manufacturer will be a stockholder, the purpose of which is to acquire by purchase these German patents and to hold them, as a trustee for American industry, 'for the Americanization of such institutions as may be affected thereby, for the exclusion or elimination of alient interests hostile or detrimental to the said industries and for the advancement of chemical and allied science and industry in the United States.'

"The voting stock is to be placed in a voting trust, of which the trustees are to be the five gentlemen who for months have been acting as the sales committee which passes upon sales made by my department, that is to say, George L. Ingraham, former Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division, First Department, New York Supreme Court; Otto T. Bannard, President New York Trust Company; Cleveland H. Dodge; Benjamin H. Griswold, senior partner of Brown Bros., bankers, Philadelphia; Ralph Stone, President Detroit Trust Company, and the charter is so framed that under the patents nonexclusive licenses only can be granted on equal terms to all proper applicants and must be granted to the United States free of cost. The company is capitalized at $500,000 of which $400,000 is to be 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and $100,000 common stock, also limited to 6 per cent. dividends. The first President of the Chemical Foundation, Inc., will be Francis P. Garvan of the New York Bar, to whose clear vision and indefatigable industry I am chiefly indebted in the working out of this plan.

"By executive order obtained under the provisions of the act, I have sold to this company for the sum of $250,000 approximately 4,500 patents; the remaining $250,000 has been provided for working capital, so that the company may be able to commence immediately and prosecute with the utmost vigor infringement proceedings whenever the first German attempt shall hereafter be made to import into this country. The charter of the corporation provides that surplus income is to be used for the retirement of the preferred stock and thereafter for the advancement of chemical and allied science and industry."

ALBANY, March 11.—Retention of County Judge Lewis J. Smth and Surrogate Leon D. Howell of Nassau County by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company as counsel to defend criminal prosecutions in that county growing out of the B. R. T. wreck last October, inflamed the Senate today to an extent where both jurists were called "porch climbers" during a debate on the Black bill, which would bar them from acting in the trials. Republicans and Democrats joined in deprecating the law which would permit these Judges being retained as counsel while they are serving terms on the bench.

"The two Judges are only in the case to get a disagreement of the jury," declared Senator Burlingame, Republican, of Kings. "They are there only because one of them may have a friend on the jury."

"These men have forfeited by their conduct any privilege the Legislature gave them to practice law outside their courts," declared Senator Graves of Buffalo. "They look to me like a couple of porch climbers. These men have disgraced their profession. It is time that the Legislature put a stop to their iniquitous practices."

This Is Blizzard Anniversary.

Today is the thirty-first anniversary of the great blizzard of 1888, which paralyzed New York for three days. The great blizzard came at the close of a comparatively mild Winter, and some persons, in view of the remarkable weather experienced this year, have predicted a repetition. The Weather Man last night, however, predicted "fair and warmer" for today and tomorrow, and could see no sign of storm ahead.

The question was raised by Mr. O'Neil, who asked whether the Government was informed of the American resolution and whether the government would make a formal protest against interference by a foreign Legislature in the domestic affairs of the United Kingdom.

MEN in their forties or fifties seeking to become financially independent, can ill afford to neglect to accumulate long-term bonds around present prices. It is the judgment of investment experts that the time is bound to come when many bonds that can be purchased today to yield around 5% to 6½% will sell at prices which will not yield anywhere near so much income. To men in their forties or fifties this is an important consideration, since every dollar of additional income means just that much more financial independence.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

In its leading features yesterday's stock market was practically the same as the sessions which had gone before since prices began to move upward last month. During the early part of the day there were periods of hesitation, marked by a backing and filling process which had its chief demonstration in Steel common. Before noon, however, the forward tendency was again in control and business increased in volume up to the close. The last half hour was the busiest of the day, and in this period a number of stocks reached new high prices for the year. In the later dealings steel shares, tobacco and automobile stocks, and the railroad issues to a lesser degree, were the most sought after by buyers. Whatever encouragement short sellers derived from transient market sentiment in the morning was wafted away after the noon hour. Net gains extending from 1 to more than 2 points were well distributed at the close, with a number of specialties scoring considerably larger advances.

Perhaps the best explanation of the day's trading would be the statement that the impetus acquired in the last week continued in effect without news developments to mar the general trading sentiment. A little uncertainty over the financial outlook for the railroads was probably reflected in the irregular movements of the first hour, a condition which was removed when dispatches came from Washington telling of the results being aimed at by the Railroad Administration and railway managers at their conference. The suggestion which the Street grasped to the exclusion of other things was that arrangements would shortly be outlined for supplying the carriers with the funds needed in the next few months. The methods to be followed were not described before the market closed, but such information as reached the financial community by telegraph supplemented comment heard in banking circles to the effect that the bankers would be asked to supply a large part of the money through a medium which would not be as burdensome upon their credit resources as would straight loans to the railroads. It was expected that if they were requested to advance funds upon warrants bearing the Government stamp the banks would be able to rediscount the paper in case they needed to anticipate the liquidation of the bills. The brief summary of developments at the conference which reached the financial district was gratifying, primarily for the reason that it forecast an early end to the railroads' embarrassment, and this was most emphasized in the surging forward movement of stocks just before the close of business. It is to be borne in mind that other interests than those of the railroads are deeply involved in the current financial deadlock. Equipment companies have millions due them for rolling stock delivered but not paid for, and there are other bills to be met. With the railroads again in position to liquidate debts which have accrued in the last six months under the Railroad Administration the credit position of several departments of industry will be improved.

Call money lent at 4¾ and 5 per cent., the undertone being a little firmer than the day before. The money market appeared, however, to be still fairly easy.

Kennecott Dividend Reduced.

A reduction in the dividend of the Kennecott Copper Company, which was announced yesterday—the declaration being 50 cents as compared with $1 three months ago—was hardly unexpected. The Kennecott Company receives much of its income from the Utah Copper Company, in which it holds approximately 616,000 shares of stock. When the Utah dividend was reduced to the basis of $6 annually a short time ago it meant a slicing off from Kennecott's profits of about $2,464,000. It was for this reason that the Street looked for a reduction in the Kennecott dividend. The stock is now placed on the basis of $2 annually. The cost of carrying the heavy stock of copper on hand was also an influencing factor in the action of the Directors.

Steel Men Postpone Trip.

The conference between the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce and the representatives of steel manufacturers, which was to have been held in Washington today, to determine upon methods for carrying out the provisions of the Redfield plan for stabilizing industry, was postponed yesterday, when it was learned that Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the committee, could not make the trip because of a slight indisposition. According to present plans, the steel men will go to Washington early next week. It is believed that the steel men will suggest that if there is to be co-operation on the part of industry, to bring about the industrial stabilization desired, that there will have to be some arrangement whereby wages are to come down in proportion to any reduction in prices which may be asked of the iron and steel manufacturers.

Copper Market Is Dull.

After a fitful display of activity last week the copper market has again relapsed to one of colorless monotony. The little demand that did assert itself, and which gave hope for better things in the near future, quickly died out, giving stronger confirmation to the belief, which has been asserted from time to time, that the market was an object to only those purchasers who were in urgent need of the metal. This hand-to-mouth buying can never give stability and the large consumers are apparently confident that they can obtain copper at cheap prices for some time to come. There has been perhaps a slight increase in the price of copper. That is to say, smaller producers are asking 15 cents, or within a small fraction of that figure, while the larger companies are holding firmly at the 15-cent level. One of the situations created by the price cutting on the part of the smaller companies is that they have very largely disposed of their heavy oversupplies and having received cash for the metal are in a better position than the larger companies which have been unable to dispose of a relatively large proportion of their copper. The big companies are therefore subject to heavy carrying costs, which are not particularly consoling.

Standard of N. J. Buys Oil Company.

A controlling interest in the Humble Oil and Refining Company has been purchased by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The Humble Company, a Texas concern, increased its capitalization from $4,000,000 to $8,200,000. Of the new stock the Standard of New Jersey bought $4,110,000 par value, and it is said paid $17,000,000 for the shares, or on the basis of $414.63 a share. The Humble Company plans the building of a pipe line to tap the oil fields of north central Texas, this to lead to a refinery which will be built on the Gulf coast. The company is said to have 250,000 acres of oil leases.

French Freight Rate Up.

In local shipping circles it was said yesterday that there is a great deal of dissatisfaction being expressed over the failure of the United States Shipping Board to furnish sufficient tonnage to French ports to handle the amount of business being offered in American Atlantic ports. As the result, the ocean freight rate on private vessels, which has recently been quoted at $55 and $60 a ton, was reported yesterday to have been advanced on one or two ships to $65. One instance was also reported of an American wooden steamship quoting the $30 rate of the United States Shipping Board. This is not generally considered as attractive, however, as there are not many exporters who care to trust their consignments in wooden vessels.

The Income Tax Rush.

Most of the lawyers and income tax specialists in the financial district are finding themselves overworked in the few days remaining in this week, because of the anxiety of business men, bankers, stock market operators, and others, to get their income returns figured out and paid. In many instances, individuals who have put off computing their incomes for 1918, find now they cannot get the assistance from experts that is necessary. In several offices in Wall Street yesterday there was feverish activity in an effort to discover what 1918 losses, exemptions, profits, surtaxes, expenses, depreciation, and other items were, and one man of substantial means probably voiced the sentiments of dozens of others when he said at the close of the day: "This income tax is the toughest thing I ever tackled, and I'm not half through with it yet. This was the hardest day's work I have ever done and, tomorrow ——," but he failed to characterize today and what it held for him except by an open-armed gesture of helplessness.

St. Paul Issues Active.

Both the preferred and common stocks of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad were active in yesterday's stock market, the former opening at 70¾, selling up to 74¼ and easing off at the close to 73¾, and the latter also gaining ground from an opening at 37¾ to 39⅞, with a fractional recession to 39¾ at the close. The St. Paul issues have attracted attention in recent weeks by spasmodic advances based apparently on expectations that the back dividends on the preferred stock would be declared by the Directors, and that the position of the road under Federal control and the consequent standard return, merits such action.

$31,500,000 for Detroit United.

After a bitter contest for several years, a compromise has been effected and arrangements have been made for the City of Detroit to take over the Detroit United Railways at a purchase price of $31,500,000, according to dispatches received yesterday. The company originally asked for approximately $33,500,000, while the price offered by the city was in the neighborhood of $29,653,000. It is expected that the deal will be made binding by the settlement of minor details in the immediate future.

American Can Company Sells Notes.

The American Can Company has sold $12,000,000 serial notes to the First National Bank. They will be offered for subscription on a 6 per cent. discount basis. In regard to the notes the First National Bank has issued the following statement: "The continued high cost of tinplate and other raw materials, together with the maintenance so far in 1919 of an extraordinary volume of business, makes desirable a temporary addition to the working capital of the American Can Company. It has therefore sold to the First National Bank $12,000,000 serial notes, to be dated March 17, 1919, and to mature in equal installments in six, seven, eight, and nine months."

The Future Value of Your Income

The increase in interest returns of sound securities during the past few years, when measured in terms of the present cost of living, is more apparent than real. But with the return of the dollar to its normal value an income based on the present high rates of interest will have an actual value equal to its apparent value. Hence the advantage of the purchase of long-term securities under present conditions.

SHARP REACTION IN COTTON.

After Several Days of Advances Prices Drop 10 to 40 Points.

The cotton market yesterday turned heavy, and during most of the session displayed weakness which was in marked contrast to the strength which had been shown in the preceding days. Apparently most of the urgent buying for liquidation of old contracts had been attended to, and it is also likely that some of the recent buyers, finding that they were running the market up on themselves, decided to withdraw for the time being and allow the market to react. At all events the market was heavy, with the sellers a good deal more anxious to sell than the buyers were to buy, and at the close old contracts were down 10 to 40 points on the day while the new contracts were off 25 to 35 points.

It is admitted that a large proportion of the recent buying came from shorts who were anxious to hedge out their old contracts and get their position established in the new style contracts. This being the case, it was natural for a number of prospective buyers to reconsider when it was announced that there will be no prohibition on dealings in old contracts for purposes of liquidation after May 1. There will be a tax of $10 a bale, or 2 cents a pound, on such operations after May 1, however, and this will probably cause most contracts to be closed out before that time. But there are about six weeks before this becomes operative, and it looked yesterday as if traders would go slower from now on in switching.

The report from Washington which credited Congressman Heflin with the statement that he knew of buying orders for 1,000,000 bales of cotton for German account was not taken seriously here. It is believed that Germany will make efforts to buy cotton here, for she needs it badly, according to every report to come through, but there is no idea that she will buy in any such volume as the Congressman indicated. The cotton market, as a matter of fact, would welcome a buyer of anything like 1,000,000 bales of spots, but unhappily for the bulls none is likely to appear in the near future.

The decline yesterday was most persistent. At the opening prices were generally slightly below Monday's closing, and after a brief rally which took the list up 10 to 20 points a reaction set in which carried all options down. At the low levels of the afternoon prices were off 25 to 45 points. At the close some of these losses had been partially regained.

SAY B. R. T. USED GREEN MEN

In the trial of Thomas F. Blewitt of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, charged with manslaughter as a result of the Brighton line wreck, George McDonough, a shop foreman, testified yesterday at Mineola that Blewitt had asked him on the morning the strike began to request his men to take out trains. Five other employes admitted under cross-examination that, although inexperienced, they were ordered to work in the subway and on elevated lines. These were Emil Struse, a freight conductor; William Simons, Leonard Marino, and Walter Davis, crew dispatchers, and John H. Horgan, instructor of motormen.

Joseph Slatter, formerly a clerk in Blewitt's office, said that on the morning of Nov. 1 he told Blewitt over the telephone that he was short of motormen and that the Superintendent told him to use Horgan, who had just been broken in.

Emil Struse testified that on Nov. 1 he took out his first passenger train. Robert Ketcham, a switchman, also took his first passenger run the day the strike began. Other motormen said they had received sixty hours' training, sixty hours' operating instruction, and were examined by Supt. Blewitt before being certified.

To Confer on Tunnel to Jersey.

The State Commission on Reconstruction will hold a public conference to discuss the proposed vehicular tunnel between New York and New Jersey at the Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. Reports will be read by five State engineers on the type of tunnel proposed, the construction and the cost. The engineers to whom these questions were submited are Amos Schaeffer, Consulting Engineer of the Borough of Manhattan; H. B. Parsons, the engineer of the New York subways; George W. Fuller, George F. Kunz, and Paul G. Brown.

Stockholders Ratify Debt Increase—Cumberland Valley Road Taken.

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at their annual meeting today authorized an increase in indebtedness of $75,000,000 and the acquisition of the Cumberland Valley Railroad.

Directors of the railroad previously had approved the new issue, and while the stockholders today ratified it, they also provided that a stock vote upon the increase in debt shall be taken March 25, the date of the annual election of officers. The $75,000,000, it is proposed, will be raised in general mortgage bonds. The Directors already had authority to increase the indebtedness of the company $46,000,000, so that the action of today and March 25 will raise the total to $121,000,000.

Cities Service Company
Bankers Shares
Bankers Trust Company, New York, Depositary.

We summarize from a letter of Henry L. Doherty, President of Cities Service Company, containing a description of Cities Service Company Bankers Shares, as follows:

There has been deposited, under an agreement with Bankers Trust Company, New York, Depositary, 30,000 shares, par value $100 each, of Cities Service Company Common Stock. The agreement provides, among other things, for the issuance of non-voting Certificates, in registered form to be known as "Bankers Shares," against the Cities Service Company Common Stock so deposited, each such "Bankers Share" representing a one-tenth (1-10) interest in a share of Cities Service Company Common Stock of $100 par value.

Holders of "Bankers Shares" will have the right upon notice to the Depositary to surrender their "Bankers Shares" and receive therefor one (1) share of Cities Service Company Common Stock, $100 par value, for each ten (10) "Bankers Shares" surrendered.

The agreement provides that Cities Service Company or Henry L. Doherty and Company, its Fiscal Agents, shall have the exclusive right to deposit additional shares of Common Stock from time to time against which additional "Bankers Shares" may be issued.

Cities Service Company is at present paying monthly cash dividends of 6% per annum and monthly stock dividends at the rate of 12% per annum on its $100 par value Common Stock.

The agreement will provide for the sale of all stock dividends received on the deposited Cities Service Company Common Stock, and the disbursement of the proceeds from such sale, together with the cash dividends received on the deposited stock, in the form of a cash distribution on the "Bankers Shares" to be issued. At the present dividend rate and market price of Cities Service Company Common Stock, there should be available approximately forty cents on each "Bankers Share" per month.

Dividends on "Bankers Shares" will be payable on the first of each month, commencing April 1st, to shares of record on the fifteenth day of the preceding month.

Shattuck Arizona Reports Net Income of $243,467.

The report of the Shattuck Arizona Copper Company issued yesterday shows net income after all charges and Federal taxes amounting to $243,467 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918. This was equivalent to 69 cents a share on the $3,500,000 capital stock (parity $10) and compared with $2.03 a share earned on the same stock in the preceding year. The gross income for the year just passed amounted to $2,668,082, which compared with $3,652,156 in 1917 and $5,160,924 in the year before that.

After the payment of 1918 dividends, which amounted to $437,500, there was a deficit for the year amounting to $194,033, which compared with a surplus in the preceding year of $101,141. In 1916 the surplus was $1,376,577. The balance sheet of the company for 1918 showed a decrease in cash on hand as of Dec. 31 of almost 50 per cent. In December, 1918, cash was shown at $760,319, and in 1917 it was set down at $1,480,816.

COAL REVENUE CUT.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company in its annual report for last year shows a gross revenue of $49,608,827, only a slight decrease from the figures of 50,025,017, reported in the preceding year. After expenses and allowances for ordinary taxes amounting to $36,568,676, the operating income was $13,040,151. This is a decrease of $5,429,398 from 1917. After depreciation charges and interest, the net income for 1918 was $9,006,854. In the preceding year the net income was $14,076,853.

After the payment of preferred and common dividends, the balance for the year was $5,238,394, a decrease of approximately $5,000,000. From the total surplus of $25,662,121 there was a deduction of $1,839,469 to cover the income and excess profits taxes of 1917, which are thereby practically deducted from the 1918 earnings. The report makes no provision for the excess profits taxes of 1918.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices closed strong in an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Buying orders in heavy volume in the final hour made for a general advance. Final quotations were about the best for the day. The trend upward came after midday, following a period of irregularity and a mixed trading during which the market lacked any decided movement.

CORN PRODUCTS REPORT.

Operating Profits Are Increased Nearly 50 Per Cent.

The annual report of the Corn Products Refining Company for 1918 shows that operating profits were increased by about 50 per cent. over the preceding year, the comparative figures being $24,288,303 for 1918 and $16,852,793 for 1917. One of the most noteworthy items in the report is that relating to war taxes. Last year $13,000,000 was charged off for Federal reservation, whereas in the preceding year the tax reservation was only $3,500,000.

The total income of the company for last year was $25,328,932, an increase of nearly $8,000,000 over 1917. After interest charges, insurance, depreciation, and the heavy war tax, there was left a net income of $8,652,400, as compared with $11,348,400 for the preceding year. The surplus, after preferred dividends, was $6,564,515, equivalent to $13.18 a share on the $49,777,333 common stock. In 1917 the balance available for the common shares was $9,260,577, or equivalent to $18.60 a share on the junior stock.

The report shows that the company at the close of 1918 had $4,800,000 of its cash loaned out in the call money market, an item which has not heretofore appeared in the annual reports. This amount, together with the cash on hand amounting to $2,212,332, make the actual cash of the company $7,000,000, as compared with a cash item of only slightly more than $1,000,000 at the close of 1917. Notes and accounts receivable are shown to be $12,855,423, as compared with accounts payable of only $303,291.

Yale and Towne Profits $1,396,423.

Net profits of the Yale and Towne Manufacturing Company in 1918 were $1,396,423, according to the annual report of the company, which was made public yesterday. This was after all charges and taxes, and was equivalent to $28.18 a share earned on the $4,955,210 outstanding, which compared with $40.21 a share earned on $4,948,070 outstanding in the preceding year. The surplus added to profit and loss surplus in 1918 was $405,381. This compared with $1,000,377 which was carried into profit and loss surplus in 1917.

FRENCH EXCHANGE MARKET.

Official Interest Suspected in Movement of Franc Rate.

The market for French exchange, which has been rather erratic of late, is not being "pegged" by the French Government, nor by bankers here, according to financial interests familiar with the situation. However, it is believed in exchange circles that while no hard and fast peg has been established, there is an official interest in the movement of the franc rate and that efforts are made, from time to time, to prevent its falling through 5.50 for checks.

Yesterday, as on several other recent days, the check rate got below 5.49 and almost immediately buying appeared, which caused the market to strengthen. Just who bought francs which were offered is a mystery, but it is suggested that the local agent of the Bank of France may have been the person.

Franc exchange has been acting in rather a peculiar manner, and in some quarters there was fear that it would break sharply over the April 1 period, when the French Government will have to meet a $100,000,000 maturity here, in dollars, or at Paris at the rate of exchange of 5.75 francs per dollar. Some weeks ago, J. P. Morgan & Co., acting for the French Government, announced that it would buy these bonds at 105¼ here at New York at any time up to maturity, and this, it was thought, would keep the bonds from upsetting the franc exchange market.

However, it happened that several banking houses shipped many of these bonds to Paris directly after the signing of the armistice, when ocean insurance rates took a sharp drop, and these bonds will be offered in Paris for redemption and the proceeds transferred through the purchase of dollars at Paris, or the sale of francs here. Exchange bankers believe that some of this selling here has already started and that it is the bills thus created which have hurt the market recently.

But the French fiscal agents here are not especially worried over the situation, for it is said they are well supplied with dollars here which may be used for the franc bills offered. The French fiscal agents come into large sums of American money through the purchases made by the American Expeditionary Force in France.

The arrangements are for American military paymasters to cash dollar checks, drawn on the New York Federal Reserve Bank, at the Bank of France. The military paymasters receive francs for distribution to the army and the dollar checks are sent here for collection. Of late, owing to the reduction of the American Army abroad, the volume of this exchange has diminished, but it is still large enough, it is said, to balance the French purchases here.

END DOUBLE CENSORSHIP.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Double censorship of cablegrams is abolished under an agreement between the United States and Great Britain made public today. The two countries agree that hereafter cable communication through the territory of either shall be subject only to the censorship of the country in which the message originates.

The United States, the announcement of the agreement said, desires to discontinue cable censorship entirely at the earliest possible moment, but "as long as the Allies consider it necessary to continue the blockade it will be necessary to continue the censorship." Every modification consistent with the blockade will be made, however.

British censors will not interfere with cables from the United States to points outside the British Empire, which have to pass through British territory, and American-censored messages to points within the British Empire will be delivered without undergoing the scrutiny of the British authorities. Similarly, messages to this country will be censored abroad, and not after being received in the United States.

The new arrangement becomes effective at 12:01 A. M. March 13. The change will not obviate delay to which cablegrams are subjected as a result of congestion on the cables, the official statement said.

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Suitings Brought Good Prices.

At the auction sale held yesterday at the rooms of Burling & Dole, fancy worsted and serge suitings brought within 10 per cent. of the market prices. With overcoatings it was about the same. Several thousand yards of O. D. flannel sold at from 35½ to 36½ cents per yard. In every instance where desirable merchandise was offered it was snatched up very quickly at prices that were quite close to the present market values.

There is a noticeable trend toward the higher-priced pelts in the Spring and Summer fur business that is now being done, local manufacturing furriers say. Buyers are active in their purchases of goods suitable for the season, especially on one and two skin scarfs. Most in demand are Russian and Hudson's Bay sables, stone marten and fisher. A good run on the "Summer" foxes also is reported by the manufacturers.

Orders for Leather Belts.

During the last week the business of the manufacturers of men's leather belts hass hown a decided improvement. For some time retailers were under the impression that the prices of these articles would be lower. Recently, however, many have changed their view of this matter. There are now many signs of activity in this line, and some very substantial orders are now being received. Many of the local and out-of-town stores have already placed their orders for Spring, and in most instances they are considered very liberal.

Silk Shirts in Demand.

There is a very brisk demand for the better grades of men's silk shirts. In some instances the shipments made during the last two months show an increase of from 50 to 75 per cent. over the same months of last year. A buyer who was in the trade yesterday said that he is receiving more calls for silk shirts than ever before, especially on the higher-priced lines. The volume of business obtained on the road is very satisfactory. Reports received from Texas indicate that silk shirts are very popular in that section of the country, more so, in fact, than in some of the Eastern States.

Silk Hose Is Wanted.

Retailers now in this market continue active in their buying of Fall lines of the better grades of men's hosiery. "Fancies" generally are favored, and ribbed hose in one and two tone effects and iridescents are especially heavy sellers. The desired colors are more or less staple, including blue, black, gray, and brown. In the women's end of the market the demand is also active, so much so in fact that sellers say they will be unable to take all the orders that are being tendered them on goods that will retail at $2.50 and up per pair.

Gray Goods Prices Improve.

Yesterday was another sizeable day in the local gray goods market, especially in printcloths and specialties. In the case of the former, several constructions were sold at higher prices than on Monday. The deliveries mostly consisted of spots and goods wanted up to May 1. Among the sales put through in the course of the day on printcloths were 39-inch 80 squares at 14 cents, 39-inch 68-72s at 10¼ cents, 39-inch 56-44s at 7¼ cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 9 cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s at 7¾ cents. The fine-yarn cloths sold to some extent, but sheetings and other heavy goods were not active. Sateens and twills continued to move in a large way.

An active demand at retail is reported here for children's dresses, some of which is manifesting itself in wholesale circles in the shape of duplicate business. Among the types of dresses that are in more or less special favor are attractive ones of orchid-hued organdie, set off with little bibs or surplices of a similar fabric in white. Some show the use of narrow belts of ribbon. These dresses are sold with hats to match, some of the latter having shirred edges and being trimmed with tiny flowers. Others are trimmed with a narrow band of black velvet ribbon, the edges being set off with narrow white lace. Many beautifully smocked dresses also are selling.

To Establish Foreign Offices.

In an endeavor to bring closer together the important manufacturing interests of the world, the Associated Dress Industries of America will shortly establish offices in London and Paris. This move is the first of its kind, and is said by Executive Director David N. Mosessohn to be one of the most constructive steps ever taken in the garment trades. Otto B. Shulhof, President of the association, will leave on Saturday for Liverpool, and from there will go on to London. After opening an office in that city for the organization and assembling a competent staff, he will go on to Paris and carry out a similar program. The association also has plans under way to establish a clubhouse in this city. This will be situated near Fifth Avenue, between Thirtieth and Fortieth Streets.

From all indications the strike in the women's underwear trade has not as yet affected the manufacturers to any great extent. It was said yesterday that some of them welcomed the strike, owing to the large stocks already on hand. There is more of a demand for the cotton garments at present, and some firms are receiving liberal orders for immediate delivery. It is claimed that most of the buying now being done is because the retailers are preparing for the May sales. In almost every quarter business is picking up very rapidly in this line.

The Foreign Credit Bureau of the National Association of Credit Men has compiled information received from thirty or more representative lines as to their immediate attitude toward Mexican business, especially with a view to determining to what extent actual open or acceptance credits are being given to Mexican merchants. The report, which was originally intended for a special foreign trade group, will, according to the March letter of Secretary-Treasurer Tregoe, be interesting to any member who is looking forward to establishing business relations with firms across the Rio Grande. A copy will be sent on request. The association's offices are at 41 Park Row.

Trade License Restrictions Canceled

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Individual import and export licenses for the colonies, possessions, and protectorates of Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, and Japan, will no longer be required, it was announced today by the War Trade Board.

A SERIOUS fire gutted the building in which F. G. H. & Co., Waist Manufacturers, had a loft. Their machinery and stock were ruined.

Pending the receipt of adjusted payments from the insurance companies, we supplied the funds needed to equip a new plant and acquire merchandise to satisfy unfilled orders. Thus they quickly resumed "business as usual."

Whatever the cause of interruption to your business, we can most likely remove it.

CONTINENTAL FULWOOL FABRICS
Fine Woolens, Made on the Knitted Principle

CONTINENTAL Fulwool Fabrics are peculiarly constructed on the knitted principle and have loft, life and softness above all other fine woolens.

They will not sag or lose their shape when made into garments, and are so guaranteed by the Mills.

They can be had in distinctive mixtures, solid colors and silver sheens in light, medium and heavy weights.

Continental Fulwool Fabrics have many uses. Their adaptability, uniform high quality and individuality will appeal to manufacturers who desire fabrics that will tone up their line.

Hickson, Inc., and M. Rock have created some ultra-fashionable women's and men's outer garments of Continental Fulwool Fabrics which are now on display at our salesroom, 225 Fourth Avenue.

Style's latest tendencies are depicted and a visit will prove to your interest—See this exhibition this week.

MERCHANTS WANT PORT PACT PUSHED

SAYS CITY HALTS PROGRESS

Letter Calls Joint Project by New York and New Jersey Only Harbor Solution.

William Fellowes Morgan, as President of the Merchants' Association, yesterday addressed a letter to Mayor Hylan and each member of the Board of Estimate urging that prompt action be taken on the projected New York-New Jersey treaty for the improvement of the harbor, and asking especially that no delay hold up the creation of the Port Authority. Mr. Morgan pointed out six leading reasons why the matter should be pushed, summarized as follows:

1.—Unless the terminal costs of the Port of New York are lessened by fully improving its terminal facilities, the commerce of the city will be seriously endangered.

2.—The traffic problem of this city is not restricted to its territorial limits. It is bound up with and inseparable from the physical character, the efficiency, and the method of operation of the various railroad terminals serving this city, but within the State of New Jersey.

3.—The required improvement can be provided only by a unified plan, which shall reorganize, expand, and fully coordinate the rail terminals of New Jersey, Manhattan, Broklyn, Queens, Bronx, and Richmond, and their connecting car ferry service, and further provide adequately for interchange of rail and water traffic.

5.—Although adequate port and traffic facilities are of paramount importance to the City of New York, it is completely helpless to prive them.

6.—The Port Authority created by the pending treaty between New York and New Jersey provides effectively for the creation and operation of the comprehensive plan without which the interests of this port cannot be protected.

"A comprehensive plan governing the character and construction of future traffic facilities," declared Mr. Morgan in conclusion, "is vitally important for the protection of New York's commerce. Such a plan cannot be prepared and installed except through a special agency exercising the delegated powers of the States of New York and New Jersey. The pending treaty is for the purpose of providing such agency. It has the approval of a Legislative Commission representing both States, comprising the two Governors, and Attorney Generals, the leaders of both parties in the two Legislatures, the speakers of both Assemblies, and the Chairmen of the Finance and Ways and Means Committees in both Legislatures. Only the approval of the authorities of this city is now necessary for favorable consideration by the Legislature of both States, after which there is no doubt that the consent of Congress will be given."

CONFER ON MILK PRICES.

Delegations Plan Recommendations to Governor's Commission.

Members of the Executive Committee of the Dairymen's League and a large committee of the New York Milk Conference Board conferred for several hours yesterday in the rooms of the Dairymen's League at 303 Fifth Avenue in an effort to agree upon milk prices for April and probably for a period of three or six months. It is proposed to make recommendations to the Governor's Milk Commission, which is scheduled to hold a meeting tomorrow. The result of the conference was not announced.

Roswell D. Cooper, President of the Dairymen's League, is ill at his home at Little Falls, N. Y., but the Vice President, J. D. Miller, and other members of the Executive Committee were present. The committee from the Milk Conference Board included Isaac A. Van Bomel of Sheffield's and W. A. Weiant of Borden's, both members of the Governor's Milk Commission, as are also Mr. Cooper and Mr. Miller of the Dairymen's League.

Edgar Shoemaker, a wholesale and retail milk dealer of 615 East Thirty-fourth Street, paid a fine of $300 in the Municipal Term of Magistrate Harris's court yesterday for wrongly labeling pasteurized milk.

Rebecca Stark, who conducts a bakery at 202 Brook Avenue, was fined $100 by Magistrate Harris for using decayed eggs in making cake and other foodstuffs.

The largest apartment house deal of the year in the Cathedral Parkway section was closed yesterday when the eleven-story Manhasset, occupying the block front on the west side of Broadway, between 108th and 109th Streets, was sold to a syndicate of operators headed by Gilbert & Kramer for about $1,300,000.

The building, which has a frontage of 201.8 feet on Broadway and 100 feet on the side streets, is fully leased and shows a gross rental return of about $150,000. Many of the sixty apartments in the house, which contain from six to twelve rooms, will be altered into three and four room suites.

ACCOUNTANTS IN BIG DEMAND.
WOMEN AND MEN.

I want to hear from bookkeepers, cashiers, school teachers, office workers, stenographers, and all capable men and women, either with or without bookkeeping experience, who are ambitious to get into higher accounting positions paying

The readjustment of commerce and industry to a peace basis, the reconstruction and reorganization of American business along more efficient lines, the more scientific analysis of costs to meet domestic and world competition, and the necessity for accurate income and excess profits tax reports to the Government have created thousands of new and attractive opportunities for permanent positions in the higher accounting field.

At present we can supply only in a very limited way students and members to fill the numerous requests being received for

Government and business demands have exhausted the available supply of trained men and women.

So our organization, having the largest staff of accounting and business efficiency experts in the world, is making every possible effort to help meet this unusual situation, and to that end I will interview men or women who desire to qualify for these positions by taking individual home training. This can be done without interfering with their present employment.

APPLICANTS WHO ARE ACCEPTED

AIRSHIP AMBULANCE GOES FAST IN TEST

TRIP TAKES 16 MINUTES

Auto Carries Patient from 96th Street, at Hudson River, to St. Luke's Hospital.

An airplane served as ambulance yesterday when Lieutenant David Gray of the Royal Air Forces, a convalescent aviator who was wounded overseas, was brought by seaplane from the naval aerial station at Far Rockaway to St. Luke's Hospital, Amsterdam Avenue and 113th Street, in forty-nine minutes. The fastest time made by a Motor Corps ambulance between the same places is one hour and fifteen minutes.

The flight was made in an H S-2, a naval flying boat, piloted by Lieutenant S. Stevenson of the navy's air service, and was arranged by Major Helen Bastedo of the Woman's Motor Corps of America, who proposed the demonstration after visiting the Aeronautical Exposition in Madison Square Garden.

With Lieutenant Gray on a stretcher, attended by Major Bastedo, "aerial nurse," the seaplane left the water at Rockaway at 11:05 o'clock yesterday morning and flew against a heavy wind to the foot of Ninety-sixth Street, making the distance of eighteen miles in exactly sixteen minutes. Here an ambulance driven by a member of the Motor Corps of America was in waiting and as quickly as the wounded officer was brought to the shore from the plane he was rushed to St. Luke's Hospital.

"I regard the flight as highly successful," said Lieutenant Commander Schofield, of the 3d Naval District, under whose direction the flight took place, "in my opinion the time made was most satisfactory considering the weather condition of fog and head wind. I believe the time made today can be cut materially."

In describing the performance to an audience at the Aeronautical Exposition last night, Major Bastedo declared that she believed the future field for women was in aeronautics. She said other tests along the same line would be made shortly.

"The Motor Corps of America desires to go a step further in its work," she said. "If the automobile did such good work in the war, why not better service from the airplane? When I conceived the idea of adapting the airplane as an ambulance I asked permission of Lieut. Commander Schofield to use one of the navy's seaplanes, which carries three persons. In order to make the demonstration more realistic I asked Lieutenant Gray, who had been wounded in the arms and legs in France, to act as an emergency case.

"Lieutenant Gray was bound on a stretcher and placed in the plane. At 11:05 we were off and headed toward Manhattan. When we landed in the Hudson off Ninety-sixth Street the water was choppy and we experienced difficulty in landing, but it was done safely. The ambulance flying boat came to rest at the Navy Hospital receiving ship Granite State.

"A dory was summoned from a nearby torpedo boat destroyer. It was so rough that the attendant had considerable difficulty in transferring the patient from the seaplane to the dory. When we got ashore Lieutenant Gray was placed in a Motor Corps ambulance, and rushed up Riverside Drive to 110th Street, thence to Amsterdam Avenue, and up to the hospital. I sought to prove that the flying ambulance was quicker, safer, and easier for the patient. Navy officials agree with me that the demonstration was a success."

According to information received yesterday, the navy contemplates attempting to lower the present flight records tomorrow, when a seaplane will fly from Hampton Roads to the Rockaway Naval Air Station. The flight will be made by Lieut. Commander W. L. Richardson.

Yesterday was All-America Day at the Exposition, and a number of South American business men attended the exhibition as the guests of the Aircraft Manufacturers' Association. Today will be Motor Corps Day and Major Bastedo, Miss Elsie De Wolfe, and Miss Elizabeth Marbury are expected to speak in honor of the occasion.

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, who was a spectator at the show yesterday, said that the day of international air races had arrived and he believed air races would arouse as much interest and enthusiasm as the yacht races.

and the officials are none of them New Jersey men. This I declined to do. I know that the people of New Jersey will place the blame where it belongs.

Mr. Wepner issued the following statement on behalf of the union men: "The majority of the employes, platform, track, and line and car house men are members of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. The company co-operative plan took in the inspectors, certain officials, office help, and some shop workers who are not affiliated with any trade union. The union gave the plan full consideration, and then rejected it unanimously, proposing an agreement with the company that is in common use with the majority of street railways in the United States and Canada. The company refused to discuss the merits or demerits of this new proposal.

"There can be absolutely no misunderstanding of the position of the National War Labor Board in the fundamental principles and policies laid down for the guidance of employers and employes. The company violated the first of these principles, which states that 'the right of workers to organize in trade unions and to bargain collectively through representatives is recognized and apparent. This right shall not be denied, abridged, or interfered with by the employers in any manner whatsoever.' The Public Service Company has never met a chosen representative of the locals.

"Whether the company tries to buy the union affiliation with sick benefits, insurance, and pensions, or defeat it by destruction, the object is the same, namely, to take away the right of employes to sell their labor through union organization. This is the vital spot in the controversy."

Warning to Jitney Men.

While the company on the one hand and the men on the other were preparing to stand by their declarations, the traveling public in Northern New Jersey was waiting to see the result of the expected tie-up. In every city, jitney bus operators were preparing to handle the work-bound throngs who would be handicapped if the strike came.

The Jersey City Commissioners yesterday discussed the situation and decided to leave nothing undone to aid the traveling public. It was decided to grant licenses to jitneys in addition to those already in operation, while at the same time a warning was issued against any jitney operator going on a sympathetic strike with the car men. It was pointed out in a communication to jitney owners that such action on their part would surely result in the revocation of the individual's license. No matter who won the proposed strike, the warning said the license in no case would be returned.

"We're going to do our best to make things easier for the public," said City Commissioner John Gannon yesterday. "The man who is accustomed to travel on these lines, and who will be forced tomorrow to either give up his trips or walk, must be helped.

"We luckily have a good many jitneys running, and it won't be many hours before we have more. We hope in addition to get together a number of motor trucks. Already we have 200 of these vehicles, and we are now getting together crews for each truck. I think it will be possible to get two crews for each truck, and in that case we will operate these machines twenty-four hours a day."

Police arrangements to check any possible disorder were perfected last night, and long before the hour set for the strike the police of a score of the larger cities were in their places. In Newark a Sergeant with squads of bluecoats were stationed around the barns to warn off trespassers and to see that property rights were respected.

"I do not expect that we will have any trouble from the striking car men," said Commissioner William J. Brennan, Director of Public Safety in Newark. "We are not afraid of danger from that source, but in a time like this we can't tell what outsiders may attempt."

In Jersey City the Public Service Company notified Chief Battersby that a strike had been declared. Chief Battersby ordered 300 policemen to report for duty at 4 o'clock this morning.

To Prohibit Strike Breakers.

"The police will give the company and the public protection," said Mayor Frank Hague. "If there is rioting we will stop the cars. There must be no strikebreakers; we will not stand for strikebreakers."

There were rumors that in some of the localities an attempt would be made to use strikebreakers, but this could not be confirmed. Inspectors, starters, and switchmen will take out a few cars today.

About one hundred and fifty women employed as conductors on some of the company's lines belong to the union and voted to strike with the men.

220 FIFTH AVENUE. NEW YORK

It applies also to those who feel that their advertising expenditures have not produced satisfactory results.

First Your advertising expense should be a fixed percentage of sales for a given period—say your previous quarter or half year.

Second Your expenditures (so determined) should be put on a per capita per dealer basis, a fixed amount for each new dealer desired, and a fixed amount for increased business of each present dealer.

Third Your proposed expansion should have the unanimous support of your salesmen. The profit on each salesman's new quota should wipe out your advertising expenditure before the second definite expenditure is made.

A plan based on these fundamentals becomes a simple business proposal which your Directors can easily understand and accept or reject without losing themselves in a maze of theory and generalities.

We offer to help any well rated manufacturer to draw up such a proposal, basing the plan of expansion on actual sales. No obligation is entailed except to give enough information for a preliminary discussion.

Yours very truly,

Do Your Evenings Belong to a Lady?

There are only two styles of men's clothing which really appeal to a lady—a military uniform and Dress Clothes.

She regards dress clothes as being worn in her honor—a courteous attention like sending flowers.

And she is critical as to detail. She has no reverence for age when it comes to the style of dress clothes.

For less than half what a custom tailor charges, and without the trouble and delay of measurements and try-ons, you can obtain Dress Clothes that will please the lady.
